In Cheerful Georgia.
A Busy Day.
See Athens, Georgia.
Some Other News.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 23.

The total value of Georgia's crops rose from $67,029,000 in 1932 to $128,863,000 in 1933.

Last year this state produced fifty-two million dollars' worth of cotton, and $7,794,000 worth of cotton seed. Not long ago cotton seed was thought useless and getting rid of it was a problem.

GEORGIA, WITH its rich red soil, fine, mild climate and industrious people, is a state of assorted crops, producing last year four million dollars worth of peaches, four millions of sweet potatoes, eleven millions of peanuts, six millions of tobacco, two millions of sugar cane.

IF YOU live outside of his state every Georgian pities you sincerely. And if you ask whether he considers Georgia the finest place in the world he looks at you closely, not believing that you could ask the question seriously.

Of course this is the finest place, who could question it?

He doubts whether Athens, Greece, at any stage compared with Athens, Georgia. The University of Georgia is at Athens. What is a Parthenon to a great university, or a Pericles to a Dr. Sanford?

IN GEORGIA, the visitor's day is one of active hospitality. You arrive and are entertained at dinner, then there is a dance.

At seven in the morning the automobile comes to drive you seventy miles to the university at Athens, where you speak about George Washington, it being his birthday, to as intelligent a lot of boys and girls as you will find anywhere in America.

These, as Herbert Porter, general manager of the Atlanta Georgian, tells you, are genuine Americans, dating back, many of them, to the time when Sir Walter Raleigh was spoiling his cloak in the mud and later losing the favor of Queen Elizabeth because she disliked tobacco.

AFTER THE university meeting at Woodruff Hall, an excellent speech by Dr. Sanford, president of the university, and another by Dr. George Foster Peabody, who made Franklin D. Roosevelt acquainted with Georgia's marvelous Warm Springs, there is a luncheon, with more speeches, given, by Herbert Porter for the Georgia Press Association, of which Mr. Milton Fleetwood, of the Cartersville Tribune, is president.

NEXT YOU motor forty miles to Gainesville, to see cotton mills, and important industrialists working under NRA.

After an official dinner in the evening by the Jefferson Chamber of Commerce, you return to Atlanta at 10:30 p. m., after a fifteen-hour day.

What would Gen. NRA Johnson think of that?

The trip includes a stop at Jefferson, where Dr. Crawford W. Long, long ago performed the first operation under anaesthesia. Dr. Long noticed that young men who injured themselves at "ether" parties, where the guests induced intoxication by sniffing ether, felt no pain when he operated on them. This gave him the idea of using ether regularly in surgical operations.

Boston claims for its Dr. Morton the first operation under anaesthesia, but Georgia shows that Dr. Long, of Jefferson, first had the idea.

The prince's direct ancestor, Bernadotte, a little lawyer in France, whose son became marshal under Napoleon, would have thought the marriage a pretty good one.

THE FRENCH Chamber of Deputies decides to tax wages of foreigners, including young American vice-presidents of New York financial institutions that have branch establishments in Paris.

Uncle Sam could, but will not, retaliate by taxing earning of French head waiters in America. Many of them earn more than do the young financial vice-presidents.

GEN. JOHNSON objects to the application of an arbitrary 30-hour week to all industries, he calls that "rushing things." He believes, rightly, "that you could not apply a flat rule in industry."

Mr. Johnson thinks you can't get the millineum "all in one bite," that it will need "two or three bites." It may need more bites than that.

THE FRENCH decide that Stavisky was an international spy, selling French war secrets to other nations.

It would hardly seem necessary for him to have done that, since he was able to take $40,000,000 from gullible Frenchmen with his pawn shop swindle in connection with the Stavisky case.

French crime seems to have borrowed an idea from United States gangsters. A prominent French judge, Albert Prince, expected to testify in the Stavisky case, lured by a fraudulent

YoungMother Dies by Gas

..As her year-old baby crept around the room, Mrs. Carrie Moser, 21, was shot dead today in her home, Third street, Clairton.

A .22-caliber revolver found on the floor of her room indicated the young wife had ended her own life, according to the report to the coroner. She was lying in bed when discovered by members of the family.

The husband, Paul Moser, mill worker, could throw no light on the tragedy, police said. Chief Deputy Coroner James L. Davidson, ballistics expert, went to the scene.

A Tribute to a Hero

TO HIS next of kin, and to his proud comrades who fly the colors over land and sea, the unfeigned sympathy of the American people goes out, as they read of the heroic death of Lieut. D. O. Lowry, Air Corps, U. S. A.

Lieut. Lowry was "killed in battle' with "the foes of our household." Ordered to fly the mail from Chicago to Cleveland on a winter's night, he flew through fog and snow until his plane crashed in a wood near Deshler, Ohio.

He guarded the mail to the last.

The young officer was trained to fly the colors, not the mails. His plane was designed to fly the colors, not the mails.

THIS young officer was not given time to familiarize himself with the route to which he was assigned.

If this young officer's plane was equipped with the instruments best fitted to guide him through the fog and snow this fact has yet to be reported.

Is it too much to ask that the Distinguished Flying Cross be awarded posthumously to the late Lieut. Lowry for going bravely and cheerfully to his death in the heroic performance of a duty for which he was not given the time to train but from which his unconquerable soul did not flinch?

Furthermore, is it too much to ask that the government at Washington end this abnormal, unnecessary, and most unfortunate condition of affairs as soon as possible?

DIVORCE ASKED BY MRS. MASSIE

Her complaint charged "extreme cruelty, entirely mental in character," and alleged that "said cruelty destroyed the purpose of the marriage and injured and impaired her general health."

There are no children. Mrs. Massie's complaint asks for no alimony.

Mrs. Massie arrived here January 10 to establish divorce residence, and said at the time she was "personally reluctant to take such a step."

The divorce, she said, would be sought "entirely at the insistence of Lieut. Massie." He is stationed aboard the U. S. S. Oklahoma at San Pedro, Cal.

Natives Hail Prince As 'Mighty Elephant'

KING WILLIAM'S TOWN, South Africa, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—To his other titles, Prince George today was able to add that conferred by representatives of 600,000 natives in this territory—"Ngangedlovu," or "Hail, Mighty Elephant."

Three thousand natives flocked into town as the prince, in the course of his South African tour, attended his first important native gathering.

Pianist Quits Mate Introduced by Wales

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Edythe Baker, stage pianist, and her socially prominent husband, Gerard D'Erlanger of London, have separated because they "simply could not get along," the musician revealed today following her arrival here last night on the liner Manhattan.

Miss Baker, a Kansas City girl, met D'Erlanger through the Prince of Wales while she was appearing on the London concert stage.

Amy Mollison Set To Try Stratosphere

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Amy Mollison, famous British aviatrix, announced on her arrival here from the United States aboard the Europa today that she is going to tackle the stratosphere next.

Long-distance flying, such as her trans-Atlantic jaunt last summer with her husband, Capt. James Mollison, is finished, as far as she is concerned.

MT. RUSHMORE PLAN LAUDED

America's leading writers, artists and men of affairs yesterday joined in acclaiming the competition sponsored by the Hearst newspapers to provide inscriptions for the Mt. Rushmore National Memorial.

Inaugurated on Washington's Birthday, this tournament in American expression invoked the widest kind of interest.

Irvin S. Cobb, novelist and playwright, and Tony Sarg, painter and master craftsman, declared the contest was one of the most distinctive of its kind ever undertaken in this country.

Gutzon Borglum, internationally famous sculptor, today announced that plans were being

Dorothy Jordan Awaiting Stork

HONOLULU, Feb. 22.—(AP.)—Dorothy Jordan of the films and her husband, Merian C. Cooper, arrived today on the liner Malolo to await the stork, which is expected to overtake them in a month or two.

Also aboard the Malolo, when it arrived from Los Angeles, were Otis Skinner, noted character actor, and Mrs. Skinner.

GAY BELGIUM ENTHRONES NEW KING

Leopold Takes Oath As Successor To Albert

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 23.—While a gay Brussels rang with shouts of joy, Crown Prince Leopold took the oath of loyalty to Belgium's constitution today, and thereby formally was proclaimed Leopold III, fourth King of the Belgians.

Gayety seized the capital as the Belgian people and princes from all of Europe joined in a joyous welcome to the 32-year-old King Leopold, and the new queen, the beautiful Astrid of Sweden, who is only 29.

CITY BEDECKED

Leopold became king in a city brightly decorated and gaily bedecked with flags, having not a trace of the heavy atmosphere of mourning which prevailed yesterday as Belgium lovingly and sorrowfully put to his final rest the beloved Albert I, Leopold's father and predecessor.

The oath was administered at 11:15 a. m., in the Palace of the Nation, or parliament building, before a brilliant assemblage of royalty and diplomats and a joint session of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies.

AnotherZero Wave Heads This Way

Tonight the mercury will sink to between zero and 5 degrees above, Observer W. S. Brotzman predicted. No relief is in prospect for two or three days, he said. Sub-zero temperatures prevail throughout the Northwest and Canada.

Ice-covered streets in outlying districts caused many minor skidding accidents. The ice, formed last night by freezing rain and snow, had disappeared from downtown streets.

February likely will hang up a new cold record for the month, the weather man stated. The deficiency in temperature thus far is 214 degrees.

CUPID DEFIES HOLIDAY

A Mt. Lebanon law school student and his attractive sweetheart from next door are "exceedingly happy" today, though they had a bit of difficulty in eloping on Washington's Birthday—when courthouses are closed.

Harold Meredith Irons, 24, of 70 Longue Vue drive, and 19-year-old Ellen Virginia Smith, of 90 Longue Vue drive, were married in Wellsburg, W. Va., yesterday—but not before some trying moments when the marriage clerk protested that the bride was "too young."

So they went to Wheeling in a taxicab, but the marriage bureau there was closed. Finally they found Mrs. Bertha Morgan, clerk, at her home and she granted them the needed certificate. They were married in Wellsburg.

Irons, a sophomore in the Pitt Law School, is the son of Attorney H. M. Irons, former assistant city solicitor. His wife is the daughter of H. J. Smith, assistant treasurer for the Gulf Refining Company.

M'KEESPORTER UNEASY AS FATE NEARS JURY'S HANDS

Bob Soles' ears were burning this afternoon as a jury of six women and six men prepared to go behind locked doors to determine whether he murdered his attractive wife, La Roux, or whether she was a suicide.

The proseprous McKeesporter was flushed and ill at ease as Prosecutor John Haggerty, in his closing argument to the jury, called him "a skunk, a husband who would blacken his wife's reputation to escape."

With Haggerty's scorching speech still resounding over the crowded courtroom, Judge Frank P. Patterson called the noon recess before he began his charge to the jury.

This completed, the jury retired to decide whether La Roux Soles was a suicide or murder victim.

Once, when Haggerty referred to "the Soles names and money . . . and a million dollar defense," Eaton rose and asked that a record of Haggerty's speech be made—this, no doubt, with a new trial in mind, if necessary.

La Roux's elderly father, Harry B. Lynch, who was responsible for the investigation that caused Soles' arrest, sat in the first row, biting his lips to keep back the tears when Haggerty declared:

"There sits an old grey-haired man—a good old Irishman. He wants the world to say that La Roux Soles did not go down to death in suicide."

Closing argument for the defense was made by Attorney Coleman, after a few words from Eaton.

Weeping one minute, stamping his feet the next, the lifelong friend and counsellor of the Soles family raised his shrill, high voice to the ceiling in an effort to walk the ex-Army captain out of the courtroom a free man.

STORMY ELOQUENCE

Coleman was reaching the heights of a stormy eloquence when Haggerty interrupted him, contending that defense counsel

Emergency repairs on the Fifth avenue McKeesport bridge tied up traffic today for several hours. A shuttle system was temporarily installed by the Pittsburgh Railways Company on routes 98 and 99, and a third line was rerouted.

Innocent, Guilty? Bob Soles' Fate Hangs in Balance

By WILLIAM PFARR

Would you convict Bob Soles?

Would you order him to the electric chair, or banish him to prison for life—the punishment for first-degree murder?

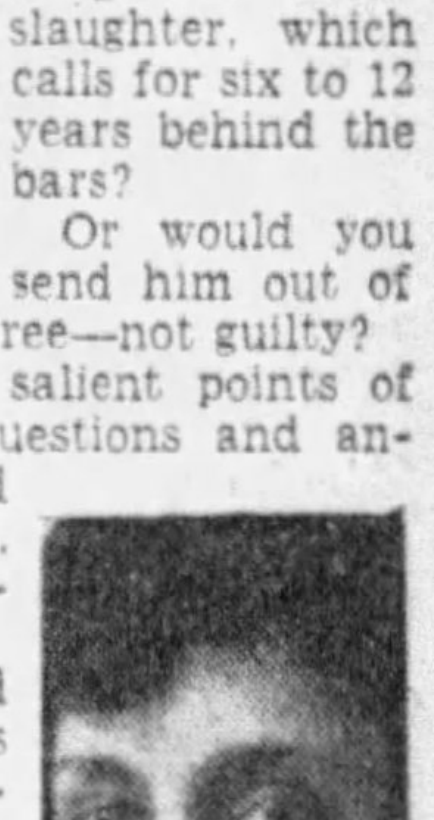
Mr. Soles

Would you feel that second degree guilt was enough—imprisonment from 10 to 20 years?

Or the next degree, manslaughter, which calls for six to 12 years behind the bars?

Or would you send him out of that courtroom free—not guilty?

Here are the salient points of the trial, the questions and answers suggested by the testimony. Decide for yourself.



Mrs. Soles

Q.—Why should La Roux Soles have shot herself?

A.—Because she was ill physically and despondent mentally—despondent because of her nervous condition and because she had lost both of her children.

Q.—What motive could Bob

Chickie's Daughter -:- By Elenore Meherin

CHAPTER I.

The two girls sat on the young man's bed. He pulled open a drawer and tossed a shirt to a chair.

An amused smile over the boy's face. "In love with me, aren't you, Pippin?"

"Know any girl who isn't?"

"Not many, and I don't know them long till they are."

"Pipe down on that kind of talk, baby, or I'll tell your mother on you."

"You wouldn't, Kevin, Kathie and I need you so much. A girl's simply got to have someone she can admit her secret passions to."

Promises to Take Girls to Dance

"There may be something in that." He picked up his bathrobe. With a grin and a wave of his hand: "Come on, children, go. I'm in a hurry."

"Be yourself, Kevin," said the dark-eyed Kathie. "Who's been your valet for the last five years, anyhow? We're sticking right here till you give us your promise."

Then the white thing with the gold hair went up and put a pair of exquisite hands on the young man's arms.

"You'll do it, Kevin, won't you?"

"You're too young," said the boy sternly.

"Sixteen, if you please."

"You were 15 yesterday."

A ripple of joyous laughter. "Not if you count age correctly as the Chinese do—9 months old at birth."

Kevin grinned and temporized. "But why do I have to be dragged into it?"

"Can't you realize that I might get to go if you were along with Kathie? With somebody old like you as a sort of chaperon or bodyguard, we simply couldn't go wrong, even if we wanted to."

With a move that was quick like a bird's, she raised her

BROWN TELLS HOW FIRM HERE GOT AIR MAIL LINE

Department Frowned On Small Operator, Ex-Postmaster Says

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Circumstances leading up to the acquisition of the Clifford Ball air mail line from Pittsburgh to Cleveland by the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, Inc., were related at the air mail inquiry today by former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown.

Replying to questions by Senator Austin (Rep.), of Vermont, Brown declared:

"The distance from Pittsburgh to Cleveland is 125 miles. Ball was conducting a short operation for which there was no economic justification.

"Ball was trying to keep going and he stimulated the air mail business in ways we could not approve. He paid postage on air mail at 80 cents a pound and collected from the government at $3 per pound.

"Assistant Postmaster General Glover investigated, and there was no question about it. Mr. Glover held up his mail pay.

"About that time, his contract was expiring and he wanted a route certificate. We adhered to the position we could not grant a route certificate. I did not want to break him. He was a pretty good boy, except for his ideas about building up the air mail.

"I didn't want to advertise a line 125 miles long and I told Ball if he could find a responsible organization which would be interested, we might be able to handle the matter through subletting."

PERSONAL LETTERS

Brown told the committee that he had advised his secretary to "use his own judgment" in the retention or disposition of Brown's personal correspondence at the time Brown left office in March, 1933. He explained:

"Those were very, very busy days. I told him to save the papers he thought would be valuable and dispose of the rest."

Brown added that he neither helped to sort out the correspondence nor saw the contents of the boxes in which his personal effects were packed before the boxes were closed.

In January of this year, Brown said, he found some papers relating to air and ocean mail contracts while unpacking the boxes.

Kelly Air Mail Pay Bill Adopted By Committee

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The House Postoffice Committee today voted to establish a fixed price per pound for air mail, eliminating competitive bidding.

The figure, Chairman Mead said, will be fixed probably at around 2 mills per pound mile as against the 4.2 mills average for 1932. He declared:

"Under competitive bidding we are supposed to have had a number of companies getting together and agreeing who should make the lowest bid and what his bid should be.

"That brought us rates averaging 4.2 per pound-mile.

"Under the new system, the rate automatically would be around 2 mills per pound-mile with the best available carrier selected."

Representative Kelly (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, author of the bill now before the committee, said this change would result in a reduction from the $19,000,000 spent for air mail in 1932 to around $9,000,000.

Mead added:

"The committee probably will adopt an amendment permitting these contractors whose contracts have been canceled to come back in the government service under very severe stipulations and restrictions."

State Takes Over Sealing of Mines

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The sealing of abandoned mines which pollute several of the state's rivers has been taken over by the state department of health.

The work, which was started at the behest of organized sportsmen, is being done with federal funds. Work is being concentrated on mines that pollute the Youghiogheny, Monongahela, Kiskiminetas rivers and the west branch of the Susquehanna.

WAR ALSO makes queer bedfellows. The solemn British government and the arm-stretching Hitler are said to have joined forces "in a supreme effort for disarmament."

Hitler made his first visit to the British embassy, talked almost affectionately with Capt. Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal. It is expected that Mussolini may join with Germany and Britain, in which case France will be glad that she has been financing good-sized armies for Poland and other countries.

This country, if it is sufficiently silly, may have a chance to lend ten more billions to fighting Europeans and, of course, never get them back.

AIR CLUB HERE RAPS FARLEY

A resolution condemning Postmaster General James Farley for cancellation of air mail contracts was passed at a meeting of the Aero Club in the William Penn Hotel. The action followed an address by Attorney Jacob Shulgold, who charged that the cancellations is the climax of a plot to inject Democratic capital and patronage into commercial air lines.

In addition to condemning the Postmaster General, the club urged that carrying of the mails be taken from the Army jurisdiction and returned to the commercial carriers. Copies of the resolution were telegraphed to President Roosevelt, Postmaster Farley, United States Senators David A. Reed and James J. Davis, and Congressmen from the Pittsburgh district.

Unless definite action is taken at once by the Postoffice Department, the Pennsylvania Air Lines will be forced to furlough its personnel, William Austin, vice president, declared.

D. Barr Peat, pioneer air mail flier, in a brief address declared that commercial aviation has been retarded 10 years by the cancellation.

NRA HERE ASKS SUGGESTIONS

Plans to foster criticism and suggestions in connection with the operations of the NRA were made today by the Pittsburgh NRA committee in accordance with a request of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator.

William P. Witherow, chairman of the committee, will open the campaign to bring forth the criticisms and suggestions here with a radio address tonight.

Gen. Johnson has invited leading industrialists and businessmen of the country to a series of conferences in Washington in the next two weeks to discuss the NRA in detail. He advised district committees' to encourage local businessmen and industrialists to contribute opinions in the campaign.

WORKERS FILE NRA PROTEST

Resolutions protesting the tentative exemptions of hours and wages granted under NRA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, passed at a meeting of the Restaurant Workers' Local No. 115, Food Workers' Industrial Union, last night, were to be forwarded to the state hotel code authority in Harrisburg today.

The meeting, held in Moose Temple, was attended by 300 local hotel workers. Another resolu- was passed indorsing the present strike of the employes of the William Penn and Fort Pitt hotels.

A protest over the action of Local No. 237, Central Trades and Labor Council, was voiced and it was decided to demand the organization to "keep hands off the strike." Frank DeSando presided.

STEEL WORKERS START VOTE

Employes of the United States Steel Corporation will begin voting on revision of company union rules at the Clairton Steel Works and Furnaces and the Clairton By-Products Coke Works of the Carnegie Steel Company today.

The announcement was made in a leter to all employes, signed by F. F. Marquard, general manager of the company.

Among the proposed changes is a provision that any of the employes' representatives for collective bargaining under the NRA may be recalled by a two-thirds majority vote by his department or unit.

AIR MAIL TRIPS HALTED OVER MOUNTAINS

Alleghenies Block Army Pilots as Toll Mounts

Army mail fliers passed up the challenge of "Hell's Stretch" today as the toll among pilots and ships under government operation of the air mail mounted.

Another pilot, Norman Burnett, was down in Ohio with a broken leg. He bailed out near Fremont, O., in a blizzard early today.

The pilots and officials whose task it is to handle the service over the Pennsylvania mountain regions decided not to dare the perils of "Hell's Stretch" early today, and the air mail service in and out of Pittsburgh was curtailed.

Army pilots in other parts of the country, however, were shouldering the mail and carrying on, according to press dispatches.

One ship flew the Cleveland-Pittsburgh-Washington route and another flew from Pittsburgh to Columbus, but all other early morning flights here were canceled.

CLOUDS BLOCK FLIGHTS

Low-hanging clouds in "Hell's Stretch" east of Pittsburgh blocked all flights to and from the East.

Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, said in Washington yesterday that it was "legalized murder" to send the Army men over the mail routes without what he considered necessary training.

Lieut. C. P. Hollstein cracked up near Uniontown, and Lieut. James McCoy was forced down in Clearfield County by engine trouble yesterday. These were the first mountain country mishaps.

A protest against the assignment of the Army fliers to the task was voiced by the mother of Lieut. Durward L. Lowry, who was killed near Deshler, O., yesterday. Mrs. Dorothy Lowry Reisdorf, of Detroit, said the pilots should not have to fly on stormy nights over unfamiliar courses that commercial pilots took months to learn.

Another pilot was in a hospital at Crisfield, Md., having cracked up on the Newark-Richmond route last night. His condition was described as serious.

COMMERCIAL RECORD

A record of commercial air lines operating over the mountains to and from Pittsburgh disclosed that only one pilot has been killed and no passengers have suffered in their several years of operation. A Pennsylvania Air Lines pilot was killed in 1928.

C. Bedell Monro, vice president of Pennsylvania Air Lines, said delicate equipment and intensive training of commercial pilots were responsible for the commercial operators' success in conquering the mountains.

VESTA MINERS GET CHECKOFF

The United Mines Workers of America today signed an agreement with the Vesta Coal Company, subsidiary of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation. Although the company will adhere to the open shop policy of operation, the agreement put into effect the checkoff of union dues for miners who are union members.

At a recent election, miners of the Vesta Company chose union officials as representatives. According to the NRA coal code, the company is required to recignize them.

Similar negotiations are now pending with captive mine subsidiaries of the Republic Steel Corporation, Inland Steel Corporation, Allegheny Steel Corporation, and others.

BILL FOUGHT

Wall street offered interest rates of from 5 to 15 per cent and thes urplus of the large corporations flowed into the attractive stocks loaning market, according to testimony.

Loans of this nature would be barred under the Fletcher-Rayburn stock market bill, now being fought at the congressional hearing by the New York Stock Exchange.

Constitutionality of the Fletcher-Rayburn bill was questioned before the House Interstate Commerce Committee today by Thomas B. Gay, of Richmond, Va., counsel for the New York Stock Exchange.

While it is impossible to say flatly that a bill is invalid, Gay asserted, "there is great doubt of its constitutionality."

Reviewing Supreme Court decisions, he asserted that trading on stock exchanges has been held subject to complete state regulation because the business is essentially local.

WHITNEY TESTIFIES

In answer to questions of Representative Cooper (Rep.) of Ohio, Whitney said that the bill gave the Federal Trade Commission power to prevent the expansion of industries which sell stocks on the exchanges.

Whitney also maintained that the Federal Trade Commission would be given a vast power over industry by controlling methods of accounting for forcing publicity of corporation affairs.

Chairman Rayburn (Dem.) of Texas denied the later statement of Whitney and asserted that a uniform system of accounting for all corporations is necessary.

In previous testimony, Whitney had proposed a substitute program.

DISCUSS PLAN

Some members of the committee said Whitney's plan pointed the way to a compromise regulation bill, while others declared the Whitney paln is as sweeping as the Fletcher-Raybourn bill now before Congress. It calls for creation of a stock exchange co-ordinating authority to consist of seven members!

ELECTION CASE RESUMED

When the trial of five officials of the election board of the Seventeenth District, Fourth Ward, before Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker on a charge of falsifying and altering ballots cast for candidates for federal offices at the general election in November, 1932, was resumed this morning, indications were that the government will close its case this afternoon.

There was no session yesterday because of the holiday. Wednesday afternoon the prosecution called 64 residents of the district, who, with few exceptions, testified to having cast straight Democratic ballots. The defendants are James R. Shields, judge; James McTighe and Thomas A. Nordheim, inspectors, and Thomas Holleran and John J. Whalen, clerks.

The next election case is scheduled to begin Monday. It involves seven defendants. Six are members of the election board of the Second District, Third Ward. They are Dewey Budwey, judge; Richard Burgundy and John J. Juliana, inspectors; Michael Cozza and Francis Haeck, clerks, of the board, and H. S. Mahfood.

Vet Bonus Pathway Cleared for House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The avenue to a House vote March 12 on payment of the veterans bonus stayed clear today with decision by the Ways and Means Committee against seeking to obstruct it.

The Ways and Means Committee could report the bill favorably or unfavorably to the House and force its advocates to petition it out of the Rules Committee and thereby delay a vote until probably too late for this session, as it did two years ago.

CLUES HUNTED IN RANCH SLAYING

Wife Held in Death Of Former Pittsburgher

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 23.—Police today were groping for a solution to the mysterious slaying Wednesday night of John J. Swinbank, Pittsburgh steel construction engineer, shot to death in his ranch house in an isolated cactus cluster four miles from Tucson.

Held pending action of the Coroner's jury this afternoon was his widow, Mrs. Lottie Eaton Swinbank, attractive brunette of 37, former member of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra and active in musical and cultural circles here. Her home formerly was in Erie, Pa.

CLAIMS SELF-DEFENSE

Claiming self-defense, she admitted the shooting to Sheriff office officials, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Outwardly calm when investigating officers arrived, she was reported to have answered them:

"If I did anything wrong it was in self-defense."

Questioned, too, were the couple's two daughters, Gladys May, 15, and Ada Marion, 13; and Albert McKinley, of Cleveland, a nephew of Mrs. Swinbank. Their testimony shed little light on the murder.

DOCTOR'S VERSION

News of the tragedy first reached police from Dr. C. E. Duvall, who told them that he believed the shooting occurred about 6:30 p. m. Wednesday. He said:

"I was called to the house by Mrs. Swinbank. When I arrived Swinbank was rational. I was in too much of a hurry to ask questions about how the accident happened. Swinbank did mutter something about not blaming his wife.

"I looked at the wounds and did not think they were serious, and after a short time I left. I returned to the house three hours later and found the wounded man in a serious condition and had him removed to a hospital in Tucson."

Five hours later, while Swinbank lay dying in the hospital the police were notified.

NO EYEWITNESSES

So far as could be learned, there were no eyewitnesses to the shooting.

The daughters told the Sheriff that they had gone outside the house shortly after 6 p. m. Gladys said:

"We were talking, when we heard shots and we rushed into the house and were horrified to see Daddy lying on the floor and mamma kneeling beside him."

To the investigators all denied that Mr. and Mrs. Swinbank had quarreled. They could advance no motive for the killing.

FATHER NOTIFIED HERE

John J. Swinbank, 45, slain in his winter home four miles from Tucson, Ariz., Wednesday night, had lived at the Swinbank apartments, 44 Wyoming avenue, Mt. Washington. First news of the slaying reached his father, John Swinbank, at the same address, yesterday from J. A. Wood, a friend of the family and neighbor of the dead man in Tucson. Wood telegraphed:

"Jack passed away this morning due to accident."

The elder Swinbank said that recently his son had been associated with Bliss & Co., an engineering concern, with headquarters in Salem, O. About a month ago with his family he went to Arizona for a winter vacation, intending to return to Pittsburgh in about three months. When he left he shipped his furniture back to Pittsburgh, intending to live in his father's apartment when he returned.

Besides his father in Pittsburgh, he leaves three sisters, Mrs. Albert Morton, who lives in her father's apartment; Mrs. James Shades, of 2725 Connecticut avenue, Dormont, and Mrs. William Hadley, of Plainfield, N. J.

4 Blame New Whisky For Rampage

Four young men in Morals Court today blamed new cheap whisky for a rampage Tuesday night which resulted in their being held for court today by Magistrate Howard B. McNutt.

Here's what police said they did:

Slugged a young man who tried to aid the aged one.

The four are Carl Jadlowic, 19, of 2521 Mulberry way; Edward Kwiatkowski, 24, of 153 Forty-third and One-Half street; Anthony Weslowski, 18, of 138 Forty-first street, and Stanley Ejzak, 18, a sailor on furlough, of 2307 Penn avenue.

They are being held charged with violating the state's firearms act, felonious assault and battery and highway robbery.

The men police say they slugged in Butler street, near Thirty-eighth street, are George Kunkle, 62, of 3612 Smallman street, and John Mowicki, 233, of 177 Thirty-eighth street.

Jadlowic and Weslowski admitted the attacks, but claimed Kwiatkowski and Ejzek did not participate.

ANOTHER HANGS SELF WHEN PLOT FAILS

Convictions of Three Seen as Doom of Racket Era

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The law, after three trials, has put the finger on Roger Touhy, one of the last and most notorious of the dry era desperadoes.

A jury convicted Touhy and two others early today for the abduction of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, and fixed the prison sentences of all three at 99 years. Those convicted with him were Albert Kator and Gustav Schaefer—lesser fellows in a once mighty combine against law and order.

Meanwhile, one of the amateurs—Charles W. Mayo—panicky and fearful of the law's move against the kidnaping business, joined in death two other abductors—Willie Sharkey, who hanged himself in St. Paul, and Verne Sankey, who "beat the rap" by suicide in his prison cell in the South Dakota State Penitentiary.

HANGS SELF IN CELL

Mayo hanged himself in a police station here yesterday. His crime was frustrated when his intended victim, E. P. Adler, newspaper publisher of Davenport, Ia., gamely fought off Mayo and John Lacy, in a loop hotel. Mayo chose to follow in the footsteps of Sharkey and Sankey. His companion awaits probable charges of attempted kidnaping and assault.

Sharkey took "the easy way out" rather than face trial for the $70,000 snatch of John Factor, the international speculator, for which crime his associates—Roger Touhy, Gustav Schaefer and Albert Kator—were convicted today.

Sankey preferred death to a life term in prison for the $60,000 abduction of Charles Boettcher II, wealthy Denver broker.

With today's verdict against Touhy and his pals, authorities said, the last of the gangs which during prohibition gave Chicago an unwelcome reputation as a capital of crime, has been destroyed. Only remnants of the "big shot" gangs remain, and their trail is kept constantly hot.

GANG CZARS' FATE

Al Capone, the original "No. 1 public enemy," is serving a 10-year federal prison sentence for tax law violation. Others of the considerable company of crime lords are either in prison or dead by the hands of gangsters—William (Three-Finger Jack) White, killer and racketeer, dead; James (Fur) Sammons, serving a life term as an habitual criminal, and Gus Winkler, who aspired to gang leadership on the North Side. Murray Humphreys, the present "No. 1" public enemy, is a fugitive from justice.

Touhy, Kator and Schaefer, in shackles, heard the "bad news" shortly after midnight when a Criminal Court jury, after six hours deliberation, returned its verdict. A previous trial ended in a jury disagreement. Before that, in St. Paul, Minn., Touhy was acquitted of a federal charge of kidnaping William Hamm, Jr.

The state had asked for the death penalty "or at least 99 years," and unless the sentence is made invalid by a new trial or a reversal by the Supreme Court the Touhy men will go to prison to remain for at least 33 years—the required time before they would be eligible for parole

Hearing on a motion for a new trial is set for Saturday.

The rain and snow storm yesterday over Tennessee is now off the New England coast (Boston, 29.48), while high pressure, central over the Canadian Northwest (Prince Albert, Sask., 30.60), overlies the plains and central valleys and another disturbance appears over the plateau this morning (Tonopah, Nev., 29.68). Weather is now generally fair throughout the country except that there are snow flurries in the southern lakes, and rains along the South Pacific coast and over the plateau. It is colder over the Canadian Northwest and the northern plains, the eastern and southern states, and warmer over the plateau and Southern Rocky Mountains. Temperatures are considerably below zero in the northern lakes, the northern plains and the Canadian Northwest.

River Conditions.

The Allegheny River is frozen its entire length. The Monongahela is open up to Lock No. 7, and frozen over above that point. Ice on the Allegheny River pools is from 12½ to 14½ inches thick and on the Monongahela River above No. 6, six to seven inches thick. Navigation on the Ohio River is closed except from Pittsburgh to Dam No. 6 and from Dam No. 8 to Wheeling. In the Huntington district the river is gorged for a distance of 13 miles from Powhatan to Proctor, in the Fourteenth and Fifteenth pools.

FRENCH SLAYER SOUGHT 'DEAD OR ALIVE'

Doumergue Spurs Hunt For Killer in Bank Scandal

PARIS, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Premier Doumergue called today for the capture, dead or alive, of the mysterious slayer of Judge Albert Prince, "the man who knew all" in the Stavisky banking scandal.

The government offered 100,000 francs (about $6,500) for the arrest and conviction of the slayer.

Belief grew in official circles today that the judge was murdered because he knew too much. Still police said they were baffled by conflicting tales of the killing.

Bound and mutilated, Judge Prince's body was found on a railway track near Dijon Wednesday. Nearby lay a bloody knife. His briefcase had been rifled.

He had been brutally slain just one day before he was to have testified in an investigation into the collapse of Serge Stavisky's pawnshop in which investors lost $40,00,000.

"Inside information" was said to be in Prince's possession. For one thing, he was present back in 1926 when Stavisky was arrested in connection with an earlier promotion. Later, he was in a position to know details involving high officials, who obtained frequent adjournments of the Stavisky hearings.

MOVE TO CROWN OTTO GROWS

International News Service.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—The movement to place 21-year-old Archduke Otto on the throne of Austria is gaining momentum, International News Service learned today.

The approval of the powers is now being sought.

While Great Britain and Italy are ready to give their consent, France has refused unless the Little Entente powers agree and negotiations to that end are now in progress.

Italy and Great Britain believe that with young Otto, son of the former Emperor Charles and Empress Zita, on the throne, the danger of Austrian union with Germany will be averted.

Belgian police today dropped the close surveillance of Otto's movements they have maintained for several days. The Archduke, who is living in exile near Brussels, gave assurances that he would not attempt any spectacular return to Vienna and would not in any event return without the consent of the powers.

Meanwhile, Otto is known to be in communication with Prince Starhemberg, Austrian Heimwehr leader. Starhemberg was reported to have been in Belgium several days ago.

BRITAIN AIDING DIVORCE FIGHT

The British government today became interested in the efforts of J. W. Barker, engineering firm employe and British subject, to obtain a divorce from his wife in England.

Attorney Arthur M. Scully, representing the wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Barker, of Lythan-on-Sea, Lancashire, told Judge W. H. McNaugher he had been requested by the British consul at Philadelphia to obtain redress in the case.

Barker, after filing a divorce suit here in 1932, obtained a divorce in Cindadeih, Mexico, last August 10, the court was informed. His counsel, William A. Walker, today asked that because Barker had obtained a divorce, the suit here be withdrawn. He formerly lived at 4215 Fifth avenue.

Opposing this move, Attorney Scully declared:

"That divorce is not worth the paper it is written on. The respondent was never notified of any such action. Too many British subects are coming over here and deserting their wives. This is not so much a question of alimony as of principle."

Judge McNaugher said the full bench would hear arguments March 3.

Voiler said he would return voluntarily if a reasonable bond is set by California authorities, otherwise he would fight extradition.

FASCIST TREND IN U. S. SEEN BY PEER

Lord Marley Here to Aid Victims of Hitlerism

President Roosevelt's cancellation of commercial air mail contracts was described as a trend toward Fascism by Lord Marley, vice chairman of the British House of Lords, today during a visit to Pittsburgh.

Saying, in an interview, the people of the United States have accepted the cancellation because President Roosevelt ordered it, the British peer added:

"That is preparation for a mentality that will accept the demolition of democracy and its replacement bby fascism.

"If this comes to America, it will be successful unless the various groups of all workers and classes settle their differences.

"If they don't settle their differences and co-operate, they will be smashed one after the other."

He said that "Nobody denies President Roosevelt is sincere and honest," but asserted the air mail contracts should have been canceled after an inquiry, and not before.

SPEAKS AT LUNCHEON

Lord Marley came here as chairman of the International Committee for the Relief of Victims of German Fascism and spoke at a luncheon meeting in Kaufmann's. He will speak at a mass meeting this evening in Taylor Allderdice High School.

Lord Marley said an "understanding" between Japan and Germany is a menace to peace in the United States.

In an interview, he said:

"Hitlerism has become a disastrous danger to all other countries. Japan and Germany have the same kind of government. There is an understanding between thoes two governments, and that statement still is true despite the Japanese ambassador's recent denial.

"The danger lies in the fact that Russia's boundary stretches from Japan to Germany, and thereby there is a possibility of a world war. I don't see how it would be possible for the United States to keep out of it."

PLEADS FOR AID

Lord Marley said 80 per cent of the people suffering in Germany are not Jews. He said from one to two thousand refugees were in the United States, and made a plea for aid from any persons willing to take refugees into their homes.

Money raised on his tour will be spent by the American Committee Against Fascist Oppression in Germany.

The Rev. Dr. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University, chairman; Samuel Harden Church, Dr. John G. Bowman and Leo G. Griffith, vice chairman; Rabbi Benedict Glazer, Sidney A. Teller, Edgar J. Kaufmann, State Senator Frank J. Harris, Dr. Ben G. Graham, Francis A. Keating and a representative of the Mayor's office.

KING'S MUSIC MASTER DIES

WORCESTER, England, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Sir Edward Elgar, British composer and master of the King's music since 1924, died today at 77 after a protracted illness which followed an operation last October.

Sir Edward, son of an organist and music shop keeper, who tried law and then gave it up for his first love, died without completing his long-awaited Third Symphony.

His most popular composition was the world renowned march, "With Pomp and Circumstance." It was written on the occasioon of the coronation of King George V. His death came on the day of another coronation—that of Leopold III, of Belgium.

Girl, 18, Punished Vanishes From Home

The Missing Persons Bureau today was asked to search for two girls who are missing from their homes.

John Furris, of 410 Forward avenue, reported his daughter, Julia Furris, 18, left home last Saturday after he chastised her for smoking cigarets and going on automobile rides with friends. Andrew Najbor, 44 South Thirty-second street, said his daughter, Betty, 17, disappeared in January and later wrote she was headed for Florida.

Infant Prince Bored by Pomp At Coronation

BRUSSELS, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—The brilliant royal pomp and pageantry which attended today's joyous ceremonies enthroning Leopold III as King of the Belgians may be all very well for adults, but it proved extremely boring to the nation's new Crown Prince, aged 3.

All the world looked to Brussels as Leopold was made King, an event, incidentally, which automatically made little Prince Baudouin Albert heir to Belgium's throne.

While the brilliant assemblage watched in hushed silence as Leopold mounted the throne, the child Prince Baudouin blurted out a loud question to his mother:

"Mamma, what is papa doing up there?"

BRUSSELS, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The somewhat boisterous little Prince Baudouin Albert Axel Marie Gustave, who himself is destined to wear the crown some day, enjoyed his father's enthronement in his own way.

The baby crown prince did not contribute to the solemnity of the occasion, but laughed continually, pointing to the splendid uniforms of the guests and was especially interested in the Archbishop of Malines and other bishops in their scarlet robes.

He was a handful for his mother, for there were no nursemaids at the enthronement. The Queen often had to caution him to keep quiet and, several times, took him on her lap.

QUEEN ASTRID ESCAPES FALL

BRUSSELS, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—At the conclusion of the enthronement ceremonies today which made Leopold III the fourth King of the Belgians, the new Queen Astrid stumbled and almost fell as she started down the great stairway when leaving parliament.

The Queen, who is expecting her third child, suddenly turned pale and almost dropped to her knees. An aide-de-camp steadied her.

Queen Astrid recovered quickly and walked to the carriage in which the party was driven to Laeken Castle.

PLAN MEMORIAL FOR DEAD KING

A memorial service for King Albert of the Belgians, to be held in St. Paul's Cathedral, probably next week, was being planned today by the Belgian Consulate.

Raymond J. Dereume, consul, representing the various Belgian societies of this district sent a cablegram of condolence to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Leopold. An order for a floral tribute also was dispatched to Brussels.

When the Prince assumed the throne of Belgium today, as King Leopold III, he received a message from the consulate expressing felicitations and wishes for a successful reign.

Leopold Takes Oath At Pageant in Brussels

enough to satisfy the most romantic imaginations.

Leopold came from the palace at Laeken, outside Brussels, after a joyous procession through the capital astride a beautiful white horse, a cheering populace acclaiming him on his way.

He was attired in the khaki uniform of a lieutenant general and wearing the ribbon of the Grand Cordon of the Order of Leopold.

Astrid, attended by her ladies-in-waiting, reached the palace along another gay route from Brussels palace, riding in a magnificent black and gold state carriage drawn by black horses.

The Dowager Queen Elizabeth did not attend. Exhausted by the ordeal of the funeral of Albert yesterday, she sent a lady-in-waiting with the following message:

"I am too full of emotion to come and cannot make another public appearance."

ENTHUSIASTIC CROWDS

All along the lines of both routes enthusiastic crowds were kept back by mounted policemen, wearing steel helmets and carrying rifles, especially alert to prevent Communist riots, which red leaders threatened yesterday in the Chamber of Deputies.

Astrid arrived first, with her two little children. On her right was the 3-year-old Prince Baudoin-Albert, now heir to the throne. On her left was the 6-year-old Princess of Josephine Charlotte.

Leopold was noticeably nervous as he rode up to the palace entrance on horseback. Those near him could see him breathing through his open mouth, apparently to keep down his excitement.

Inside the palace, Leopold became king by taking the following oath:

"I swear to observe the constitution and the laws of the Belgian people, and to maintain the national independence and integrity of the territory."

Belgium's constitution is unique in requiring this oath of its monarch. It is the oath which King Albert took in 1909, and upon which a few years later he based his heroic action in opposing the Kaiser's great German armies as they invaded the country to reach France.

Then, with pale and drawn face, King Leopold III, delivered his speech from the throne in firm tones.

He referred to the great loss he and the nation sustained in the sudden, tragic death of his father less than a week ago while scaling a mountain. He promised to follow the example set by his father and his two predecessors, Leopold I and Leopold II. The new King said:

"The Belgian dynasty is at the service of the nation. I always will be devoted to the interests of the Belgian people."

He thanked all nations represented at his father's funeral for sending their distinguished delegates.

The King's speech, which was read first in French and then in Flemish (Belgium has these two official languages), was received with deep approval by the senators and deputies.

Recitation of the speech in Flemish was a concession to Flemish leaders which King Albert failed to make, and portended the taking of more interest in Flemish affairs by the throne than in the past.

JUDGE CHARGES SOLES DEATH JURY

was misquoting the testimony. Coleman waved a fist within inches of Haggerty's face and warned him to desist from interruptions. Judge Patterson warned both to refrain.

During all this the defendant sat at counsel table, his eyes glued now on the attorney, now on the jury. Several friends of Soles in the spectators' seats seemed to be weeping, or near tears.

STATE, DEFENSE CLASH

Haggerty and Coleman first clashed when Coleman quoted Harry B. Lynch as testifying that his daughter, La Roux Soles, had said to him:

"No, dad, Bob didn't do it."

Haggerty, without rising, asked the court to instruct Coleman not to enlarge on the testimony. Haggerty added that Lynch had only testified:

"Bob didn't do it."

In his closing argument Coleman threw one charge after another at Prosecutor Haggerty for the manner in which he conducted the state's case. He scored Haggerty's method of cross-examining certain defense witnesses, he accused him of a "low-down trick."

SOLES WEARY

Coleman orated:

"Morbid love destroys virtue, leads to disaster."

Wearied and worried after 11 days of the most spectacular murder trial in years, Soles was restless—too restless to learn whether he was to go back to the jail, which has been his home since last October, or whether he could stride from the Courthouse a free man.

Following Coleman, Prosecutor Haggerty, his voice roaring, his big, red face flushed, was ready to ask that Bob Soles be punished for the death of lovely La Roux.

CASE NEARS JURY

Attorney O. K. Eaton, chief counsel for Soles, after a few words to the jury, relinquished the task of the closing argumen to his associate, Attorney Coleman.

How long will the jury deliberate? Who knows! One murder jury in Allegheny County, some 15 years ago, required 18 days to reach a verdict.

Nerves touchy after 11 tense days in court, counsel for both sides clashed as the last testimony was admitted.

Haggerty wanted to get into the record last-minute gun tests made with pigskin to contradict the defense theory of the shooting.

GRASPS DEATH GUN

Dr. J. W. McMeans, Coroner's physician, took the stand to support Davidson. Haggerty, grasping the death gun in the manner the defense contends La Roux did, asked:

"What effect would the shot have had on Mrs. Soles' hands?"

Eaton objected and Judge Patterson sustained the objection.

Haggerty complained:

"But, your honor, we didn't make these tests for fun. We made them to rebutt the testimony of Dr. Wadsworth, defense ballistic witness.

Haggerty then offered to repeat the tests, including firing the shots, in the courtroom, but Judge Patterson turned down the invitation.

VISIT SCENE OF TRAGEDY

Even without the gunfire exhibition the jury had an eventful day. They were taken not only to the District Attorney's office and the county detective bureau but to the smartly furnished Soles home in McKeesport's Jenny Lind street.

Here they were shown the bedroom where La Roux was shot, the bed on which the state charges she wrote the suicide note at her husband's direction—all this to give them a clearer insight into the testimony.

It was Haggerty's idea to show them the District Attorney's office and the rail in the detective bureau to which Soles was handcuffed for a half hour last October just before the signed confession. Haggerty sought to defeat the defense charges of third-degree by showing the jurors that these offices were not outfitted for such methods.

CROWDS AT COURT

While the jurors were in McKeesport yesterday the biggest, noisiest and most persistent crowd which has tried to get into the crowded courtroom fought with tipstaves in the corridors.

Park himself took the stand to deny any third degree treatment. He was followed by Mrs. E. L. Erhard, cousin by marriage of La Roux Soles. Mrs. Erhard told of receiving letters in which La Roux, far from being despondent to the point of contemplating suicide, wrote of the good times she was having in Miami.

Banker Named NRA Newspaper Code Boss

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—George D. Buckley was named yesterday as special assistant to NRA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson in charge of the newspaper and publishing divisions. He has been a vice president of the National City Bank since 1926.

He formerly was president of the Crowell Publishing Company. In 1923 William Randolph Hearst appointed him president and publisher of the Chicago Herald-Examiner. He resigned that post to come to New York with the National City Bank.

A Judge On Inspection

JUDGE FRANK P. PATTERSON . . . INSPECTING THE SOLES HOME

Soles' Guilt, Innocence Debated; Fate in Balance

Points in Evidence Public Ponders, Awaiting Verdict

Soles have had to shoot her?

A.—He came home after midnight, fairly drunk and, becoming enraged when his wife accused him of being out with another woman, grabbed a pistol from a drawer and fired.

Mrs. Hardy

Q.—But why should La Roux have then written the suicide note which both sides admit she did write?

A.—Because Soles suggested, after she was shot, that people would "talk" because, possibly, she loved him enough for this sacrifice or because she was afraid that, had she said otherwise, her indignant father would have attempted revenge.

'SUICIDE NOTE'

A.—On the answer to that question hinges perhaps the jury's verdict. The prosecution points out that, after all, La Roux lived—and was conscious—for 36 hours after being shot. The defense contends that La Roux wrote the note before she was shot.

Q.—Did Soles really retire to the bathroom and read the comic strips after his wife had been shot?

A.—In his two versions of the shootings, the one he gave the Coroner in which he contends suicide, and the confession he made to the District Attorney, Soles both times tells of going to the bathroom to read the paper. In the suicide version he explains that he thought his wife's moanings were from indigestion.

Mr. Martin

Q.—Does the defense admit that Soles was with Rose Hardy shortly before he returned home on the night of the shooting?

ABOUT THE JEWELS

A.—Rose Hardy herself (friendly to Soles, testified that Soles was in her apartment until shortly after 1 a. m.

Q.—What about La Roux's jewels which Bob Soles gave Rose Hardy shortly after his wife's death?

A.—Rose Hardy testified that the jewels were "junk," that Soles gave them to her for safekeeping.

Q.—Was the prosecution able to make William Sibley Martin change his story that he was friendly with La Roux Soles in Miami six months before she was shot?

A.—No.

Q.—Did Dr. Eugene Lowe, of Miami, produce any records of the numerous treatments he said he gave Martin and Mrs. Soles?

A.—No. He said La Roux asked him not to keep a record.

Q.—But isn't it true that La Roux cried out time and again, after she was shot, she had shot herself, that "Bob didn't do it?"

Mr. Haggerty

A.—Numerous witnesses testified she said just that.

Q.—Did the defense show whether Soles had been abused in hours of questioning preceding the confession?

A.—District Attorney Park testified that Soles had been handcuffed to a rail in the County Detective Bureau for a time, also that Soles had been fed shortly before he confessed.

Q.—Did Prosecutor Haggerty have any difficulty with his witnesses?

A.—Yes. Many of them were from McKeesport and naturally sympathetic to the highly respected Soles clan. Three of his witnesses Haggerty accused of changing their testimony or withholding from him valuable information.

Q.—Was Soles' mental condition involved?

A.—The defense itself brought out an opinion that Soles was a mental case when he signed the confession last October — four months after the shooting. But the defense, contending suicide, did not make an issue of what Soles' mental state was at the time of the shooting.

Q.—Did the defense show how long La Roux had contemplated suicide?

A.—The defense produced several witnesses who testified that Mrs. Soles had indicated the intent of self destruction months before she was shot.

PRINCE TO WED ACTRESS SOON

LONDON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Definite arrangements for the marriage of Prince Sigvard, of Sweden, and Fraulein Erika Patzek, of Germany, were completed here today.

When they walk in to the Caxton registry office, March 8 to make their vows, they will be greeted by W. J. Lickley, the same gray-haired smiling registrar who married Prince Lennart Bernadotte, Prince Sigvard's kinsman, and Mlle. Karin Nissvandt two years ago.

After being the center of interest for about 48 hours, the young couple set out today to enjoy themselves in at least a semi-private manner. The fondness of the blonde movie actress for automobiles led to a long motor trip in the afternoon.

COURT UPHOLDS VALLEE PLEA

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Rudy Vallee, orchestra leader, today was granted a temporary injunction, restraining his wife, Fay Webb Vallee, from suing him in California or anywhere else than New York for divorce and maintenance.

Supreme Court Justice Barnard L. Shientag, who granted the injunction, said in his decision that Mrs. Vallee's California action was an obvious attempt to harass her husband.

In the California action, filed in Los Angeles, Mrs. Vallee sought $7,450 a month maintenance, as well as allowances for counsel fees and court costs. In a suit previously filed here she asked that a separation agreement, under which Vallee paid her $100 a week, be set aside and that the orchestra leader be restrained from attempting to divorce her in any state except New York.

DETECTIVES GUARD JURY AT SOLES DEATH SCENE

Surging crowds, the greatest to date, and two excursions for the jury marked yesterday's proceedings in the trial of Robert S. Soles.

As early as 9:30 a. m., when court convened, scores were standing in the third floor corridor of the Courthouse awaiting their turn to enter an already-packed courtroom. By mid-afternoon a crowd of approximately 500 had collected, precipitating a near-riot as tipstaffs and deputies battled to maintain order. Repeatedly the crowd stormed the courtroom door, and once broke through, filling the trial chamber to capacity.

* * *

Taking spectators and even principals by surprise, the jury's anticipated, and twice-postponed, visit to the scene of the shooting, the Soles home in McKeesport, was staged immediately after the noon recess. The six men and six women were spirited into a bus directly from the Pittsburgher Hotel after having lunch in a private dining room.

Throughout the jury's absence, about 2¼ hours, spectators clung to their seats, awaiting resumption of the proceedings. Likewise, those occupying standing space in the room remained, loath to surrender their posts.

Accompanying the jury on its visit were Judge Frank P. Patterson, Defense Attorneys Oliver K. Eaton and William H. Coleman, Attorney William Dunn, of Miami, Fla., and County Detective Peter Connors. In addition, 15 county detectives were assigned to protect the jury from the throngs of curious which had gathered at the McKeesport residence.

Prosecutor John Haggerty remained in his office to work on his final argument, and Soles spent the time with deputies and his brothers in the adjoining courtroom, No. 5.

* * *

Earlier in the day, preceding the noon recess, the jury was taken to the County Detective Bureau to view the "rail" to which Soles was handcuffed prior to his "confession." Shortly afterward Prosecutor Haggerty asked for an extended noon recess in order to make a test with the fatal gun in the county ballistics laboratory.

* * *

Pow-wow in pantomime . . . Prosecutor Haggerty, District Attorney Andrew T. Park and Defense Attorneys Eaton and Coleman talking things over with Judge Paterson at the bench prior to the jury's two excursions:

Haggerty takes a look at the spectators; Park starts talking; Eaton interrupts, shaking his head; Park points to Haggerty, who nods vehemently in the affirmative and starts talking.

Eaton interrupts and then all four talk and nod at once while Judge Patterson looks from one to another. Finally, the first audible words:

* * *

Reference to the arrival of a baby girl instead of the hoped-for "John, Jr.," to "Odessa and John" in a letter written to the couple by LaRoux Soles evoked a broad smile from the defendant. The baby, of whom LaRoux had said, "It's too bad John turned out to be a girl but I'm sure you'll love her just as much," died little over a week before Mrs. Soles was fatally shot.

North Braddock Man Injured by Trolley

Francis Callaghan, 31, of 1564 Electric avenue, North Braddock, is in a serious condition in the Braddock General Hospital suffering a fractured skull received when he was struck by a street car in Linden avenue, East Pittsburgh, early today.

France Launches Huge Plane Program

PARIS, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—France today announced plans for a vast three-year aviation program, to cost approximately 65 million dollars.

Gen. Victor Denain, Minister of Air, told the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies that French military aviation was in an "extremely difficult" situation.

Baby Feeds Poison To Sister for Candy

BOSTON.—(INS.)—Myra Thal, 22-month-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Thal, of Dorchester, picked up some poison tablets, and, thinking they were candy, fed one to her 3½-month-old sister, Sheila L. Thal, sending her to the hospital in a serious condition. Sheila was found unconscious in her crib by her parents.

The Schenley Morning Musicale yesterday presented Sari DeRoy, soprano, and Mary Redmond, violinist, in a program of rather brilliant music. They are both popular ladies and the audience was consequently larger than usual.

Mr. Lissfelt

Miss Redmond has great repose in her music. She plays with an even tone, nice intonation, and while her music does not bespeak great emotional background, it is pleasantly right. Broad phrasing marked her classic Nardini Sonata and there was much delicacy in both the Debussy "En Bateau" and D'Ambrosio's "Sonnet Allegro." As encore she played Samartini's "Canto Amoroso."

Mrs. DeRoy, has one of the most genuinely dramatic voices hereabouts—a large range and full-toned from top to bottom. That she knows much of technical calisthenics for her voice was assured by her secure pianissino tones in her highest registers, and that in spite of obvious nervousness. High C's are play for her.

She is growing musically and did some excellent singing during her English group. She too will have to learn more of the classics, for may I ask her where she learned to make the Mozart "Alleluja" so coy?

HAGGERTY ASSAILS SOLES AS 'SKUNK'; DEFENSE PLEADS IN TEARS

Before Defense Counsel W. H. Coleman took up his speech Attorney Eaton spoke a few words, merely thanking the jury for its attention during the trial. Coleman continually referred to the defendant as Capt. Robert S. Soles. He declared:

"I have a powerful plea, a plea more powerful than I could make, the plea of La Roux Soles, who said, 'No, dad, Bob didn't do it.'"

Prosecutor John Haggerty, without rising, spoke up:

"Your Honor, I ask that counsel be confined to the testimony. All Mr. Lynch said was, 'Bob didn't do it.'"

DEFENSE STORMS

Coleman stormed. Waving his fist within a few inches of Haggerty's face, he swung around and addressed Judge Patterson:

"I'll have to ask you, Haggerty, to be more careful with me than you were with some of these witnesses on the stand."

Judge Patterson rose, tried to interrupt the combatants and finally warned them to contain themselves.

Coleman carried on:

"There was little left in life to justify La Roux Soles going on . . . And fortunately she had time to make her peace with God, time to say that she loved Capt. Bob Soles. And isn't it significant that it was only to Bob Soles she made known her love?

"You must accept her pronouncement as true. She has absolved this defendant."

He called attention that any defendant is presumed innocent, and the presumption as to Soles, until "you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt."

COURT INTERCEDES

Attorney Coleman picked up the Coroner's certificate and waved it in the air, referring to it as a verdict. Judge Patterson rose from his seat and strode back and forth. Haggerty voiced an objection. The court interceded and warned Coleman, who turned back to the jury and declared:

'This verdict of the Coroner is prima facie evidence of La Roux Soles' suicide. That's as far as the court will allow me to go."

Then, abruptly, he turned to the drama in the Soles household preceding the shooting. He said:

COLEMAN IN TEARS

He picked up the Martin letter. He pictured the scene in the Soles home when La Roux carried that letter to her father and painted the defendant as the forgiving husband who carried her, weeping, into his bedchamber and there, from her own lips, heard her confession. Tears rolled down the attorney's cheeks as he made his plea. His voice rose to a scream. He crouched tense before the jury box, then suddenly sprang across the foot of the counsel table and pointing dramatically to the unperturbed Soles, cried:

"The commonwealth tells you that this man is a murderer. No, he's not! He ought not to be here!"

He recalled La Roux' words to her father, to Dr. Jordan, the nurses, and the police at the hospital and to Minnie Buckweitz, Soles' secretary—words that he declared "absolved" Bob Soles. He pointed out the difference in the testimony of Miss Buckweitz and Sarah Jane Crossen, who refuted Minnie's testimony that she had stood at the head of the bed when La Roux whispered to her, "I made a good job of it."

He told the jury:

"You as jurors must use your experience in life to make your decision between these two witnesses."

TESTIMONY RECALLED

Coleman recalled the testimony of Alice Brown, nurse who attended Mrs. Soles in the McKeesport Hospital. Miss Brown had quoted Soles as declaring, "Let her die."

Coleman exhibited one of the type of needles which had been injected into La Roux's body as part of the treatment.

Then weeping, feet stamping, his voice crying out to the ceiling, he declared:

"Yet Miss Brown, who lived in the Soles home for two years, said these harsh words.

RIDICULES STATE

By way of illustrating this point Coleman shook a finger at the empty witness chair. Then, the Soles gun in hand, he ridiculed Haggerty's performance with the pistol, when the prosecutor, during the trial, tried to show that the gun could not be fired in the manner contended by the defense. Coleman charged:

"That was a lowdown trick, unworthy of him."

Coleman went on:

"Morbid love destroys virtue, leads to disaster, leads to physical illness.

"Bob Soles may have been drinking (on the fatal night), may have had too much. I don't know. But Bob Soles, after the shock of finding his wife shot, was not responsible for anything he did that night."

Joseph Sloss, County Detective Teletype operator said:

"We put him on the rail."

"On the rail, ladies and gentlemen of the jury——on the rail, or on the wrack, which? For what purpose did they put him on the rail—for what purpose do they have it, except to torture prisoners?

"This confession is worth nothing — absolutely nothing."

Then, one by one, he reviewed the testimony of the witnesses who heard La Roux say she shot herself, turning finally to assail Attorney William J. Dunn, counsel for La Roux's father, and said:

"In all my life I never heard of a private prosecutor sitting in with the District Attorney before."

'THE OTHER MAN'

Of the "other man" in the Soles case, William Sibley Martin, Coleman said:

"I don't care what the district attorney calls him. Bob called him a skunk and the district attorney can call him anything he chooses, and I'll agree with him, but please remember he came here to tell the truth to save a man on trial for his life."

Closing firmly, Coleman pictured the defendant standing in court answering how he would be tried. He said:

"See him standing straight and looking straight at you and answering 'By God and my country.' Ladies and gentlemen, you are his country—that same country which called and Capt. Robert Soles heeded that call when he was needed. Take him with you into the jury room and listen . . . you will hear from far back in the spirit world . . . that voice of La Roux Soles . . . 'Bob didn't do it, I did it myself.'"

The pleading lawyer reminded the jury of the law as applied to circumstantial evidence. He said:

ONE ABOUT SALESMEN

Then he told the jury stories. He told the one about the traveling men driving along the road who picked up a stranger—a hitchhiker. He missed his watch, accused the stranger and put him out. When he got home his wife told him he had left his watch on the dresser.

There was another about the plumber and the missing $10 bill. The woman of the house accused the plumber. They searched for it and found it in the wastebasket where it had been blown by the wind. The plumber had two $10 bills in his pocket.

Finally, he told that tragic one of the English father who paid with his life on the gallows for the slaying of his young daughter. The last witness for the Crown testified, Coleman related, that he had seen the father pull out a dagger from his daughter's lifeless body. Several years later a robber, about to die, confessed to the killing and told how he had left just as the father came in and had paused long enough to see the father pull out the dagger which he (the robber) had plunged into the girl's breast.

COURSE OF BULLET

Then he pointed to the course taken by the bullet, and said:

"The bullet was rising. Can the Commonwealth tell you what happened. I can tell you how it could have happened. La Roux Soles could have sat on the arm of that chair and fired that bullet into her body. It went through, rising, and into the wall behind her. That bullet was rising."

And then, dramatically, he illustrated before the jury box how a person shot might have grabbed the wound and reeling, made for the bed on which Soles contends he found her dying.

When he came to the confession, he stormed:

"They call it a confession. I don't know what you call it. Certainly it's no confession. Read it and re-read it."

Coleman read it, coming finally to where Soles is supposed to have quoted a "nasty remark" made by La Roux. Coleman wouldn't read it, telling the jury they oould read it themselves.

MYSTERY AUTO

Then, touching for a moment on the mystery automobile and Tom Lindberg's visit to the house the night of the shooting, Coleman told the jury:

"Bob always thought someone else was at the house that night. We never knew Tom Lindberg was at the house until we heard it from his lips on the witness stand. What was he there for at 11:30 at night? He said he came to take Mr. Lynch out for a ride—at 11:30?

"And then the unlighted car a few minutes after midnight . . . a man coming out of the Soles home . . . we don't know who he was."

Abruptly Coleman went back to an attack on the "confession." He pictured the days of old when prisoners were hung up in the torture wrack to make them confess.

'ON THE RAIL'

Then in shrill voice, he denounced

Haggerty Assails Soles As 'Skunk' in Closing Case

Haggerty's voice roared, his naturally red face flushed deeper as he strode up and down in front of the jury box. He was first interrupted by Eaton when he declared:

"The name Soles and the money and everything else mean nothing in this Criminal Court. Everyone is on the same footing. Our job is not to get scared at a million-dollar defense, nor at high-powered words, our . . ."

Eaton rose to his feet, asked the court to instruct the shorthand reporter to take down Haggerty's speech.

Haggerty retorted by asking Eaton whether he wanted a juror withdrawn—a legal move which would have ended the trial. There was no answer.

"La Roux Soles' lips are sealed. Anything can be said against one who is dead. We have to listen to a woman being vilified, called tainted. And they want to call her a suicide.

Eaton entered a second objection to an interpretation of the law by Haggerty. Judge Patterson instructed the jury to ignore all interpretations of the law until furnished by the bench. Sarcastically Haggerty asked Eaton whether he planned to do what Coleman complained "of me doing."

FATHER BITES LIPS

"The very facts they brought out to show that La Roux Soles committed suicide reacted against them. They ought to be ashamed of themselves. They blackened her enough.

"There sits an old gray-haired man (H. B. Lynch)—good old Irishman. He wants the world to say that La Roux Soles did not go down in death a suicide.

(Mr. Lynch, seated in the first row, bit his lips to keep back the tears.)

"Capt. Robert Soles—straight from Rose Hardy's apartment . . . You can draw your own conclusions as to the relations between this defendant and Rose Hardy.

'MORE THAN DOLLARS'

"This jewelry box—to Soles and Mrs. Rose Hardy it was junk. But to La Roux Soles and Mr. Lynch, you couldn't buy these jewels. Jewels are more than dollars. Mr. Lynch had given them to his wife and his wife had given them to La Roux Soles.

"The most despicable thing I ever heard of was bringing this William Sibley Martin from Florida. But even he never testified he had relations with La Roux Soles. Soles called Martin a skunk, but who was a skunk that came on the witness stand and bared his wife's relations? He told you his wife had a weak moment.

"If Mrs. La Roux Soles ever had an illness, where do you think she got it?"

CALLS SOLES 'SKUNK'

Haggerty then read the letter Martin wrote, asking La Roux Soles for $40 to go to a hospital. He advised the jury to "throw the letter out the window—the letter and the blackmail talk."

The prosecutor then described Soles as "a skunk of a husband who would blacken his wife's reputation to escape."

CHARGES PERJURY

Haggerty turned his guns on witnesses for the defense. He declared:

"Have you ever seen so much perjury in your life as when those Seaside hotel witnesses were on the stand?"

The prosecutor perspired freely. His collar was wilted and the sweat poured down his face and onto his coat collar. With a crumpled handkerchief in his hand, he wiped his steaming brow every now and then. He called to mind the oath of witnesses and the oath of jurors. He said:

"You have taken your oath to God. These witnesses have taken their oath to God. They have brought God into the witness chair with them . . . . . and then, they lie."

Shifting suddenly to the defendant, sitting across the counsel table with a smug smile on his lips, he shouted:

"He never believed La Roux Soles comimtted suicide before he was arrested. He said he'd spend every dollar he had to find the man who killed her. Yet, he never spent a cent.

"He never did a thing about it . . . and now he's like you to believe it's suicide."

Haggerty dropped his voice to a whisper. He leaned across the jury and told the six men and six women sitting in judgment on the ex-Army captain that he first tried to blame it on Lynch; then on Lindberg and finally on a mysterious man in an automobile.

WAVES SUICIDE NOTE

He said:

"Who that person is I don't know. He doesn't know either. And I don't know what their defense is either.

"Here's the suicide note they're trying to make you believe La Roux wrote—a woman wha liked to write letters. You've read them here and you'll read them again when you go out to deliberate."

He waved the note, continuing:

His voice turned soft again and he said:

"I can see La Roux Soles in spirit flying around in this room; I can see the spirit of their little child flying around in thi sroom. I can hear their spirit voices crying out in protest."

Then he turned to the coroner's certificate, declaring it was not a verdict — merely the findings of the coroner on affidavits made—in this case—by Robert Soles, Dr. Jordan and Dr. Heisey. Soles, he said, did not tell in his affidavit that he found the gun and the note and Haggerty demanded to know why.

PRODUCES DEATH GUN

He termed the many-sided defense of Soles an effort "to get you away from what you saw up in that room (Soles' bedroom) yesterday."

He produced the death gun. He said:

"This is the revolver that killed La Roux Soles and the commonwealth claims that Bob Soles held it."

He referred briefly to expert testimony offered by the defense as to the manner in which La Roux held the gun in killing herself. He seld it to his own body in that same manner and sair:

"Anybody with horse sent would know that if you held a gun like that your hand would be terribly turned. And they want you to believe that La Roux Soles, weighing only 112 pounds—a woman they want you to believe that was hardly able to breathe, amemic and a neurotic, pulled this trigger and with her hand burning like that, still held on to the revolver and walked over to the bed like this."

HAGGERTY ACTS SCENE

With his hand over his breast, Haggerty reproduced in caricature the motions of Attorney Coleman, who had previously demonstrated the dramatic death struggle of La Roux.

Haggerty called for the mattress from La Roux's bed. He spread it before the jury box and demanded:

"This is an indusputable fact. There is no hole in the mattress. Therefore she did not shoot herself in bed.

"Then how could she have shot herself? I want to show you it was a physical impossibility that this woman committed suicide."

Haggerty scored the investigation made of La Roux's death by Lieut. Eckles and Patrolman Connelly, of McKeesport. He snorted:

"For the investigation they made they should both be fired."

the Union Pacific's all-aluminum stream-lined train, rolled into Pittsburgh a few days ago, the first thing the dining car steward did was to place a call for McCanns to stock the larder. "McCanns is the best place in Pittsburgh to buy food supplies," he remarked to the salesman taking the order. All of which reminds us that McCanns supplies many private cars with food when they stop at Pittsburgh. Folks who know good food and demand the best for their money naturally look to McCanns to supply their needs.

SOLES DEFENSE, STATE CLOSE PLEAS

McKeesport—they're from McKesport, remember. And between the time I talked with them and the time some of them went onto the stand somebody had them change their their stories.

"And Miss Buchweiz—(Soles' secretary)—Minnie was on the spot. She even went further than the defendant. She said La Roux whispered to her, 'Minnie, I did a good job this time.' Minnie, who invested Mr. Lynch's money in a mortgage on the house she lives in —Minnie, who was praised by La Roux Soles — Minnie, who who turned against La Roux Soles."

CHAMPIONS PARK'S WORD

Haggerty read Soles' signed confession and emphasized that it was simply the word of District Attorney Park, who took the confession, against Soles, who has branded it a lack of lies. Haggerty carried on:

"They're picking on a pretty big man when they pick on District Attorney Park. They're staking the word of this defendant against the word of Mr. Park.

"He'll not fool God. God knows what happened there that morning. He's trying to fool you . . .

"Even though a man is prominent, even if Andy Mellon or even Franklin Delano Roosevelt, if a man is prominent, I can't murder my wife."

Haggerty closed with:

"If you believe this confession and bring in a verdict of acquittal, then they might as well tear down this Courthouse stone by stone, grind it to dust and scatter it to the winds. . . . May God send you divine inspiration."

DR. WYNEKOOP'S STORY ASSAILED

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The state today resumed the trial of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop with an attempt to prove a conflict in the stories told by the 63-year-old defendant on the night that the body of her daughter-in-law, Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, was discovered on an operating table in the Wynekoop mansion.

Dr. Wynekoop, whose illness brought a mistrial last month, declared that the Washington Birthday recess had refreshed her to an extent, but that she "felt weak as a cat."

Sergt. Arthur R. March, first state witness, testified that upon his arrival at the operating room the body of Rheta was covered with a sheet and blanket, leaving only the head and feet visible.

Prosecutor Dougherty announced in his opening statement that he would show that Dr. Wynekoop previously had told Enid Hennessey, school teacher boarder in the Wynekoop home, that Rheta had been shot and was dead, but that she later told the undertaker that she did not know what had happened to the girl.

HOUSES RAZED, 5 MEN HELD

Five Homestead men were held today in the County Jail on a charge of destroying three unoccupied houses in City Farm Lane, Homestead, for firewood.

They were committed to jail by Justice of the Peace J. Clyde Miller, of Homestead, last night, after Patrolman Jacob Schwartz testified he arrested the men as they carried away timbers from one of the houses. They were George Hiden, 54, of 407 Dixon street; Robert Robertson, 33, Negro, 528 Fifth avenue; Ernest Rease, Negro, of Heisel street, and Samson Medoch, 33, Negro, of 408 City Farm Lane, all of Homestead, and Claude Nichols, 56, Negro, of 711 Eighth avenue, Munhall.

HIT-RUN DRIVER GETS 5 YEARS

Admitting he was the hit-run driver who killed a woman in Aspinwall three months ago, Frank Skurski, 17, of -64 Forty-third street, pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter and lesser charges in court today.

He was sentenced by Judge W. Heber Dithrich to not less than five years in Huntingdon reformatory.

Skurski was driving a car he confessed having stolen from Dr. E. E. Mayer, Wendover Apartments, Hobart street, December 8 when he struck and fatally injured Mrs. Viola Cook, 52, of 121 Twenty-third street, Sharpsburg. Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Cecelia Cook, 28, was injured at the same time.

The youth was on parole, police said. Today in addition to the manslaughter charge, he pleaded guilty to aggravated assault and battery, stealing automobiles and carrying concealed weapons.

HIGHBALL DEATH EVIDENCE HIT

By WILLIAM G. GAUDET

International News Service.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Feb. 23.—An appendicitis operation which Dr. J. Preston Kennedy undertook to perform three days after he is alleged to have been given a poisoned whisky highball by Dr. Sara Ruth Dean, on trial for his murder, was brought to the fore today when an expert witness testified the surgeon would have not been able to attempt the task had he been suffering from mercurial poisoning.

This statement was made for the defense by Dr. John Martin, who declared that had Preston been poisoned the physical reactions would have been such as to make an attempt to operate out of the question.

Earlier Dr. George Baskerville, an associate of Dr. Kennedy, and a state witness, testified he was present when the surgeon began operating on Leslie Rogers, a 17-year-old boy, and that after the incision had been made, he noticed Preston's extreme nervousness, and told him to sit down while he, Baskerville, finished the operation.

Auto Engine Missing Thieves Blamed

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 23. — Pun no more about missing automobile engines. Mrs. Jefferson Wilcox attempted to start her car but found the engine was missing. Thieves had stolen it during the night while the machine was parked in the driveway of her yard, she reported.

EUGENIC BABY NEAR DEATH

Universal Service.

BOSTON, Feb. 23.—Roscoe Ails, 5, "perfect eugenic baby" of Kate Pullman, who startled the world by willingly becoming a mother out of wedlock, lay dangerously ill in Massachusettes General Hospital today while an operation on his brain to remove a bone splinter was delayed.

The child was brought from an Ayer (Mass.), hospital, where he was taken after an automobile accident in which his mother's vaudeville partner was killed and she herself was injured. He developed a fever on the way here and doctors feared to operate.

Kate Pullman became known as the "eugenic mother" when she defied convention by announcing she would have a "perfect child" by Roscoe Ails, her handsome six-foot vaudevile partner, without marriage.

Snow Blocks Roads, Closes Schools

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Snow falling today dimmed the hopes of many communities in New Hampshire that roads would be broken open to enable schools to reopen and permit resumption of normal activities.

From all sections, state offcials said, come reports of villages cut off from the main highways, of rural schools closed and of snow-bound farmers.

C. B. Galbreath, Ohio Historian, Dies at 75

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Charles Burleigh Galbreath, historian and editor, died early today of pneumonia. He would have observed his seventy-sixth birthday Sunday. He had been ill six days.

He was Ohio state librarian for 20 years and since 1920 had been secretary of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society and editor of its publications.

MOWLS SEEKING AKRON JOB

Reports that J. Nelson Mowls was to resign as supervising principal of Bellevue schools apparently were confirmed today by an Associated Press dispatch from Akron, O., stating he had applied for the job of superintendent of schools of that city.

Members of the Bellevue School Board said they knew nothing of his indicated intention to resign. Mowls could not be reached.

THEATER BLAST KILLS TWO

YONKERS, N. Y. Feb. 23.—(AP.)—An explosion in the cellar of the Proctor theater shortly before noon today killed two men and injured 12 persons.

One of the dead was Patrick Whalin, a motorcycle patrolman, who was burned to death attempting to rescue electrical engineers working in the basement. The other was Carl Gruber, one of the electrical workers.

No show was on at the time.

Origin of the blast was not determined, but an early theory blamed illuminating gas or sewer gas backed up into the cellar by snow and ice, blocking sewer vents and mains.

The explosion was so severe that it ripped out the lobby of the theater, blew the lobby of the both the theater and an adjoining dress shop, wrecked an automobile parked at the curbing and shattered the pavement of sidewalk and street before the building.

SANDINO DEATH PERILS PEACE IN NICARAGUA

International News Service.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 23.—All Nicaragua was under a state of siege today, with individual constitutional guarantees suspended by act of Congress, as the government feared an attempted revolt of vengeance by followers of the assassinated bandit-patriot, Gen. Augusto Cesar Sandino.

Gen. Sandino, who for five years eluded American Marine forces who sought his capture, was slain Wednesday night by native national guardsmen, being seized and, with two of his aides, lined up and mowed down by machine-gun fire.

Another aide and a small boy servant were killed shortly afterward as the guardsmen proceeded to the homes of Sandino leaders. Two whom they sought escaped.

Gen. Anastacio Somoza, head of the National Guard, declared his organization remained loyal to President Juan B. Sacasa, with whom Gen. Sandino was on friendly terms following a peace a year ago.

The assassinations were denounced by President Sacasa as an outrage committed against explicit orders to protect Sandino and his men. The bandit leader had been on hostile terms with the guard, which he termed an "American heritage" and had demanded reforms along constitutional lines.

Despite Gen. Somoza's declaration his men were loyal to the government, however, trouble was feared.

The assassination of Gen. Sandino came at a time when he and President Sacasa believed a final settlement regarding the Sandino forces was about to be effected. Sandino's men were ready to return to farming, "proving their peaceful desires," the only outstanding issue being the National guardsmen.

SOLDIER WINS RESCUE MEDAL

The highest peace-time military medal was awarded to Pvt. Joseph Fox, of Imperial, Pa., for the rescue of two Citizens Conservation Corps workers near Baltimore last week, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fox.

Pvt. Fox, 23, attached to Fort Hoyle, Md., with the Sixth Field Artillery, Battery D, plunged into the icy Gunpowder River to save two men clinging to an overturned skiff.

Pulling a rope, he swam more than 100 yards to the skiff. He tied the rope to the boat and his companions ashore pulled it in, with Fox and the two others hanging on it.

The medal was presented to Fox by Brig. Gen. Scott. The youth has been in the army seven years.

Mother Starts Term In 'Mercy Slaying'

MERCER, Pa., Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Mrs. Mary Zitnyar, 28-year-old mother who confessed to the "mercy slaying" of her invalid 2-year-old son, started a term of indefinite confinement at Muncy reformatory for women today.

NEWSBOY RALLY GREETED BY HEARST

DETROIT, Feb. 23.—At a victory banquet given the home delivery carriers of the Detroit Times in celebration of reaching the 100,000 home circulation mark, the following telegram from Mr. Hearst was read:

Friends and associates: We are celebrating an achievement. We are celebrating it together because we accomplished it together.

Our editors hope and believe that we made a good paper, but that would not have done us much good if we had not had an active, wideawake carrier force to sell and deliver it for us.

We know you put your heart and best thought into selling and distributing the paper but you might have not done it quite as well if the editors had not backed you up with a good product.

AIM ACCOMPLISHED

You folks set out to accomplish an object together and you accomplished it.

Now you are gratified at the achievement and I certainly am gratified and grateful to all concerned.

Most of you assembled here tonight are young. I certainly am not.

In fact it is getting so that Methusaleh has nothing on me. If I hang on a little while longer Methusaleh will have to lose the record he has held for a great many years.

So because of age and abundance of experience I may be allowed to preach a little to you who have your life ahead of you.

And I say that achievement is a great thing to make your life interesting and satisfying. It is not a labor, it is a joy.

The hope of achievement gives you an object and an occupation that intrigues you as you look ahead.

The actual achievement, in addition to the momentary satisfaction, gives you something to look back on with permanent pleasure.

NOT A CHORE

Therefore, consider achievement not as a chore, but as something to make your life pass pleasantly and profitably.

Make up your mind what you want to do and then go out and do it. Make up your mind. That is the thing.

It is astonishing what a facile and yet inflexible instrument the mind is.

It can be set in any directnon, but once securely and sincerely set it adheres to that purpose until it is achieved.

All you have to do is cultivate and care for the mind as you go along.

Read and observe. Feed and encourage the mind.

You would do that much for a good horse that was taking you somewhere you wanted to go.

Soon you will reach your destination and be ready for the next objective, the next adventure.

So endeth the first lesson.

I hope you have an enjoyable evening in spite of the sermon.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Cupid Runs Third In High School Topic Survey

READING, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Reading Senior High School students value "manners and etiquette for all occasions" above knowledge of "how to be popular," or "love."

Four-fifths of the student body listed the subjects in that order in a survey conducted by Miss Elsie M. Eidam, as a CWA project.

Fourth on the list of desirable knowledge, the compilation discloses, is "petting." Then came "proper dressing," the "use of cosmetics to suit personality" and "sex knowledge."

Politics, home management, "how to study" and psychology were at the bottom of the list.

JUGOSLAVS VIGILANT WHILE HOPING FOR PEACE

FOREIGN CHIEF DOUBTS WAR OUTBREAK

Editor's Note—Jugoslavia hopes for peace, but believes it necessary to prepare for war. H. R. Knickerbocker writes in the eleventh article of his series, "Will War Come?"

Foreign Minister Jeftitch, of Jugoslavia, tells the International News Service foreign correspondent that he does not believe any leader in Europe today is consciously working towards war or preparing definitely for it.

"The risk is too great. No one can tell how the war will come out," he declared.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.

BELGRADE, Feb. 23.—A peasant woman who had been married 100 years just died in a Serbian village not far from here, and left a widower 123 years old. The wife was 120 when she died.

The Serbs are a durable race.

Field Marshal Von Mackensen led overwhelming forces into tiny Serbia during the war and overran the country. Against the mighty German military machine the Serbs put up such gallant resistance that German officers declared:

"The Serbs are the best soldiers in Europe."

Serbs today say they lost 1,500,000 of their population of 6,000,000 in the war. To their Unknown Soldier they have erected a monument unique among the cenotaphs of Europe. Every other country has put their Unknown Hero in the center of the capital city and surrounded his remains with symbols of glory.

UNKNOWN SOLDIER

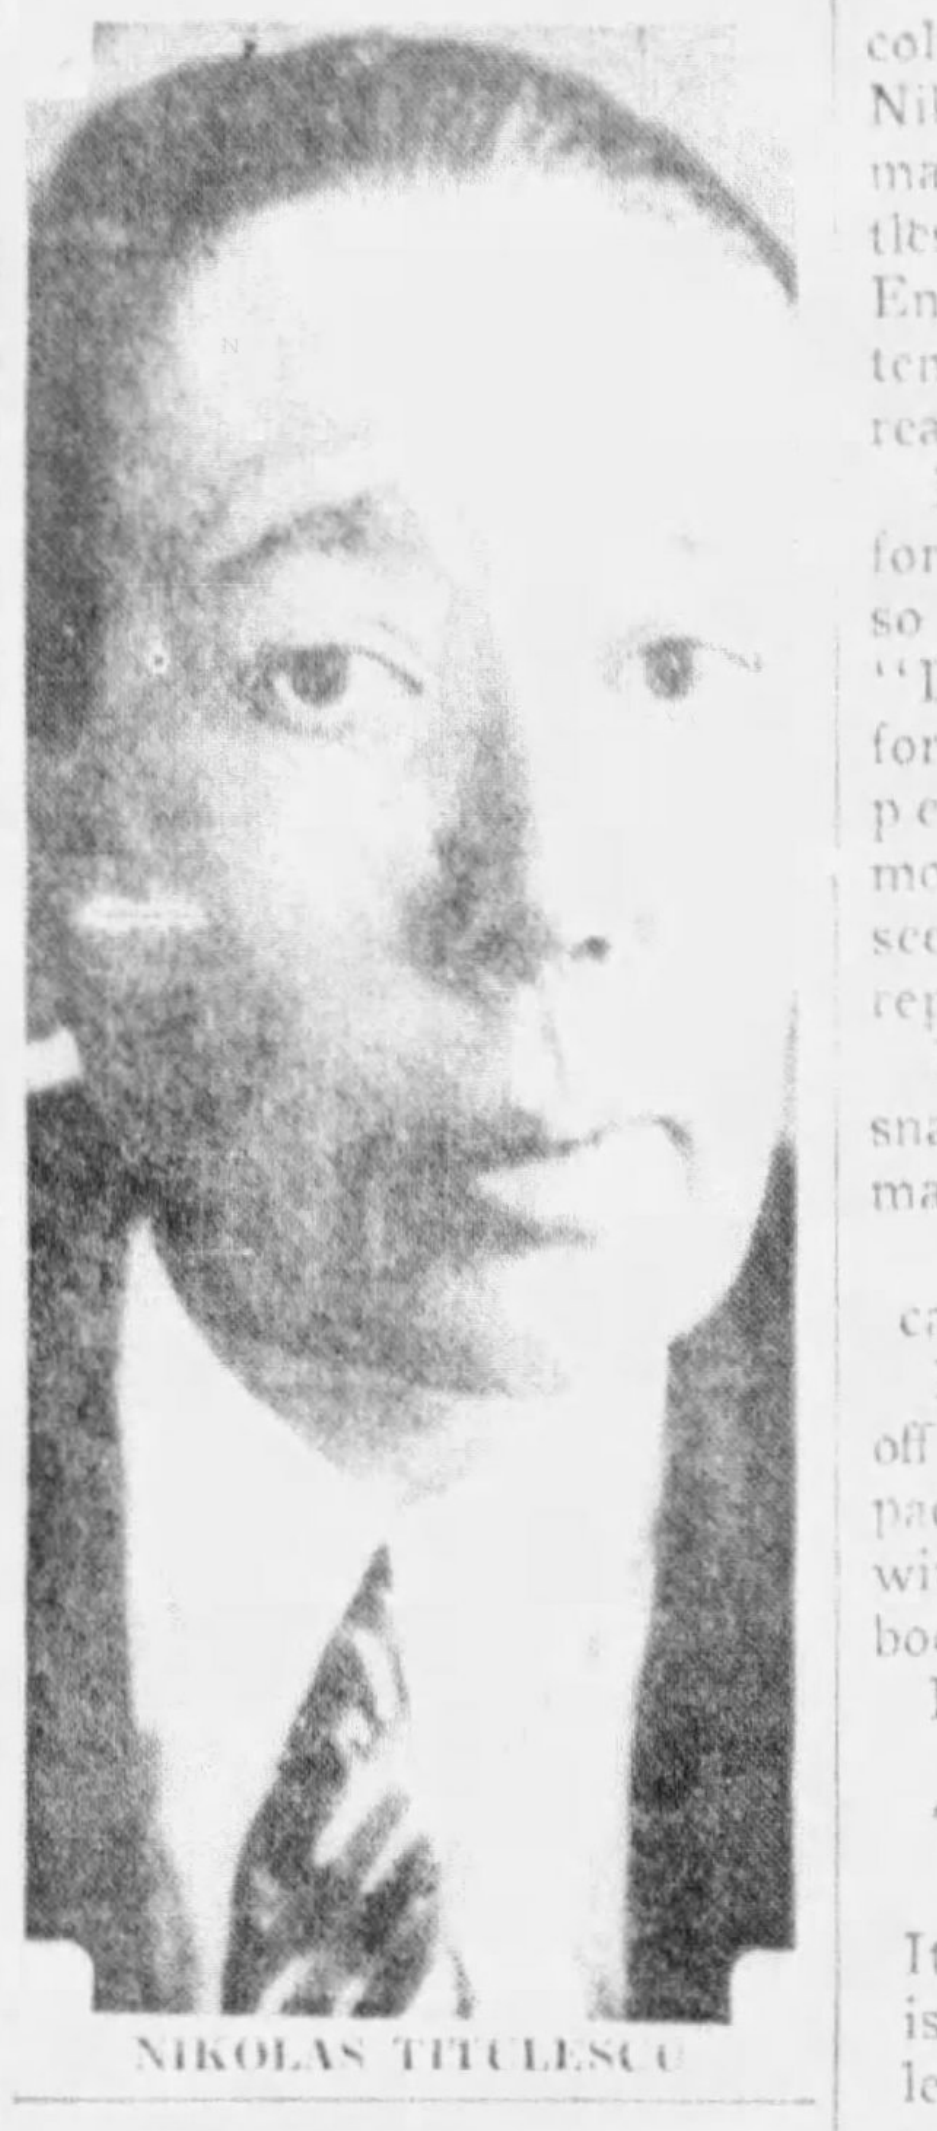
The Jugoslav Unknown Soldier lies atop a high hill, 15 miles out of Belgrade, beneath a pile of gray rough stones. From his resting place, Avalberg, we look out over the wide Serbian plain. In all the land there are 96,000 square miles, about as many as in the state of Colorado, and within the borders of Jugoslavia live 14,000,000 people, about as many as in the states of New York and Connecticut.

New York and Connecticut, with the same population as Jugoslavia, sent 556,000 recruits to the war. But from this wide Serbian plain, from its villages and the villages of all the nine banats of Jugoslavia, with no more population than New York and Connecticut, can come today 2,284,714 trained soldiers, who prefer hand-to-hand combat and would rather fight than talk about it.

Of all the states in Europe they are the most durable people, the toughest soldiers, and they can turn out the largest number of enthusiastic fighting men in proportion to their population.

That is why Jugoslavia is the most important military factor in the Balkans, and therefore so important for the investigation, "Will War Come in Europe?"

This and the fact that the Serbs have always seemed more able than any other nation to sniff the smell of coming battle from afar, and because they have always stood closest to the general staff of their big ally. They did so with Russia before the war. They do with France today. If anybody in Europe ought to know whether, how and when war is coming in Europe it ought to be the Jugoslavs.



NIKOLAS TITULESCU

JEFTITCH SILENT

Their Foreign Minister, M. Bogoljub Jeftitch, is a short, dark, solid man, a sparing speaker. He gives few interviews. He does not care at all about the international limelight.

His colleague, Foreign Minister Eduard Benes, of Czechoslovakia, deserves his reputation as shrewdest spokesman, and his other colleague, Foreign Minister Nikolas Titulescu, of Rumania, deserves his as subtlest mind in the Little Entente. M. Jeftitch is content with being the most realistic.

He thinks a long time before answering. He thought so long over the question, "Do you consider it possible for Europe to preserve the peace for the next 12 months?" that it almost seemed as though a negative reply could be expected.

Most other statesmen have snapped back with a diplomatic:

"Twelve months? How can you be so alarmist?"

Every second that ticked off while M. Jeftitch thought packed his shadowy study with more and more foreboding.

Finally the answer came:

"I think so."

Then another pause.

"I hope for much longer. It seems to me that there is no statesman and no leader in Europe who would take the responsibility for starting a war. That is, I do not believe that any leader in Europe today is consciously working toward a war, preparing definitely for it and with the desire to bring it about.

RISK TOO GREAT

"None of them considers war desirable. The risk is too great. No one can tell how the war would come out.

"Of course if any one nation were to become so strong, or feel itself so strong that it considered victory certain, the situation would be different."

"You mean Germany?"

"Well, Germany is in the central point in any discussion of the prospects of war and peace in Europe.

"But I do not believe that Hitler desires a war. It is plain that, now he has taken over the whole responsibility for the leadership of Germany and is himself bound to take the credit or the blame for what happens to his country, this responsibility must have a profoundly sobering effect upon any man. Hitler knows what war means and I do not believe that he desires it.

"But the question is not so much whether Hitler desires war—because I think we can take it for granted that he personally does not desire it and would not want it even if his country were completely rearmed. But the question is what will be the strength of the National Socialist movement. Will it be stronger than its leaders? Will the leaders be able to keep it in check?"

"But have we not had a parallel example in Italy?" I asked. "Isn't it true that Mussolini succeeded quite successfully in checking the warlike enthusiasm of his Fascists?"

"Yes, but the case of Italy is quite different. The Italian Fascist movement was one for the reorganization of the state in the first line, and it was a nationalist movement and second line. In Germay, on the other hand, the National Socialist movement was the first of all a nationalist movement and continues to be in the first line a nationalist movement.

PRECEDENTS CITED

"And nationalist movements, history shows us, have been most difficult to keep under control when they are equipped with an army that makes them confident of victory.

We recalled historical precedents, especially the position of Germany in 1914 when its people, confident in the strength of their mighty army, and imbued with a strong spirit of nationalism, could hardly have been persuaded by any leaders to give ground.

"Also," continued M. Jeftitch, "one must not forget that the Italian Fascist movement is a minority movement, while in Germany the Nationalist Socialists have the entire German people with them. And not only all the Germans inside Germany but outside Germany as well. That, of course, may be one of the chief dangers," he added significantly.

"In considering the possibility of war in the near future, many people consider Austria the most dangerous point. Do you believe that it will be possible for the present regime in Austria to persist much longer?"

"We certainly hope so," replied M. Jeftitch. "But it seems unlikely," he added realistically, "unless it undergoes a radical changed.

"The Austrians are Germans. And many of them are certainly now Nazi. Sooner or later their pressure must have some effect. And no matter what solution is proposed, this fact, —that the great part are Nazis, will continue to be the decisive fact. The country would remain German at heart no matter what the form of government."

"Will the alliance of the nations opposed to Germany hold? Some persons assert that Poland has already wavered."

"I do not take this 'wavering' too seriously. It is perfectly obvious that the whole matter of Polish-German 'understanding' is merely tactical, to gain time. Of course, there will be a new situation when Germany is re-armed.

"No, I believe the alliance will hold. And I believe we will keep the peace. At any rate you may be sure that Jugoslavia will continue its efforts for peace with the greatest tenacity and determination."

"And preventive war? Do you consider the so-called preventive war possible?"

It is obvious that Jugoslavia hopes for the best but believes it necessary to be prepared for the worst. The Serbs are realists.

ARM TO RETAIN PEACE, URGES BRISBANE

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 23.—America is an independent nation today, able to live alone, thanks to George Washington, and should keep that independence by peaceful preparedness, Arthur Brisbane declared in a Washington Day address to the University of Georgia.

The noted editor, speaking in Woodruff Hall, crowded with students of the university and members of the Georgia Press Association, in its annual session here, warned that the United States "must stay out of the international conflict that is now brewing and inevitably must come in Europe and the Far East."

Mr. Brisbane quoted Washington, who said:

"To be prepared for war is one of the most effective ways of preserving peace."

He added:

"Nobody would hit John L. Sullivan as he walked along the streets. He was prepared for war. I would have us build the greatest flying fleets and submarine fleets and a merchanized army capable of going from here to any point on earth. Then I would say to the other nations, 'Come and see what we have before you do anything to us.'"

He praised President Roosevelt, describing him as "one of the four outstanding men of the world who is not a menace to peace."

The others, Mr. Brisbane said, are Mussolini, Stalin and Hitler.

Mr. Brisbane directed his remarks largely to students of journalism and to young newspaper editors, urging them to repeat a thousand times Washington's words regarding his country's conduct. He quoted Washington's words in warning America to steer clear of foreign alliances, and his further warning of the "insidious wiles of foreigners."

Said Mr. Brisbane:

"When these polite foreigners come to our capital and place a wreath at the tomb of Washington and the tomb of the unknown soldier and never take their eyes off the Treasury or cease to wonder how much money they can get, we should remember those words of Washington about insidious wiles.

"And when our own people go abroad and ask that all debts be cancelled, we should remember about those insidious wiles."

Reed Urges Forest Corp Be Trained for Defense

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Senator David A. Reed today suggested that the ideas of the Civilian Conservation Corps and the Citizens' Military Training Camp be combined for the benefit of both the men and the nation.

Speaking at a Washington birthday meeting of the National Defense Council of Philadelphia, Senator Reed said he applauded the program which gives the young men in the Civilian Conservation Corps something constructive to do and infuse them with new hope. He said:

"Either teach the CCC to drill and march and obey commands, or teach the young men in the CMTC to build roads and trails. It would be a step in the right direction and a distinct contribution to the national defense."

Touching on national defense, Reed said:

"I think we can agree that if Europe goes to war (and I have seen and heard with my own eyes and ears Europe's preparations for war), the United States must remain neutral, and maintain our defenses in such a stage that no nation will dare attack us."

Marvelous New 1934 All-Wave

PHILCO 16x—$175

The marvelous tone is due in large measure to the greatest single development in scientific sound reproduction—the revolutionary PHILCO Patented Inclined Sounding Board.

1 Its inclination directs all high notes (sparkle and brilliance) some of which you would otherwise miss, up to "ear level."
3 RESULT—Reception as if the artists were present "in person."

PHILCO 16X also has every other worth-while improvement for efficient all-wave reception including Two Tuning Ratios, Wave-Band Switch, Bass Compensating Tone Control, Super "Class A" Audio System, Auditorium Speaker, Shadow Tuning, Automatic Volume Control, Illuminated Station Recording Dial, PHILCO High-Efficiency Tubes, etc. Superb hand-rubbed cabinet of finest woods.

Old Maestro Aircasts Tonight

"Greetings, ladies and gentlemen! Greetings and salutations from Ben Bernie!"

"Bernie"

Ben appears before the microphone in a 10-minute interview with the Sun-Telegraph Aircaster.

In addition to tonight's 6:30 broadcast, Bernie and his Blue Ribbon bandsmen feed programs to the NBC Red network next Tuesday evening from the WCAE studios.

* * *

Jessica Dragonette and Rosario Bourdon's Orchestra offer a diversified program of light operatic and novelty tunes over WCAE tonight at 8 o'clock.

* * *

* * *

* * *

* * *

Harry Sosnik plays his own composition, "Lazy Rhapsody," in its entirety for the first time as part of the Olsen-Johnson Revue, heard over WJAS from 10 to 10:30 p. m.

* * *

When the March of Time records the premiere of the Gertrude Stein opera tonight at 8:30, over WJAS, the real cast of "Four Saints in Three Acts" will do the job.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

When Mrs. Earl D. Clark, Brookline, reads about the troubles of the city in meeting bills she thinks of the books left her by her late grand uncle, James Nelson, one time city superintendent of the waterworks, telling of the "good old days."

Those books show that in 1851 the superintendent of the waterworks was the highest paid city official, drawing down $1,000 per year. The Mayor and the Treasurer each received a yearly salary of $700.

* * *

Worse and more of it! Uncle Sam's letter carriers will soon begin to have their doubts about the people who write to me.

Somebody, in referring to one of our prominent citizens, sent the outside of a hard shell crab and said it reminded him of it, or he reminded him of it.

The writer says that the person in question got one, too.

It might have been a good gag had it not been anonymous.

I'm laying in a supply of spirits of ammonia in case any minor tragedies occur on the office while the letters are being opened.

* * *

Mrs. M. H. Z.—See Miss Grace or Miss Shepherd, fifth floor, Courthouse. They will take your request for a Juvenile Court ward. They send investigators who report to the court.

Mrs. J. H. Stein, Crafton—Thanks for letting me see the pictures. I am returning them.

* * *

N. R. Cochran, Queen Junction—That coin is a "Jackson hard-time token." It was issued in 1834 during the fight over the currency question. It passed for one cent.

Aside from its strange history it bore an unusual indication as to its value—"Not one cent."

Dealers sell them now for 40 or 50 cents.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

William Witherow discusses the NRA in a special talk on WJAS tonight at 6:30.

Radio Moguls Select Troy, Ohio, as Average Town

By AIRCASTER

"Well, you can't please everybody in a big country like this. But if we had some average American community to shoot at, we could hit a pretty high percentage of satisfactory entertainment."

Today that legendary alibi has become obsolete, for the average radio community of America has been found.

It comes in for the distinction after hard weeks of surveying; analysis of fan mail, which showed an unusual variety in taste and intelligence in criticism, and a general approval from producers, artists, executives and observers.

The town thus designated as a veritable radio capital is Troy, O. And among the interesting things about the town is the fact that it poossesses no radio station.

It is no discredit to radio program builders that for 12 years they have left out of their calculations such extremes as New York City and Painted Post, Arizona, while seeking an average audience.

* * *

CENTRAL LOCATION

Attention was first directed to Troy, because its location is neither to east, west, north or south.

Once spotted, Troy became the object of a survey by David Freedman, writer and producer of the CBS's "big show" and the "big show's" sponsors.

A survey was started, and statistical sharks went to work. Consultation with other radio producers elicited their approval of the choice.

When the statisticians were set to work, they were given a model for calculation. Troy proved nearest to this visualization.

Its income tax list shows 351 payers.

In Troy, according to the last census, 1,364 families own radio sets, which means 62 per cent of the population.

Ninety-two per cent of the residents are natives and white, 5 per cent natives and Negroes, and 1 per cent foreign.

* * *

There is more than a normal number of auto dealers, garages, tailors, etc., and it comes under the heading of "payroll towns."

There are 3,000 telephones, a daily newspaper with 3,000 circulation, and the Board of Education reports an average intelligence of 3 per cent above normal.

The next quest will be for the average resident of Troy, who will doubtless turn out to be the average listener, for whom I have sought, lo, these many months.

And it wouldn't surprise me if the radio moguls find that her name is Helen.

For Hard Coughs or Colds That Worry You

Creomulsion is made to give supreme help for coughs or colds. It combines seven helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is for quick relief, for safety.

But careful people, more and more, use it for every cough that starts. No one knows where a cough may lead. No one can tell which factor will do most. That depends on the type of cold.

Creomulsion costs a little more than lesser helps. But it means the utmost help. And it costs you nothing if it fails to bring the quick relief you seek. Your druggist guarantees it. Use it for safety's sake.

WIFE INNOCENT OF BIGAMY

His wife acquitted by a jury of a bigamy charge he had brought against her, William Bales of 201 Sweetbrier street today had been directed to pay the costs of the case by Visiting Judge S. John Morrow, of Fayette County, in Criminal Court.

Mrs. Bales' first husband, Harry H. Burmaster, subpenaed by Bales, testified in her defense. He was served with divorce papers 14 years ago, he told the court, and has considered himself a free man since that time.

Contesting the divorce action brought against him by Mrs. Elva M. Bales, Bales appeared as his own counsel before Judge Ralph H. Smith last December.

Mrs. Bales at that time testified that she had operated a beauty parlor to support herself and children, and that on one occasion Bales had locked her out of the house. Questioned, Bales admitted that he struck his wife in the neck. Since the court costs in the Bales divorce action have never been paid, no final decree has been handed down.

Chinese Protest To Britain Reported

SHANGHAI, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The Chinese government said the vernacular newspaper Shun Pao today, has ordered a protest to Great Britain on alleged penetration of British troops into vast Yunnan Province, in the southwest corner of the nation.

The paper said Gen. Lung Yun chairman of the Yunnan Provincial Government, had informed Nanking that the British were building roads connecting the province with Burma, which is a part of India.

Here's to Betsy

The Girl Who Co-ordinated—and Told

In the life of Pittsburgh, Betsy never found her name in the starry firmament of fame or fortune. She was just an average girl—though a mighty pretty and accomplished one. The only thing that Betsy lacked, in fact, to make life tolerable, was a self-replenishing wardrobe. And it was a dire lack—because, sensing her beauty and appeal, she knew what good-looking clothes would do for her figure and her future.

Betsy Heard Our Radio Program . . . And Came in to Visit Us

And what a surprised girl she was! Always she had thought of Harris' as just another one of those stores—good enough in its way, perhaps, but never having any particular message for her. She got the surprise of her life when she saw our spring showing of coats, suits and dresses. And when she came to match up her shoes and hats, she found we'd actually "co-ordinated" them; they actually belonged together, and she didn't have to go out and shop all over again. She loved that! And she came up, after she'd done her buying and told us about it, up here in the office. And WE loved THAT. Because for nearly a year now, we've been pointing to that day when a woman could equip herself completely, from head to foot, in our store and be sure that it all made sense together. Praise be to Betsy, the girl who co-ordinated and told—us, so that we could tell YOU with even greater confidence.

Betsy Didn't Touch her Bankroll Either: She's Paying her Bill out of Income

She pays us a little now, when papa gets his weekly salary check, and then, when her own boss comes through with some of the back salary. A great girl, Betsy—and a great lesson to all girls who want beautiful clothes enough to go after them. "If you've a job, you've a charge account", at—

Figures that Speak

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company presents figures from its Annual Statement for 1933 and makes comparisons which show how the Company has carried on during the five difficult years since 1928

THROUGHOUT a period of almost unparalleled world-wide depression the institution of Life Insurance in America has furnished an example of achievement that wins admiration wherever it is understood.

Between January 1st, 1929 and January 1st, 1934, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, which insures the lives of more than 25,000,000 persons—nearly one-fifth of the total populations of the United States and Canada—paid to its policyholders and their beneficiaries more than Two Billion Dollars ($2,000,000,000).

During the same period, its policyholders contributed, through their premium payments, toward the increase of more than One Billion Dollars ($1,000,000,000) in the assets held for future distribution to themselves and their beneficiaries.

After payment, during that period, of more than Four Hundred and Fifty Million Dollars ($450,000,000) by way of dividends to policyholders, the Company's surplus was increased by more than One Hundred Million Dollars ($100,000,000).

These figures, of one company alone, are striking evidence of the reliance which the people of the United States and Canada place on the security and protection of life insurance.

Life Insurance is the most effective and satisfactory means of providing for the future of one's self and one's dependents.

MONEY BUYS MORE!

Teapot Seeks Home

SENSATIONAL OFFER DRAWS BIG CROWD

Local merchants selling the Lipton teapots were swamped on opening their doors this morning. While they expected this generous offer to stimulate business, none anticipated the unprecedented demand that occurred.

Several merchants who had underestimated the demand were worried that the supply of teapots would give out and many of their regular customers would be disappointed. All recommended early shopping, for even where stocks of teapots were large, the more popular colors were going fast.

GET YOUR TEAPOT TODAY . . . YOUR GROCER'S SUPPLY IS LIMITED!

LIPTON'S Tea

YELLOW LABEL
ORANGE PEKOE & PEKOE
GREEN LABEL—JAPAN TEA

PERFECT 5-CUP TEAPOT YOURS FOR ONLY 15 CENTS!

With purchase of one pound of LIPTON'S TEA

Here's an opportunity that's hard to duplicate these days! It's your chance to make fifteen cents do the work of seventy-five! Here's how to do it. Purchase one pound of Lipton's Tea from your grocer at a special low price, place on the counter one dime and one five-cent piece extra and pick out a teapot in the color you like best. You have yellow, light green, cadet blue and black to choose from.

HOW DO THEY DO IT?

It's no secret. We want you to prove to yourself that Lipton's Tea is the finest in the world. We want you to make your first cup of Lipton's Tea with the kind of teapot that will make good tea every time. Therefore the cost is forgotten and the teapot is offered to you at a price that barely covers the cost of shipping and handling. You must see these teapots to appreciate them, your grocer has a wide choice of colors, see him today.

LIPTON
LIPTON

CORRECT TEA-MAKING EASY WITH QUALITY TWINS

Everyone can make a delicious cup of tea if these few simple directions are followed.

Of course, to start with, you must have a good grade of tea such as Lipton's Yellow Label or Lipton's Green Japan. Another essential is the proper type of teapot. With this generous Lipton offer you can get both the best tea and the proper teapot at a bargain price.

With these two essentials at hand, put the kettle on to boil, and after the water has boiled furiously for a minute or so, pour a little into the teapot and swish it around so that the pot gets warm. Then pour off the water and put in the tea—one teaspoonful for every cup and one for the pot. After this, pour the boiling water over the tea and allow it to brew for about three minutes. Pour and serve with cream or lemon, or plain, according to your taste. You will enjoy tea so much more if you follow this simple method.

Your pound of Lipton's Tea will be sold to you in two half-pound containers. Packed in air-tight packages, inner lined with both foil and waxed paper, the delightful flavor—the garden freshness of Lipton's Tea is preserved until you are ready to use it.

LIPTON'S
FINEST TEA

Properly made tea is stimulating, delightful. Follow the advice of experts and enjoy good tea every time.

Many of our young things will be "promming" this week—at the Yale Junior Prom tonight, of course.

Mary Louise Ellis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Ellis, who is studying at Connecticut College, will be among the "promming" girls this week-end. She'll be a guest at Vernon Hall. Mary Louise will be home for the Easter holidays after March 22.

Elizabeth Craig, daughter of the Mark Rodgers Craigs, of Sewickley, is another prom-minded young woman. She'll be the guest of John H. Keeney, of Sewickley, at the prom.

There'll be a dinner before the dance, which begins at 10 o'clock tonight, for the members of the prom committee, and their guests. And since young Mr. Keeney is on the committee, Betsy Craig will be at the dinner, to be held in the Zeta Phi house. In accordance with the traditional custom, the guests of the committee will receive silver spoons as souvenirs.

Younger Set Treks To Yale for Prom

Also attending the prom will be Betty Laufman, a deb of the holiday season, and Ruth Simpson, who'll be guests at the St. Elmo Club; Betty Jane Harris, guest at Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Other girls who'll attend are Peggy Leiper, of Sewickley, another holiday debutante, who'll be a guest of the Beta Theta Pi frat house; Margaret Yates, of Pittsburg, and Frances Emery, of Edgeworth, both at the Sachem Club.

And Vernon Hall Pittsburgh guests will include, in addition to young Mary Louise Ellis, Dorothy Lott, Lyndis Johnson, Margaret Brewer, Betty Hayes. Virginia Jones will be at the St. Anthony Club, and Frances St. Clair at Book and Bond.

Dawn Dances, Skiing Parties Follow Prom

The prom will be held in Yale's Woolsley Hall, the scene of lectures and concerts, impressive university ceremonies and dances.

The prom, to start at 10 and last until 3 o'clock tomorrow morning, is just the beginning of a three-day whirl of parties. The ball, by the way, will be gay; gone will be the formality of the proms of older generations when a grand march opened the event and when the dance was a program affair.

After the dance will come dawn dances. All the clubs of the Sheffield Scientific School will stage these immediately after the main affair. Then will come skiing parties, and breakfast, and so-to-bed.

Sewickley Girl Prom Head at Wellesley

Another similar affair in the East of vast importance to the younger set will take place tomorrow night—the Wellesley College senior prom to be attended by 140 Wellesley girls and the guest-escorts.

Willets-Jenkins Wedding April 4

Early April is going to be a bridal season this year—for Lent ends early—Easter is April 1. And among the weddings will be one in the East, but of interest here—that of Betty Willets, daughter of Mrs. Samuel Willets, of New York, and Edward Kenneth Jenkins, son of the Edward Elliotte Jenkinses, of Pittsburgh and Warrenton, Va.

They'll be married April 4 at the Delmonico, New York, where Mrs. Willets has her town apartment. And only the members of the two families and close friends will receive invitations to the ceremony.

The young bridegroom, related to the T. Clifton Jenkinses, is studying for the diplomatic service. His fiancee is descended from Lord Westbury, for whom Westbury, L. I., is named. She is a granddaughter of Edward Willets and William Robinson Riley, and a member of a distinguished Knickerbocker family.

Pittsburghers Visiting Winter Vacation Resorts

There Sherley will be the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer, of New York, at her winter home at fashionable Palm Beach.

* * *

Nancy Byers, attractive daughter of the J. Frederic Byerses, who has been visiting in Palm Beach, will join her mother in Aiken, S. C., Tuesday.

Mrs. W. Eugene Gary, of the Schenley Apartments, is at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, Atlantic City. At the same hotel are Mrs. R. V. Nuttall and her son, R. V. Nuttall, Jr.

Allegheny Country Club Horse Show June 7-9

Of course this year, when everything is so much better than a year ago, no one expected to be deprived of that great sporting event—the annual Allegheny Country Club Horse Show, held each year in the show ring, Sewickley Heights.

But it is reassuring to know that the dates have been taken for the 1934 shows—Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 7, 8 and 9 are the days.

East End Girl Engaged, Weds In Springtime

Lent is no deterrent as far as romance is concerned. Betrothal announcements are being made daily. The weddings, to be sure, will for the most come after Easter.

Today, Mrs. Davis Conner, of Tennyson avenue, announces the engagement of her daughter, Sarah Elizabeth Conner, to Dr. Asa D. Young, son of Dr. Eugene Yetman Young, of Champaign, Ill.

Sarah is a graduate of the Fr-mingham School, and Dr. Young of the University of Illinois and of the Rush Medical College of the University of Chicago.

They are planning an early spring wedding.

German Club Auxiliary Giving Party Thursday

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the German Club of Allegheny will hold a card party Thursday evening in the club parlors, Madison avenue and Pressley street, at 8:30 o'clock. Mrs. John Baldinger and Mrs. William Horst are chairmen, assisted by Mrs. Henry Bloedel, Mrs. E. G. Unrath, Mrs. Herman Tessmer, Mrs. Harry Fachner, Mrs. William Nichols, Mrs. P. A. Freyvogel, Mrs. Flora Hatch and Mrs. George Soloman.

Rhode Island Visited on Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Peris, of Erin street, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mollie Peris, to Benjamin Brotsky, of New York, which was solemnized February 18.

After a honeymoon in Rhode Island, Mr. and Mrs. Brotsky will make their home in Pittsburgh.

Frederich Gutknects Giving Birthday Party

Mr. and Mrs. Frederich Gutknect are giving a dinner party tomorrow evening in their home in honor of their daughter, Miss Marie Catherine Gutknect, who will celebrate her birthday anniversary. Decorations will be in green and yellow with spring flowers.

Mrs. Edward A. Lenchner Cabaret Dance Chairman

Mrs. Edward A. Lenchner is chairman of a cabaret dance to be given Wednesday, March 21, in the Hotel Schenley, one of the events to celebrate the seventieth anniversary of the Tree of Life Synagogue. The dance is being sponsored by the Congregation Sisterhood.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

To get guests to come to your house nowadays, you have to promise them cocktails! Or at least, so confided one young smart-set hostess.

* * *

Ever since the Garden Club-sponsored lecture this week on submerged and bubble bouquets, among other things, I've been looking for them. At a Junior League theater committee meeting with Chairman Mrs. Rhodes Quaile, Wilkins avenue, I found one at last—a bubble bouquet. And the flowers were roses.

* * *

Since going to Chicago Marjorie Kimball, one-time popular Junior League president, has taken up knitting. She's the house guest now of Mrs. Beverly R. Shriver. I saw Marjorie knitting on what looked like the beginning of one of those mystifying raglan sleeve sweaters.

* * *

Heard the other day that Nancy Allderdice (Mrs. Leonard S. Mudge) and her sister, Jane Allderdice (Mrs. W. McCook Reed) were wrting this column, Nancy Jane, or at least wrote it in the column's youth.

They don't and didn't—in spite of the name. The name, by the way, is that of the "founder's" grandmother!

Miss Hutchinson Betrothed to L. B. Perrin

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hutchinson, of Clearview avenue, Crafton, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marion Hutchinson, to Lea B. Perrin, of Bradford avenue, Crafton.

900 Attended No-Invitation Wedding

When Mr. and Mrs. Robert Warnock Hervey were married seven years ago tonight, they sent out no invitations. But 900 guests attended their wedding.

Pittsburgh papers had announced that they would be married by the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr in the First United Presbyterian Church, North Side, after prayer meeting seven years ago tonight.

They will celebrate their marriage anniversary tonight in their home, Pennock road, North Side, when they will entertain the choral of the Women's Community Association of the Twenty-seventh Ward, of which Mrs. Hervey is director. And judging by their wedding, there may be more guests.

Mrs. Hervey is known professionally as Jane Graninger Hervey. She is chairman of hostesses of the Tuesday Musical Club, and was the contralto soloist in the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, North Highland avenue, for 14 years when she was Jane Lang Graninger.

The members of the Choral which Mrs. Hervey directs, are Mrs. John Bierer, Mrs. L. T. Davies, Mrs. Carl Eisenbeis, Mrs. William Freeburn, Mrs. John Hanna, Miss Hedwig Holboky, Miss Marie Hickey, Miss Lilian Higgins, Mrs. Morgan Miller, Mrs. J. W. Mohn, Mrs. T. J. Rehlin, Mrs. Edwin L. Resler, Mrs. Ralph Ross, Mrs. Helen Sarver, Mrs. John Schilpp, Jr., Mrs. William J. Selling, Miss Dorothy W. Smith, Mrs. E. J. Tyler, Mrs. Frances S. Weber, Mrs. Dale Whitby Westphal, Mrs. Thomas Williams and Mrs. Charles W. Wright.

At the entertainment tonight, George Washington decorations will be used. There will be a wedding anniversary cake, too.

Poale Zedeck Sisterhood Giving Movie Sunday

Poale Zedeck Sisterhood will sponsor a movie Sunday night in the Manor Theater, Squirrel Hill. The feature will begin at 7 o'clock and will continue until 11 o'clock. Mrs. Morris Cohen is general chairman; Mrs. Lewis Barkowitz, vice chairman.

Mrs. Roberts Hostess For P. E. O. Luncheon

Mrs. E. O. Roberts, of Woodhaven drive, Mt. Lebanon, will entertain members of Chapter G, P. E. O., at luncheon Thursday. Election of officers will take place, after which Mrs. A. C. Batz will present a paper on Oriental rugs.

Patronesses For Wilson Tea Named

The Wilson College student aid benefit bridge tea to be given tomorrow afternoon in the College Club is being sponsored by a long list of patronesses.

Among them are Mrs. W. B. Groves, Mrs. R. F. Altman, Miss Lydia Morris, Miss Marie Craighead, Mrs. R. W. Siemon, Miss Marion Cochran, Mrs. H. Lee Briney, Mrs. Henry W. Fulton, Mrs. Chester A. Smith, Mrs. B. A. Herrod, Miss Elsa and Miss Florence Koch and Miss Elizabeth Oyer.

Others lending their support are Mrs. Edwin W. Humphrey, Miss Alice Ross, Mrs. E. R. Williams, Mrs. Wesley Holmes, Miss Helen McNaugher, Mrs. Clyde W. Grubbs, Mrs. George R. Craig, Miss Helen Patterson, Miss Martha Jarvis, Mrs. Walter R. Sloan, Mrs. John M. Kennedy, Miss Virginia Mason and Mrs. Paul Leitch.

Miss Viola Osthimer Bride of Donald Wolcott

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Leitschuh, of Alliance, O., formerly of the North Side, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Viola Osthimer, to Donald Wolcott, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wolcott, of Williamsport, Pa., formerly of Avalon.

The ceremony took place Saturday in the home of the bridegroom's brother, Rhyse Wolcott, of Elm Grove, Va. Mr. and Mrs. Rhyse Wolcott were the attendants. After March 1, Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott will be at home in Williamsport.

Dormont Club Hostess For Chartiers Meeting

D. A. R. Gives Washington Luncheon

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Two songs dedicated to George Washington by his contemporary, Francis Hopkinson, were sung by Helen Bell Rush Davis yesterday at the annual Washington's Birthday luncheon of Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in the Hotel Schenley. A portion of the letter which Hopkinson wrote Gen. Washington was read by Mrs. John E. Nelson, who accompanied Mrs. Davis.

Mrs. William Jackson Crittenden, regent of the chapter, introduced the luncheon speakers, Dr. Solon J. Buck, professor of history at the University of Pittsburgh; George A. Blasser, assistant editor of "The National Republic," and Capt. J. Clark Mansfield, president of Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution.

In his address on "Pittsburgh in the Nation's History," Dr. Buck said Pittsburgh is more than a community of nearly two millions of people and several hundred square miles of land; it is a community with a personality that has been determined by history.

He touched on certain aspects of local history that have been of national significance—for instance, the struggle for control of this section between the French and English, the acquisition of the entire Mississippi Valley by the English and the early settlement of this region.

This was the real beginning of the American frontier, as distinguished from the colonial frontiers, for here were, not backwoodsmen, but frontiersmen facing west. Pittsburgh's industrial development and the city's important part in the economic history of the nation were also touched upon by Dr. Buck who went on to call attention to the fact that until recent years there had been a lack of interest in local history on the part of the people.

Speaking on "Communism in the United States," Mr. Blasser said there are 6,000 active and undercover workers in labor unions, schools and colleges and even churches in the country and that of several hundred Communist publications only 77 are printed in English, although their circulation runs into millions.

The particular objective of the Communists, he said, is to reach the youth of the land and one way in which this is done is through summer camps, two of which are incorporated under the laws of New York State as Communistic camps and are valued at millions of dollars.

He urged support of House Bill 8549, which will make it a crime for anyone to advocate destruction of the government by violence, and of House Bill 4112, which would make it possible for the government to exclude and expel alien Communists.

Pennsylvania Court Plans District Benefit

Pennsylvania Court No. 1, Order of the Amaranth will hold its first district benefit, a bridge and bingo party, tomorrow evening at the home of Elvira L. Bleadinghiser, North Linden avenue. The general committee is headed by Miss Belle Van Orsdell. The honor guests will be the royal matron, Mrs. Margaret B. Franz; the royal patron, Mrs. Eleanor Wagner, and the associate royal matron, Mrs. Ernie McKenney.

PERKY BOWS AND SHALLOW CROWNS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

HERE IS a trio of hats that could take a girl a long way in the titifying of her early spring wardrobe. The two tailored hats are built with shallow crowns and brims that will not interfere with furs or high collars at the back of the neck, and the flowered model at the right is a very good version of the cocktail hat, when its bridesmaid tulle is unhitched from it. All three of them, too, will double below or above the Mason-Dixon line, wearable with light or dark costumes.

Incidentally, they were designed by Marion Vallee, an energetic young American who puts hats on the stage as well as on the Avenue. All these models appear in current Broadway musical shows as part of the stars' contribution to fashion's hands across the footlights. The day is definitely here when one can dash into most large shops and demand "that hat," or "that gown" which I saw Miss Whosis wearing in her play last night—legitimate or movie.

All-Nation's Musicale Of League for Peace Attended by 200

The all-nations musicale under auspices of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom at the Hotel Schenley yesterday was a delightfully arranged affair and was heard by an audience of almost 200 persons. The guests sat grouped about the tables in the dining room where they were served at the close of the program.

The musicale, which was a particularly worthwhile one, was presented by Jane Schlotterer Cooper, Lura Stover, James Hayden, Jeanne Brideson, Margaret Garrity, Tom Murdoch and Samuel Kliachko, as soloists and a quartet which included Irma Heym Weber, Helen Moyer, Martha Agnes Woolslare and Della Henderson Rawsthorne.

Unattached Men Plentiful In Florida

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 22.—The newest phase in the return of prosperity to Palm Beach began during this week, and old timers say it hadn't happened since 1928.

Unattached young men from New York, scores of them, began arriving. Every train brought in at least a few. Most of them announced their vacations would be short, but realized they would be in great demand as dinner partners—and that their stays would cost them next to nothing.

After a run to the inlet the group indulges in a game of bicycle polo on the outdoor dancing floor of the colony.

A recent game played for charity had in the lineup the Misses Helen Morgan, Jean Bauer, Jean Parsons, Valerie Ziegler, Audrey Keon and Katherine Carnaham. The men play dressed in costumes of comic strip characters.

Mrs. James H. Van Alen, of Newport, and all society points, is down here, but more reticent than ever since her daughter Louise became and ceased to be the wife of Prince Alexis Mdivani. Mrs. Van Alen takes strolls in a lavender gown, her white hair tinted lavender under a lavender parasol.

Jewish Council Official to Be Feted

Miss May R. Friedman, a past president of the National Council of Jewish Juniors, now chairman of the committee on finance and administration in the formation of the new executive office for the National Council, will be in Pittsburgh over the week-end.

Pittsburgh section will entertain for her at a luncheon on Sunday, in the Concordia Club, preceding its regular open meeting for February. Reservations are to be made with Miss Rhoda Levy, Pittsburgh president.

Noted Clergyman, Peace Worker, Dies

BALTIMORE, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The Rev. Peter Ainslie, internationally known for his work in the interest of church unity and world friendship through the churches, died early today in a hospital here, following two operations since January 7. He was 66.

Biologists Will Meet After Luncheon

The meeting of the Biology Club of the Western Pennsylvania Education Conference tomorrow will begin with a cafeteria luncheon at Carnegie Museum.

After luncheon there will be an excursion through the botany gallery led by Dr. O. E. Jennings, curator of botany at the Museum. Talks will be given by G. F. Schnable and Reinhold Fricke.

Beechview Bible Class Sponsoring Concert, Play

The Girls' Glee Club of the University of Pittsburgh will give a concert Wednesday evening at the Beechview Methodist Episcopal Church, Mrs. Robert Ayers directing.

The Pitt Players will present a one-act play and Miss Norma Cibula will sing in costume. The concert is sponsored by Mrs. A. P. Allen's Bible Class.

Esther James Directs Own Play for Club

Miss Esther James is directing her own play, "Nothing Ever Happens," at the fourteenth anniversary of the Squirrel Hill Community Club this afternoon in the Squirrel Hill Methodist Protestant Church. Music is also a feature of the program, which is under the chairmanship of Mrs. Norval R. Daugherty.

Italian Literary Society Will Induct 30

Thirty new members of the Italian Literary Society will be formally initiated Sunday afternoon at a tea in Kingsley House. A musical program will follow the tea, at which the Italian vice-consul, Nobile don Leone Circana, will be guest of honor.

Mrs. Clara Danzilli and Mrs. Bessie Macchiareli will preside at the tea table. The first honorary membership will be conferred upon A. R. Buccieri, professor of romance languages at Duquesne University, sponsor of the society.

Through the Spyglass

Viewing The New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

"Dillar a dollar" . . . today we're hurrahing 'round about many things you find in the assorted shop counters of the town for $1 or less! The first being—

A swanky pair of clips made of that same composition as the big colored chunks of rings everyone is wearing nowadays. These clips being in nice shapes . . . all colors . . . at 50c the pair (ogle them well, children!)

* * *

Powder jars so Frenchy that you find yourself expecting to hear the Marseillaise tinkling forth. They're of painted metal standing on little legs . . . 5 nice shades, some in moire effect and some plain . . . with decorative medallions in the center top. Complete with a little powder puff inside. An ideal bridge gift for 35c.

* * *

How many times you've wished that such a thing as a washable wooden button existed! But wish no more my lady . . . they're here! Nice plain ones . . . tinted ones with several pastel shades in them . . . large ones, small ones, and matching buckles. A couple of buttons at strategic points on your Spring ensemble will work wonders! 25c to 50c for them . . . 60c to $1 for buckles.

* * *

Chuck yourself under the chin with one of these scarfs! They are as gay as Spring itself . . . in smart new shades and combinations—stripes, prints, plaids—3-cornered silk babies with hand-rolled edges or fringing, as often as not. 85c.

* * *

And nowadays it's the thing to wear your beads 'round your middle instead of your neck. Hence these new wooden bead belts in bright shades . . . inch-wide ones, and priced at the town's most eye-opening sum for same! 65c.

* * *

More initials with which to spatter your name about . . . on your handbag this time! These have but just come in, and we lost our heart to them immediately. Silver or gold metal ones . . . some tringular, some short and squat . . . and 35c each, 3 for $1.

* * *

If we sound tipsy, don't marvel at us. Because we've been "tasting" the new lipsticks which are being put out in a perfume bar by one of the world's most famous designers and cosmeticians—L. L. AND . . . these new lipsticks in their black and gold cases are flavored with no less than port wine, Burgundy, claret, grenadine, chianti and Madeira. So . . . if you want to have lips which look and taste like old wine . . . try ones of these newsters! $1.

* * *

A fall from fine wines to herring is quite a change. But these are NICE herring . . . filets of them which have been designed to take the place (somewhat) of their more expensive cousins, the anchovies. Much less salty than usual we hasten to assure you . . . and put up in olive oil. A generous can of them costs 25c.

* * *

Good perfume . . . in what appears to be a mere "sliver" of a glass vial and encased in a little velvet-lined, decorated case (carry it in your handbag if you wish). This is one of the special offerings being laid on the knees of the shopping-gods these days. In all odeurs, made by R—— who's known all 'round, and priced 55c.

EX-PREACHER GRILLED IN GIRL MURDER

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—In the face of a barrage of questions hurled at him by Nassau County detectives, William Henry Du Bois, unfrocked minister, today continued to deny he knew anything about the 13-month-old murder of Mary Helen O'Connor, 15-year-old school girl.

Lingerie secreted in the North Bellmore, L. I., house he formerly occupied, was brought before the prisoner. He declined to comment on how it got there.

FEFUSES TO ANSWER

Du Bois also refused to comment on these.

Copies of his lectures expounding "seresiln," lectures preaching condonement of "sex," were shown him. Detectives asked:

"Did you give these lectures to the boys and girls listed in your index?"

Du Bois ignored the questions. He was confronted with a paper cataloging a "vanity case and powder puff." Police demanded:

"Did you know a vanity case and powder puff belonging to Mary Helen O'Connor have never been found?"

Du Bois replied:

"I know nothing about Mary Helen O'Connor except from reading about the case. I don't remember much about even what I read."

MOTHER TO HELP

Mrs. James J. O'Connor, mother of the dead girl, was in Baltimore today, visiting friends. She was to start for New York to look at the vanity case and powder puff found among the effects of Du Bois to see if they belonged to her murdered little girl.

Police Inspector Harold R. King said:

"When Mary Helen O'Connor's body was found her clothing was scattered over an area of nearly 100 yards—some of the garments stained with blood. It indicated the fight the child made for her life. But some of her garments were never found. Neither were her vanity case and powder puff found.

"We want the girl's mother to look over all the feminine garments found in the North Bellmore house as well as at the vanity case and powder puff."

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 23.—Sale of the Oklahoma City properties of the Slick-Urschel Oil Company to the Carter Oil Company was announced here today.

The sale price was withheld, but the properties have been appraised at $5,000,000. The properties included 128 producing oil wells.

The deal was negotiated by Charles F. Urschel, who last summer was kidnaped and held for $200,000 ransom, and C. H. Lieb, president of the Carter company.

The Slick-Urschel company was organized by the late Thomas B. Slick, who was known as the "king of wild catters."

Slick began life as a poor boy in Clarion County, Pa. He died four years ago in Baltimore, leaving an estate estimated to be worth between 75 and 100 million dollars.

Doctor's Wallet Stolen at School

A pickpocket who stole a wallet containing $25 from the pocket of Dr. H. E. Clark, 2919 Chartiers avenue, on the threshold of Langley High School last night, escaped in a crowd to an auto where he joined two companions, according to a police report.

Dr. Clark, who had attended a play in the school, grasped the thief by the arm, but he freed himself and outdistanced three young men who gave chase, police were told.

BOUND TO STAKE ON OWN PLEA

WINNIPEG, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The story of how an Indian, subject to fits of insanity, insisted on being tied to the stake to avoid the risk of harming his family was told today by Sergt. Percy Rose, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Rose was sent into Northern Saskatchewan to investigate vague rumors a demented Indian had been tied to his sled and left to die a "witchcraft" death.

Instead, he found the Indian, Gasgana, at his own request, was tied to his sleigh and later to two stakes. His brother tribesmen slept by his side and brought him food and drink. Despite careful attention, Sergt. Rose found, the Indian died of natural causes within a few days

Head of Japanese Peers Visits N. Y.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, for the past 30 years president of the Japanese House of Peers, was a visitor in New York today. He was accompanied by his son, Iyemasa Tokugawa, minister to Canada, and the latter's daughter.

It was with one of the Prince's ancestors that Commodore Perry negotiated for the treaty that opened Japan to the Western World.

JILTED WOMAN SEEKS ANNUITY

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Alma Newton Anderson is fighting to retain the $44,000 annuity bond established for her in 1928 by Ernest R. Graham, prominent architect.

The youthful-appearing novelist, who hails variously from New York, Chicago and New Orleans, took the stand yesterday before Harry Smitz, master in chancery, to testify that the bond was set up as the conclusion of a long romance with Graham while both were married. The case was adjourned to March 5.

Graham had promised to marry her, Mrs. Anderson said, as soon as they were free. Mrs. Anderson said her husband died in 1925, and she wired Graham, but found suddenly that his ardor had cooled. She explained:

"It was a lady's and gentleman's agreement for him to support me for the rest of my life."

Girl's Slayer Faces Doom on March 21

HARRISBURG, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today fixed the week of March 26 for the execution of Richard C. Bach, convicted of the brutal slaying of Rose McCloskey in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia.

Bach's conviction was upheld by the State Supreme Court, but he will be given a final opportunity to escape the electric chair March 21, when the State Board of Pardons will review his case.

HUNGRY MARCH ON LONDON

LONDON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The first few hundred of two thousand "hunger marchers," converging on London from Scotland and the provinces, straggled into the city today.

Other groups were moving in from other directions and leaders have planned for a monster demonstration Sunday in Hyde Park. They said they expected 50,000 people to take part.

The march climaxes a demonstration by the unemployed which began in Glasgow January 22 and was supported by John McGovern, Labor member of parliament, who heckled King George in November with gibes about the rich. McGovern said:

"The march is a legalized method of making a public protest against 'the slave evil.'"

Buildings Periled As Needy Take 'Fuel'

Fearing the collapse of a brick and three frame dwellings in the 500 block of East Fifth avenue, Homestead, police have roped off the buildings and stationed an officer to keep persons out. Police said the buildings had been unoccupied for some time and needy persons had been carrying wood off for fuel. Police arrested five men accused of wrecking the buildings.

POLITICS

Pinchot, Health Better, to Run for Senate.

By MARK SHIELDS

Petitions to place the name of Governor Gifford Pinchot on the Republican primary ballot as a candidate for nomination to the United States Senate will be in circulation next week throughout Pennsylvania.

Mr. Shields

Shortly thereafter, within no more than 10 days, the Governor will make formal announcement that he is a candidate for the seat now held by Senator David A. Reed.

At the same time he plans to make a statement that his health permits him to make the campaign, that he has suffered from no other ailment than shingles, despite reports which have traveled the state, sped on their way by his political enemies.

Expecting that to rally his friends, to give his campaign some impetus and to inaugurate the formation of committees in his interest, the Governor then will depart for a short vacation in Florida, returning to Pennsylvania the latter part of March.

He will not, no matter how effectual the healing climate of the playground state, be capable of making a campaign such as has been his custom.

* * *

Plans Action to Keep Friends From Straying

But he will be able to tour the state, to travel by automobile caravan, though reducing the number of daily stops.

These observations, based on apparently reliable information, have no quotable substance. But they are the settled plans of the Pinchot strategy board, a portion of which met in New York yesterday.

The various steps will be the Governor's answer to an insistence by his friends that he quickly clarify the situation as to his health and his political plans.

He has at last concluded he must take the offensive to save from slipping away those friends who, in an atmosphere of doubt, were beginning to wonder whether it might not be best to get themselves in out of the wet through some friendly gestures toward Senator Reed.

Until the last few days Mr. Pinchot and his associates had not realized how restive some of his former followers were becoming. He had not reckoned with the fact that patriotic sacrifices are all fine and dandy, but that the man on whose behalf they are made must evidence some concern for the boys who bare their breasts in the front line trenches.

While the present plans of the Governor, according to advice from New York, go no further than above set forth, it is reliably reported that he will be found supporting Attorney General William A. Schnader for Governor if the latter becomes a candidate.

* * *

Support By Schnader Not Required in Race

Furthermore, the Governor will make no hard and fast reciprocal demands upon the Attorney General. He will not be required 100 per cent for Mr. Pinchot and assert that any one who opposes the Pike countian is a villain of the deepest dye.

Mr. Schnader can dip into vote reservoirs which are closed to the Governor. To go for Pinchot hook, line and sinker, indicating that he would shut his eyes to any party factionalists who did not do the same, would prejudice his chances

Some of the Governor's less-advised strategists have thought that for Mr. Schnader to follow such a course would antagonize a few of the more idolatrous of the Pinchot supporters. Their counsel has not prevailed. In answer it has been explained that if Mr. Pinchot underwrites Mr. Schnader that should be enough for the less prominent of the Pinchot army.

Mrs. Pinchot, in Pittsburgh for a series of speeches in this section, had no comment to make on these plans when interrogated today. She said the Governor would be able to make a campaign if he desired to, but would go no further in saying that he would run.

From other sources, however, it is learned that he will.

Several Candidates Fit Martin's Measure

Republican State Chairman Edward Martin's observation that the Republican candidate for Governor should be a man with governmental experience has started a flurry of speculation as to whether the General was specifying or eliminating any individuals.

Gen. Martin himself, having been State Treasurer and Auditor General, fits the picture. So does State Treasurer Charles A. Waters. The man farthest from the picture painted by the general would be Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon, choice of many soldier delegations, but so far not heavily denting the professional political front.

Former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips is admirably suited to the conditions laid down by Gen. Martin, and he would not be objectionable to many Republican organization elements.

The varied experience of Senator Frank J. Harris makes him eligible, though he is not recognized as an organization follower. However, he so far has shown no signs of supporting Gov. Pinchot against Senator Reed.

The man most emphatically possessing the qualities demanded by the state chairman is Attorney General William A. Schnader, but with Mr. Pinchot for him he would be frowned upon by the regulars.

Thoroughly distilled, Gen. Martin in his first pronouncement has not said much enlightening as to the organization's preference, but there is not much enlightening to say right now.

MAN, WOMAN, CHILD, 3, DIE FROM GAS

Bodies Found in Room In M'Keesport Hotel

Their bodies were found late yesterday in a second floor room of the Feldman Hotel, at 733½ Fifth avenue, McKeesport, where the man and woman had registered early yesterday morning as man and wife, according to the Coroner's report.

After registering, the couple had gone with the child to the room, it was reported. Their failure to appear for lunch alarmed Samuel Feldman, the proprietor's son. He knocked on the door and, receiving no response, he forced his way into the room.

The bodies of the woman and her child were found in bed. Davis was found dead on the floor.

Police and Deputy Coroner James R. Dunlay, after an investigation, discredited the theory of a suicide pact and declared that the fumes from a small gas stove in the room accidentally caused their deaths. Davis apparently awakened and was attempting to reach a window when he collapsed.

Mrs. Tomko's body was identified by her husband, Andrew, and Davis' body was identified by his brother, D. S. Davis, of East McKeesport. Davis told police his brother's wife died about a year ago.

SIX MEN FINED FOR 'NUMBERS'

An alleged numbers writer, who testified he was arrested on his "day off," was fined $30, and five others were fined $20 at hearings before Burgess G. Fenton Mitchell, of North Braddock, last night.

With the exception of George Pluto, 21, of 223 Manor avenue, Swissvale, all pleaded guilty. Pluto admitted he was a numbers writer, but added that Wednesday, when the arrests were made by North Braddock police, was his day off.

The other men were Anthony Ritz, 42, of 1607 Brinton avenue; Andrew Dureka, 34, of 1315 Bell avenue; Clarence Dietz, 23, of 550 Stokes avenue; Harry Crews, 36, Negro, of 523 Sylvan avenue, and Otto Kinbrough, 32, Negro, of 1305 Ray street, all of North Braddock.

Hazelwood Group To Hear Kaessner

C. G. Kaessner, of Kaufmann's, will address members of the Hazelwood Commercial Association tomorrow night at 4829 Second avenue. Harry E. Wilson, of Gimbles will speak and show motion pictures of the Retail Men's Credit Association.

C. Guy Ferguson, manager of the credit bureau, returned from Washington after attending a meeting. Credit managers from five states discussed credit reporting.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

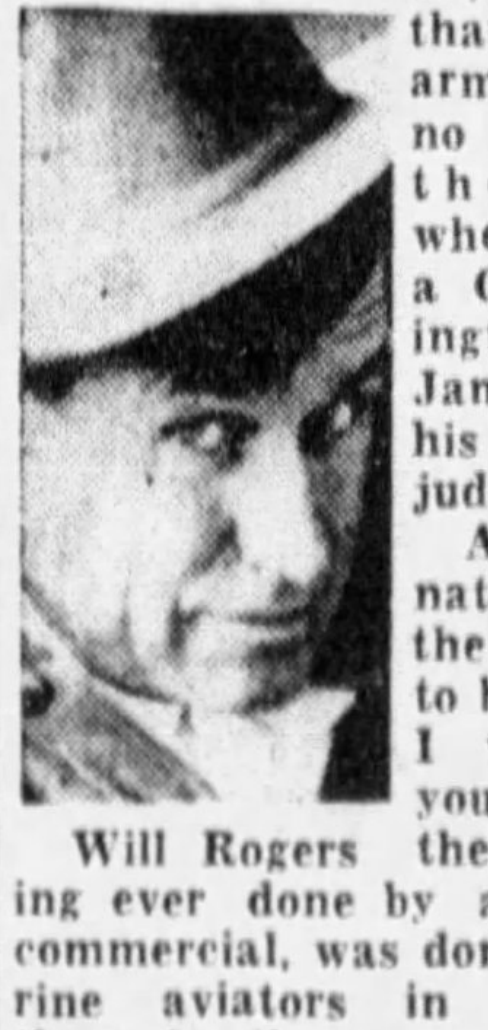
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:
WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.

Read yesterday of Sandino's death in Nicaragua. There is one thing that he and I always agreed on, and that was that American armed forces had no right down there. As to whether he was a George Washington, or a Jesse James, that's for his own people to judge.



Will Rogers

And while the nation's mind at the present seems to be on aviation, I want to tell you that some of the greatest flying ever done by army, navy or commercial, was done by the marine aviators in their flights through those mountains after this same Sandino.

I spent a week with the Marines in the temporary camp, arriving just three days after the Managua earthquake, and I flew with them over the Sandino country, dropping supplies to Marine camps hundreds of miles up in the mountains. I am glad we didn't find him that week.

Yours, WILL.

CWA HERE MAY EMPLOY 4,000 MORE MEN

Stuart Feels County Is Entitled to Recognition

Instead of the expected reduction in the ranks of Civil Works employes in the county, CWA officials here today announced an impending payroll increase.

The announcement, following a recent statement of Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Public Works Administrator, that a tapering-off process would effect the release of CWA workers throughout the nation, apparently exempts the county from Hopkins' ruling.

4,000 MORE JOBS

Workers listed on the payroll today number 23,000 and a telegram from F. A. Conner, assistant state administrator, has indorsed the employment of an additional 4,000. James L. Stuart, county CWA head, declared he will attempt to secure approval of a further increase.

Stuart, voicing belief that employment here will be continued at full strength until May 1, said Allegheny County deserves a large share of the state CWA appropriation since it is an industrial center, and since state CWA authorities have already approved 13,000 jobs which have not been filled because of lack of funds.

Stuart said new projects will be started within the next two weeks so that additional men may be added to the work list, and as projects are completed, others will be substituted to maintain employment at an even keel. Most of the jobs will be limited to the City of Pittsburgh.

WEBER IN HARRISBURG

Pressing his request for a continuance of work at the Cathedral of Learning, John Weber, University of Pittsburgh business agent, is in Harrisburg today after a hurried trip to this city for complete data desired by state CWA authorities. Half the force working on the Pitt tower was released this week because of dwindling finances.

The Allegheny County Emergency Relief Association is investigating 10,000 persons in the county who failed to accept CWA jobs assigned to them. It is said more than a third of the relief cases given work in some communities did not accept it.

Williams Discusses Light, Cheap Planes

A light, cheap type of airplane, which he predicts would become as popular as the automobile in the next decade was discussed by Capt. Alford J. Williams, Jr., speed flier, before members of the Railway Club of Pittsburgh in the Fort Pitt Hotel last night.

The plane would be capable of 30 miles an hour in the wind, the captain explained. C. O. Dambach, president of the club, led the discussion that followed the talk.

CHICKIE

CHICKIE! A story read and loved by millions!

Just a young, pretty girl and her love—that's all there is to the story of Chickie. A love—a dream—a cruel awakening. Simple and old as life itself are the facts.

She was 19—Helena Bryce—pretty and flippant, but sweet as a song. "Chickie"—the father called her that. She was Jonathan's only child and greatly loved. Sweet, peaceful days. Long walks with her dear chum—Mary Blake.

The two girls whispered of love. They asked Mary's mother—rich, beautiful Martha Blake—"Is it right to kiss?" They waited for romance as though it were a star of beauty soon to shine upon them.

Chickie went to work. Janina Knowles, brilliant, sophisticated, became her friend. Jake Munson, kingly fellow with money and joy, paid her court. She turned from all for the love of Barry Dunne.

A day came. Chickie stood on a hilltop, Barry's arm about her; Barry's beautifully sculptured head lowered to hers. She closed her eyes, and, meeting his lips, wept because love is such a tenderness and such a rapture. She whispered: "You'll love me always, Barry dear?" And he said: "Always." Tears were in his eyes as in hers.

Afterwards came terror; afterwards came remorse. Barry couldn't stand the burden. He left her. Alone and all the glory dimmed, Chickie found she was to have a child.

"Barry, come," she wrote. "You MUST."

But he could not. He had married.

Chickie ran away to hide herself on a lonely ranch. There, unknown to the parents, grieving for her long, strange absence, the desolate girl delivered Barry's child. It died. A question was raised. An inquest held. For all that she fought so bitterly to hide the shame. Helena Bryce stood branded before all the world.

She fought hard to make a comeback. She went to a hospital to train as a nurse. The past was discovered. She was dishonored and sent away.

David Ramm, a young doctor who seemed a god to Chickie and who had in his eyes the startling beauty she thought to have found in Barry Dunne's, won her a place in another hospital. David learned all of her tragedy. But he loved her. He laid his heart at her feet.

The great emotion she had so wanted was hers . . . the beautiful inspired life theirs to build. And they did. Before all the world in the four glorious children who came to her—three sons and the girl, Pippin—Chickie was vindicated and the past wiped out.

And now—the story of "CHICKIE'S DAUGHTER."

Pippin Wins Leave To Attend Dance After Game

head and laughed into the young man's face. He had an exciting face, full of an urgent vitality, yet boyish and sweet.

She took a rapt breath. "If only you weren't so old, Kevin! Isn't it a pity you were born too soon?"

"Say, girl, I've had enough of this old-age talk. You'll have me going out of here on crutches. Take that and find out how old I am."

He caught her roughly and, pulling her to him, gave her a resounding kiss full on the lips.

She closed her eyes swiftly.

The young man, scarlet to the roots of his thick black hair, caught Kathie, his sister, by the shoulders and turned the girls from the room. Pippin stuck her foot over the threshold, managing a tremulous, "You've promised, Kevin?"

The two girls ran down the stairs of the big, old-fashioned house. Kathie said, "Guess we put that over pretty!"

In a dream, Pippin nodded. In a dream she walked the eight blocks from Kathie McPike's home in Jackson street to her own on Broadway.

How radiant the water looked, and what a song in the flutter of trees along the Presidio walls. Life was so beautiful. Why should they wish to keep her from its strange, wild joys? Underneath, she thought excitedly, and a little scared, "Why did Kevin do that?"

She had never kissed—well, not like that, nothing in the world so intoxicating as that—before.

She paused before a red brick house and absently regarded a tree dahlia all lavender with flowers. She was piercingly aware of its delicate loveliness.

She went into the living room and stood at the window hidden in the gathering dusk. Upstairs her younger brothers shouted. She scarcely heard. Her thoughts focused on the sweet astonishment still warm on her lips.

Kevin Malone was the most attractive man Pippin knew. He was a doctor, nearly 24, and brilliant. They were all excited about Kevin's future.

Pippin knew him all her life. That couldn't daunt Kevin's charm. He was the foster son of Mary Blake McPike. Mary—that great chum of Pippin's mother.

When Kevin was a year old his parents were killed in a train wreck. Mary was an aunt. She took the boy. She looked at her own little ones—wept and vowed God the new son would be dear as any and an even more sacred trust.

She had Kevin the gay, Kevin the lovable, in her house all these years. And was the richer for him. He grew strong and fine and, oh, so dashing, Pippin thought. Bravest and sweetest of all the men on earth. The only doll Pippin ever loved, Kevin gave her. She thought of it now. Her heart thumped.

Mother Comes Home

Presently a slender, lovely person with a pale face and the same gold hair as the girl, came up the steps. The woman paused, and with her key in the open door, listened to the raucous sounds that rushed pell-mell down the stairs—the noise of her sons—it gave her joy.

She was caught abruptly and dragged into the living room, a cup of tea shoved into her astonished hands.

She said, teasing: "What's the big extra today, darling?"

"Why, nothing . . . I just thought you'd be tired, and tea is so refreshing."

The girl dropped to the sofa beside her mother, and rushed into her tale with a winning eagerness. There would be a dance after the football game. Everyone was going. Kevin willing to take Kathie. If only Helena and Mary would let them go.

"We have to begin living sometime, OH, mother, can't you see how terribly important it is?"

The mother looked into the girl's face, so imperious and sweet as it now accosted hers. She closed her eyes on a vision from the past.

She said, trembling, "Oh, yes, I see."

The two faces were very close. They were startlingly alike except that the younger had a streak of red in her sunny hair, but the older's was pale, soft gold; the older had dark, sweet eyes of tender gray, but the younger's were burning blue with a wild excitement in them. You felt her tumult—her blazing, rapacious hunger.

Image of Each Other

Yet everyone caught instantly their likeness. Everyone said: "They are the image of each other."

This stabbed the mother's heart. The girl, now duplicating in a thousand joyous audacities her own girlhood, must not resemble her. Not in any way!

Sometimes in dark moment she would think: "Suppose it should happen to her?" And her mind would go momentarily blind. She would be a desolate thing running along a river bank, a little dead child in her arms.

She would think starkly: "Why weren't they all boys? I wish—oh, God, I wish she was a boy!"

Her sons didn't trouble her. She saw them walking, gallant and proud, in their father's steps. Only the girl brought back her terrible memories. Especially when she was most winsome—gay, audacious thing, climbing into old Jonathan's lap and melting his heart with her sweetness until he'd forget and call her by her mother's name. He'd say: "Sweet as an angel, you are, Chickie girl."

And again, when she'd coquet

Past Casts Shadows As Girl Clamors For Life

with her father, resting her bright head on his shoulder with a chuckling: "Watch out, mother! He's almost young enough to be the gal's lover."

It seemed but a month since she was a wee, gold thing, all violet eyes and silken curls, and Martha Blake, holding her in happy arms, warned:

"Chickie, vow that no fear or shadow from your past will ever be allowed to daunt this girl's life. It is in your hands entirely."

And it was like last week that a proud radiant Chickie sailed with her husband and her four glowing children for the memorable two years in Europe. She wept on the homeward trip when the little girl's pretty face and precocious tongue kept the whole ship bubbling with delight.

Recalls the Past

How serene and unafraid those precious years had been. How swiftly they had gone! Now the oldest boy, Jon, was east studying to be an architect; the two younger were growing into tall, appealing boyhood.

And the girl, now haunting the mother's heart with her fire and beauty, clamored for life and an open road ahead.

David said, "I think we should let her go. There is so little happiness in the world. It's wrong to dash a joy like hers."

Old Jonathan, who would have sought the moon for Pippin, said, too, that she should go. To her grandfather Pippin was the queen who could do no wrong. It was he who gave her the nickname, so that few knew she was christened Martha for that great friend who had so stood Chickie in her need.

In her secret heart Chickie prayed her child would grow up strong and beautiful like Martha Blake. She thought the name might be a talisman and fancied Martha looking down from some sweet star to guide the girl.

"I know she will." Chickie once said to Mary. "You have no idea how it heartens me to feel your mother, sometimes, near." Mary said, weeping, "And if mother fails her, Chickie, count on me."

Mothers Rejoice

They were very close and now when it was decided their two daughters might go to the first real formal, Mary and Chickie were in a state of warm, joyous reminiscence.

They said: "Remember this—oh, remember that—?" The years dropped away. They were in the first flush of youth again, running up the hill to the little yellow cottage on Fair Oaks street, where Jenny in the sunlight sewed on the wondrous blue dress. Chickie could see its little silver flowers. She could feel yet the flush in her heart when Arthur kissed her.

When Pippin stood before them, excited and radiant as though she had blown in from a star, with her flower-blue eyes and shimmering hair, Chickie's heart filled suddenly with tears.

She went up to her father and pulled his head down, kissing him and whispering, "You're a darling. Will I get by?"

They followed her laughing to the door, watching until the machine was lost in darkness. Then they looked at each other with brimming eyes.

"What a pair of fools," David grinned.

But Chickie went to her daughter's room. She picked up shoes and set them in the closet. She dusted powder from the dressing table. In her mind was the image of Pippin crushing her heart with its young, sweet appeal. Nothing must ever happen to hurt that look—

Suddenly she dropped on her knees. She prayed:

Boulevard Strolls In Europe Are Dangerous Now

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Last three European wars have been street fights.

So the army from the home like poolroom marched down and threw cobblestones.

One lump on the skull led to another. Now you have to be very careful about municipal improvements in Paris, Berlin and Vienna.

If a repair crew starts digging up the street the premier ain't sure whether they are making trenches or fixing the water and gas mains.

And with things the way they are now he can't stop long enough to find out.

CONSTRUCTION COMES UNDER PWA PLANS

New Downtown Span Over Monongahela Proposed

By JOHN COWAN
Washington Correspondent

WASHI'GTON, Feb. 23.—Bills providing enabling legislation for the erection of seven river bridges proposed under the PWA projects of the Allegheny County authority today were introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman Clyde Kelly.

It is specified that "in order to facilitate interstate commerce, improve the postal service and provide for military and other purposes, the County of Allegheny and the Allegheny County authority, or either of them, be authorized to construct, maintain and operate bridges at the following points in Allegheny County:

Across the Monongahela River in Pittsburgh between the Wabash and Point bridges.

Across the Monongahela River at Homestead to replace Brown's Bridge.

Across the Monongahela River to replace the existing Glenwood Bridge.

Across the Monongahela River at McKeesport to replace the Dravosburg Bridge.

Across the Allegheny River between Pittsburgh and O'Hara Township to replace the existing Highland Park Bridge.

Across the Youghiogheny River at McKeesport to replace the existing Fifth Avenue Bridge, McKeesport.

Representative Kelly said passage of the bills would clear the way for the full authorization of the $23,000,000 public works funds asked for the Allegheny County Authority.

2 WOMEN HURT IN AUTO WRECK

Mrs. Logan Frye, 52, of 218 Spruce street, Latrobe, and her daughter, Freeda, 21, were injured when their automobile collided with another at Baum boulevard and Morewood avenue late yesterday, according to a police report.

Mrs. Frye suffered a probable skull fracture and her daughter, the driver, an injured knee. They were taken to Homeopathic Hospital.

Fred Balsom, 24, of 4828 Second avenue, suffered cuts and bruises when he was struck by an automobile while putting oil in his own car, parked near his home late yesterday, police reported. He was treated at a physician's office.

Margaret Benney, 18, of 304 Four Mile Run road, was slightly injured when an auto in which she was riding was struck by a truck in Second avenue, near Bates street, last night, according to police. Mike Grohroc, 41, of 2716 Jane street, driver of the truck, was charged with reckless driving, police said.

2 HURT, AUTOIST HELD IN CRASH

Two men were injured and an auto driver was arrested for leaving th scene of an accident on East Carson street, near Beck's Run road last night, according to police.

John Chick, 27, North Braddock, was held on charges of reckless driving and violating automobile laws after he was alleged to have driven away from the scene of a head-on crash in which his car figured, and to have used another man's driving license, police said.

Roosevelt DerTatevasian, 21, of North Braddock, a passenger in Chick's auto, and Chauncey Hapgood, alleged driver of the other car, were treated at South Side Hospital for injuries. Hapgood was charged with reckless driving, police reported.

Autoist Gets Gas, Flees Without Paying

A motorist, who sped away from the Gulf Refining Company station at Hamilton and Frankstown avenues without paying for the 10 gallons of gas the attendant, John Kelleher, put in his tank, was being sought by police today. Kelleher said he obtained the license number of the car. Police believe it was stolen.

PINCHOT PLANS NEW BATTLE, WIFE SAYS

Introduced by Mrs. Lois McBride, defeated candidate for Juvenile Court judge, to members of the Women's Political Educational Association at a dinner meeting in Kaufmann's last night as "the power behind the throne," Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, and flaming-haired crusader for the working classes, disclaimed current rumors concerning her husband's health. She said:

"Mr. Pinchot hasn't got cancer; he hasn't got kidney disease; he hasn't lost his mind or jumped out of a window—as has been circulated by his enemies. He will soon be back on the fighting line and will remain until some other disease puts him out of the running for good."

As in her many speeches before labor groups, Mrs. Pinchot reiterated her belief that the "New Deal" is an attitude of mind in relation to government, an effort to equalize economic forces and bring security to all classes. She discounted the economic assumption that bad times must follow good times in the natural cycle of things and offered unemployment insurance as a depression panacea "not only from a social and Christian point of view, but from a dollar and cents point of view as well."

DENOUNCES COYNE

To the consternation and embarrassment of a number of women whose political association with Senator James J. Coyne is no secret, she raked that gentleman over the coals with her usual fiery enthusiasm. She said:

"If it hand't been for Senator Coyne and a few others who wouldn't allow the minimum wage bill to come out on the floor of the Senate—seeing to it that the 'pickling committee' kept it out—we'd have won the minimum wage fight."

Although she readily admitted that the federal income tax as now administered has been a failure; that Mr. Morgan is known to have admitted that he paid no income tax on a $3,000,000 income, Mrs. Pinchot branded the manufacturers' sales tax—discussed and indorsed earlier in the evening by John D. Meyer, assistant state attorney general and former United States attorney—as the "worst and most iniquitous tax that could be imposed." She said:

"The manufacturers' sales tax is directly in opposition to the 'New Deal.' It is not only bad for the people because it cuts down their consuming power, but it is the worst and most iniquitous tax that could be imposed on the poor.

INCOME TAX EVASION

"People evade income tax because they fix it so they don't have to pay it. It is rigged and fixed. We've got to have taxes on the shoulders of those most able to bear them. The sales tax is putting tax on the poor. The man who makes, say a thousand dollars a year, would have to pay one or two per cent of it in sales taxes. A man like Mr. Mellon — he is a small man and looks like he has indigestion—cannot eat any more of the farmer's wheat than you or I. I don't know how many suits he has, maybe half a dozen, or how many new cars a year, maybe five, but the sales tax is an effective way of taking the burden off his shoulders and putting the tax on the poor."

Mr. Meyer then called attention to the fact that the sales tax would provide tax exemptions of food, clothing and the plainer necessaries of life, to relieve the man whose income was only $1,000 of any taxation at all. To which Mrs. Pinchot replied:

Mrs. Pinchot left the meeting to address workers at Versailles last night. She plans to speak to Clairton workers Saturday.

POLITICAL CLUB SHIFTS DANCE

Members of the Roosevelt Club of the Thirty-first Ward will hold a dance and floor show tomorrow night in Moose Temple, Homestead. Henry W. Reutzel, chairman, and Bernard W. Muiter, secretary, are in charge of the affair.

City police closed a Saturday night dance held in Lincoln Place three weeks ago, so this time they are taking no chances Reutzel said—they have moved the dance outside the city.

HIT THAT COLD
WHERE IT LIVES—
in the System!

Don't fool yourself about a cold! It's nothing to be taken lightly nor treated lightly. A cold is an internal infection that will quickly spread within the system unless promptly checked. The wise thing to take for a cold is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.

First of all, it is distinctly a cold remedy, and not a "cure-all." Secondly, it is an internal treatment. Thirdly, it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the treatment a cold requires and anything less is taking chances. All druggists sell Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and reject a substitute.

18 DRUGGISTS RESTRAINED

Injunctions against 18 druggists in the Pittsburgh district were granted in Federal Court today restraining them from making substitutions for Argyrol in filling prescriptions.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker grante the injunctions with the consent of the defendants on petition of the A. C. Barnes Company, manufacturers of Argyrol, who charged 30 druggists in the district sold, on prescriptions for Argyrol, solutions of other substances of cheaper quality.

The defendants were independent druggists not associated with chain rms.

Frank to Explain Vote Qualifications

Requirements of voters under the new registration laws will be explained by Registration Commissioner Jacob Frank at a meeting of the Bon Air Civic Association in the Bon Air public school tonight. Charles F. Smith, president of the association, will preside.

Widow Bequeaths $12,000 to Relatives

The will of Mrs. Louisa Bowers, a widow, of 319 Collins avenue, filed for probate today, divides $12,000 among her sister, Elizabeth Reichard, four nieces and a nephew. Her brother, Harry F. Domhoff, is named executor.

FATHER TO GET 'SHARE' OF SON

Charles L. Zinn, Jr., of 43 North Howard avenue, Bellevue, was given permission to have his 6-year-old son, Edward, in his home eight hours a week by Judge W. H. McNaugher, today.

Zinn contended the child's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Zinn, of 1853 Wittmer street, refused him permission to see the boy. He brought habeas corpus proceedings. The Zinns are separated. The court stipulated the father was to have the boy from 11 a. m. to 7 p. m. Saturdays.

M'NAIR SHIFTS ON ECONOMY SURVEY

Mayor McNair today had changed his mind on setting up an "economy and efficiency" board to make a survey of city departments with a view to slashing expenditures.

The Mayor, on leaving Baltimore yesterday, where he visited Mayor Howard W. Jackson, was quoted as saying he would probably establish a board of business experts patterned after the one in that city.

UP TO COUNCIL

Today McNair back in City Hall said:

"The question of a survey by business leaders is up to Council. I won't ask Council to do anything."

As a substitute proposal he urged that Mayor Jackson be brought here to look over the municipal situation. He added:

"If we could get Jackson here for two days he would tell us more than the businessmen after a whole year's study. What do they know about city hall?

PRAISES JACKSON

"Mayor Jackson is an old-fashioned Democrat who believes in economy. They can talk about the leaders of industry bringing economy to Baltimore, but Jackson is the man that did it.

"If I had any influence in the party I would like to see Jackson a member of the national cabinet. He would get us back to the old time Jeffersonian simplicity."

Councilman W. A. Magee has proposed an "efficiency survey" in place of an audit with experts from business houses and taxpaying bodies.

Battlers Upset Phone, Bring Police, Fines

An overturned telephone today took police to 4523 Liberty avenue where they interrupted a family quarrel and took two men and a woman into Police Court.

When the receiver was knocked off its hook in the home of John McKee, 46, the telephone company notified the police. They paid a visit to the house and arrested McKee, his wife, Mary, 45, and brother, Earl McKee, 58, on disorderly conduct charges. The police said they were having a violent argument.

The three were fined $10 or five days in jail when arraigned before Magistrate Charles J. McCall in the Forty-third Street Police Station.

Hurt on Trolley, Awarded $9,986

A broken arm suffered by George Sekey, 1012 Morningside drive, a cobbler, resulted in a jury awarding him $9,986 today against the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

Sekey testified his ability to earn a living had been affected by his injury, suffered, he said, March 4, 1930, when a street car conductor closed the door on his arm while he was on the first step at Forty-fourth and Butler streets.

LOGAN ARMORY PLAN DROPPED

The plan to build a $900,000 drill shed for the A. J. Logan Armory, Bellefield, was dropped today by the State Armory Board, according to an International News dispatch from Harrisburg.

The board slashed $630,000 from its original $2,000,000 allocation from the expected $14,000,000 PWA loan to Pennsylvania and eliminated the local armory project entirely. The reason given was that the grant to the armory here would have prevented many other projects throughout the state.

Application for an armory at Coraopolis was not approved because of lack of funds. Ellwood City's request for $65,000 for an artillery armory was approved.

END COMPANY STORE, TOWN BIDDLE ASKS

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Consolidation of the Department of Labor and Industry and the Department of Welfare, with the elimination of "such things as company stores," is suggested as the basis of Pennsylvania's social program by Eric H. Biddle, executive director of the state Emergency Relief Board.

Poor relief, workmen's compensation and mothers' assistance are among the things which would come under a central agency, Biddle proposes.

The administration of the program "would be protected by a civil service provision of the highest order."

TALKS AT CONFERENCE

Biddle, who is also state Civil Works Administrator, offered the proposals as "something to think about" in an address last night before the Pennsylvania Conference on Social Welfare. He said:

"The one social program of the future, must have as its base, first, adequate relief and, second, educational opportunity of retraining when industry has broken down.

"Of the things that ought to be eliminated as standing in the way of the social program, I would suggest such things as company stores, company towns, debased wage scales and other reflective forms of exploitation."

Relief should be paid in cash on the basis of budget deficiency of the families, he said, continuing:

"We must consolidate and rebuild after industrial wreck on one social program and not 10, each with a pet hobby.

"I have noticed the tendency recently toward differences of opinion between the Department of Labor and Industry and the Department of Welfare. There is no excuse for that.

"There must be one program based on social security. Modern life depends on that for its very existence."

CODE WAGES UPHELD

Miss Charlotte E. Carr, state Secretary of Labor and Industry, was among the speakers earlier in the day. She told the conference her department would enforce wage provisions of recovery codes.

J. Prentice Murphy, deputy secretary of the children's bureau, Philadelphia, predicted the government will deal with housing problems of needy families.

Describing eviction as "the hardest blow the depression deals," he said:

"The federal government, realizing this, will work out a plan to prevent such occurrences in the future."

Harry L. Lurie, director of the Jewish Bureau of Social Research, New York, said:

"We are rapidly approaching the point where the government is acting on the theory that the individual has a right to work and is seeking ways and means for providing such opportunities."

WHAT AND HOW TO COOK TOLD BY PRUDENCE

PEOPLE WHO brag about their French will tell you that "au gratin" means "with cheese." It's not so. "Au gratin" means dressed with crumbs, and if you don't believe it, you can look it up in the nearest dictionary.

Au gratin dishes do have cheese in them as a general rule, which accounts for the misunderstanding. But we are a purist at heart, and insist on giving credit where credit is due. The kind of crumbs that adorn many au gratin dishes are cracker crumbs—for the simple reason that they are so easy to achieve. Just put a few crackers in a paper bag, twist the top tightly so that none can escape, and apply the rolling pin lightly. Cracker crumbs turn out well, too—when sprinkled on top of a casserole dish and set in the oven, they turn a most becoming shade of brown.

POTATOES AU GRATIN—2 cups creamed potatoes, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 15 crackers, 3 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons grated cheese.

Put well seasoned creamed potatoes mixed with parsley in buttered baking dish. Mix finely crumbled crackers with melted butter. Spread prepared crackers over potatoes, sprinkle with cheese. Bake in a hot oven (475 degrees) for 15 minutes. Six portions.

* * *

BANANAS AU GRATIN—6 bananas, 2 lemons (juice), 12 cheese crackers, 2 tablespoons butter.

Peel and halve bananas. Dip in lemon juice and roll in finely crumbled cheese crackers. Place in buttered baking dish, dot with butter and bake in hot oven (435 degrees F.) 12 minutes or until tender. Six portions.

* * *

BLUSHING BUNNY—1 pound American cheese, flaked; 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup tomato soup, or sieved canned tomatoes; 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cayenne, 1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce, 1 egg, beaten; 24 crackers, toasted.

Put cheese and butter in top of double boiler. Cook over hot water, stirring until cheese is melted. Stir in tomato, mustard, salt, cayenne and worcestershire sauce. Add egg and beat for 1 minute while still cooking. Serve at once on toaster crackers, allowing four for each service. Six portions.

* * *

RING TUM DITTY—1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 pound American cheese, flaked; 1 cup milk, 1 cup tomato catsup, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper, 1 egg, well beaten, 12 crackers.

Melt butter in heavy saucepan and lightly fry onion. Add cheese and stir over low flame until melted. Gradually add the milk, catsup, mustard, worcestershire, salt and pepper, and stir until thoroughly heated. Stir in egg, cook 1 minute longer and serve over heated crackers. 6 portions.

* * *

CHEESE RELISH—½ lb. soft yellow cheese, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 green pepper, chopped, 1 chopped onion, ½ teaspoon worcestershire sauce, 1 can red kidney beans, 2 tablespoons ketchup, hot buttered toast, salt, pepper and cayenne to taste.

Melt the cheese in the butter, stirring constantly. Add the finely chopped pepper and onion, and seasonings. Then add the red kidney beans and ketchup. Mix thoroughly and heat. Serve on hot buttered toast.

Wife Who Killed Rival Goes Free

DADEVILLE, Ala., Feb. 23.—(INS.)—A wife who took the law in her hands and slew her rival for her husband's affections was freed today by an Alabama jury that returned an acquittal verdict after brief deliberation in the wife's trial for murder.

Mrs. Curtis Whitaker, 32, told the jury she shot Leuella Mask, 21, to death in a drug store January 25 because the young woman had stolen her husband's love.

While countless women have been benefiting from Prudence Penny's prize recipes in a culinary way, almost 1,500 women have been reaping financial awards in the form of one and five dollar checks, distributed daily. These checks have been a great help in many homes. One woman used the money she received toward buying a wooden limb for her crippled son; another bought her children some much needed clothes; still a third used the money for food.

And while these women, and many others, were financially aided by the contest, their sister housewives were keeping homes happy with meals made better by new recipes obtained through Prudence Penny. Quite a few brides, especially, have written in praising the contest which has broadened their meager knowledge of efficient and delectable cooking.

Help yourself and others by sending in your recipes to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Whether you win the $5 prize or one of the 10 $1 prizes given to the best recipes, you'll find the investment of a stamp will repay you well. No recipes are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. JOHN H. YOUNG, Sr.,
R. F. D. No. 1, Sandy Creek, Verona.
MINT MAYONNAISE

Three tablespoons mint jelly.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
Dash of salt.
One-fourth cup oil mayonnaise.
One-fourth cup cream, whipped.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

MRS. LOUIS AQUILINO,
519 Chartiers avenue, Canonsburg.
OYSTER CRUMB DISH

One pint stewing oysters.
One large onion (diced).
One-half cup cooking oil.
One-half cup grated parmesan cheese.
Two cups bread crumbs.
One-fourth teaspoon black pepper.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Two cups water.

Fry onion in oil until a golden brown. Add water and bring to a boil. Add oysters, simmer a few minutes, add crumbs, cheese, salt and pepper. Put in a baking dish and bake 10 minutes in hot oven. Serve immediately.

FLORENCE E. ROBIN,
52 Creighton road, Crafton.
BAKED FILLET OF FISH WITH OYSTER STUFFING

One fresh fish.
One pint oysters.
Salt.
Pepper.
Lemon juice.
One egg, well beaten.
One tablespoon milk.
One cup dry crumbs.

Clean, skin and bone fish. Season fillets thus obtained with salt, pepper; brush with lemon juice and the egg, diluted with milk. Lay one fillet on a well-oiled fish sheet. Cover with oysters which have been seasoned and rolled in crumbs. Lay the other fillet on these. Brush with the egg. Cover thickly with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350-450 degrees F.) until tender, about one hour. Serve with Hollandaise sauce. Six to eight servings.

Hollandaise Sauce

Juice of one lemon.
One-fourth cup butter.
Two egg yolks, beaten slightly.
One tablespoon cornstarch.

Put water, lemon juice and butter in top of double boiler. Mix cornstarch with eggs. Add hot mixture to egg mixture, stirring constantly. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened, stirring continually. Six servings, one-eighth cup each.

MRS. WILLIAM RATHKE,
No. 3 Shank street.
DELICIOUS DEVILS FOOD CAKE

One-half cup of cocoa.
One-half cup of sour milk.
One half cup sugar.
(Boil and cool.)
One-half cup of butter, creamed.
One cup of sugar.
Two eggs, beaten.
One [illegible] of [illegible]
Two cups of flour (a little additional can be added if needed.)
One teaspoon of baking powder.
One half teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One teaspoon of soda in a little boiling water.

MRS. J. K. SOWASH,
Irwin.
PEACH SUNSHINE

One quart fresh peaches, ground.
One quart sugar.

Pare peaches and grind at once so they will not get dark. Add sugar and boil 25 minutes. Makes a very clear peach jam.

MISS JANE CRABLE,
422 Vine street, East Liverpool, O.
HOT CREAM CHEESE SANDWICH

Put slices of American cheese between bread. Put a large lump of butter into a skillet and place on fire. When hot put sandwich in the skillet and brown to a delicious golden color. When done on one side immediately turn over on other, and if necessary add more butter.

MRS. GERTRUDE KERR,
Freeport.
FRIED STUFFED EGGS

Hard cook six eggs. When cold, peel off shells, then halve lengthwise, remove yolks and mash well. To six yolks add three tablespoons of fine soft bread crumbs, a tablespoon of melted butter, half a teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon of pepper and a teaspoon each of grated onion and chopped parsley. Blend with a raw egg yolk. Fill the whites, pressing the stuffing in well. Then put the egg halves together. Fasten them at either end with a toothpick and roll in fine sifted bread crumbs. Then in beaten egg and again in bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat heated to 390 degrees as you would croquettes. Serve hot, garnished with sprigs of parsley and pass tomato sauce.

MRS. E. ATTERSON,
P. O. Box 44, E. McKeesport,
ARTICHOKES

Ten artichokes.
Six ounces olive oil.
One chopped onion, medium size.
Ten tiny spring onions.
Ten small carrots.
One teaspoon flour.
One teaspoon mixed herbs.
Juice of one lemon.
Two cups water.

Cut off hard outer leaves and spiky tops of artichokes. Wash and scrape stalks. Rub with lemon. Soak in slightly salted water to prevent blackening. Put olive oil and chopped onion on stove. Do not allow to brown. Add flour. Add vegetables, herbs and lemon juice. Add seasoning. Add water to cover. Cover. Let simmer one hour.

R. SHOUP,
1748 Jancey street.
SWISS STEAK

Have butcher cut individual servings of round steak about one inch thick and about three inches in diameter. (It will run about four servings to pound.) Roll each piece in flour, brown on both sides in skillet. Add sliced onion to taste, one bay leaf, one-eighth teaspoon cloves. Cover with water. Thicken at once with flour. Cover and cook slowly (350 degrees) for about two or three hours. This can also be cooked on top of stove over a slow fire.

JEAN C. McCANDLESS,
161 Longue Vue drive, Mt. Lebanon.
DELICIOUS BRIDGE SALAD

One cup cooked noodles.
Two cups finely shredded cabbage.
Three carrots, shredded.
Ten stuffed olives cut in small pieces.
Salt and pepper to taste.

Add one cup of your favorite mayonnaise. Serve on bed of lettuce and garnish with slice of ripe tomato.

MISS BESSIE GUCKERT,
Royer street.
CHOCOLATE GRAHAM ROLL

One cup chopped dates.
One tablespoon orange juice.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Eight marshmallows, diced.
One-half cup chopped nut meats.
One cup whipped cream.

Pour orange juice over dates. Reserve one tablespoon cracker crumbs—combine with remainder marshmallows, nuts and dates. Add salt to cream. Fold in crumb mixture. Sprinkle reserved crumbs on wax paper. Pour mixture over crumbs. Shape into roll. Place in refrigerator for 12 hours before serving. Slice and serve with flavored whipped cream.

Army Mule's Kick Costs U. S. $10,000

BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—An Army mule cost the federal government $10,000.

This amount was awarded Frank Evans yesterday by Federal District Court on a war risk insurance policy. The mule kicked Evans while he was in France, blinded his right eye, deafened his right ear, fractured his skull and caused him continued pain which the court considered amounted to permanent and total disability.

COMMISSIONER DIES IN SLEEP

BEAVER, Pa., Feb. 23.—County Commissioner Walter Goettman, 51, long active in Democratic politics in Beaver County, was found dead in bed this morning by his wife, Mrs. June Anderson Goettman. He apparently was in good health last night.

Mr. Goettman was serving his second term as County Commissioner. Besides his wife, he leaves two daughters, Miss Rosemary and Miss Elva Goettman; a son, Leonard; a sister, Mrs. Leman Dalby, and three brothers, Elmer, Leonard and Charles W. Goettman.

Jap Who Predicted U. S. War Promoted

TOKIO, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Rear Admiral Nobusama Suetsugu, commander of the Japanese fleet who recently wrote a widely-published magazine article discussing the possibilities of war between the United States and Japan, today was promoted to the rank of admiral.

Rear Admiral Shushin Nagano also was made an admiral. He was one of Japan's chief delegates to the Geneva disarmament conferences last year.

Crash Kills Youth At New Brighton

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Feb. 23.—Charles Patterson, 22, of 1305 Fourth avenue, was killed today when he was hurled through the windshield of his car after it hit a traffic light at Ninth street and Fifth avenue, New Brighton. John Javens and Miss Mary Novac, both of Beaver Falls, escaped injuries.

U. S. TO ACQUIRE MORE FORESTS

Areas aggregating 377,302 acres have been approved for purchase for national forest purposes by the National Forest Reservation Commission, it has been announced by the Department of Agriculture.

The largest forest addition approved is 74,374 acres in the Monongahela National Forest at the headwaters of the Monongahela River. Addition of 1,885 acres to the Allegheny National Forest has also been approved.

Canned Fruits, Vegetables Are Healthful

Noted Health Authority Heartily Endorses Use of Canned Foods for Both Children and Adults Where Fresh Foodstuffs Cannot Be Obtained; Says They Are Nutritive and Carefully Prepared for Year-Round Use.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Former Health Commissioner of New York City,
United States Senator from New York.

"I live in a section of the country where it is almost impossible to get fresh vegetables and fruits. In place of them I have been using canned fruits and vegetables. Are canned foods healthful? Can I give them to my children? I would appreciate any information you can give me about canned fruits."

This paragraph is taken from a letter similar to many I receive. I am glad to answer it.

Canned foods are healthful. They may be given to any member of the family. For the baby, there are canned foods which are strained and specially prepared for infant feeding. By all means, use canned fruits and vegetables when fresh foodstuffs cannot be obtained.

There are many who still believe that canned foods are unsuitable for human consumption. Their knowledge is based on old beliefs. Today, the canning industry is one of the largest and most carefully supervised industries in the world. In consequence, these products are safe and valuable additions to the diet.

Years of research work by chemists, doctors and food experts have proven that canning foods does not cause them to lose their nutritive value. Only clean, ripe and wholesome foods are used for canning. The flavor of the food is not destroyed. The vitamin content of most canned food is equal to that of cooked food.

UNDER REGULATIONS

It is true that vitamins B and C are to a certain extent lost in canning or cooking. But canned foods maintain most of their other valuable food substances. They are of great importance when fresh fruits and vegetables are out of season.

Canned foods are subject to government regulations. The Food and Drugs Act is enforced by the Department of Agriculture. Most states have regulations which all canneries must meet. Canned goods are graded and labeled so that the purchaser may know what each can contains.

The better grades of vegetables which are canned are known as "fancy," "extra fancy," "standard" and "extra standard." The poorer grades must have stated on the labels that they are "below the United States standard, low grade, but not illegal."

KEEP INDEFINITELY

It is said that there are more than 75 varieties of vegetables. The most popular are corn, tomatoes and green peas. Experiments have shown that canned vegetables are best when heated in their own juices. In this way, the flavor and nutritive substances are retained.

The canning industry is highly perfected. In the best grades only choice fruits and vegetables are used. The "tin" cans used are clean and healthful. Food will keep in them indefinitely if properly stored, but should be removed as soon as the tin has been opened.

Bandmaster Victim Of Heart Attack

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Lieut. Thomas F. Shannon, 72, one of the leading bandmasters of the East and former associate of the late John Philip Sousa, died of heart disease at his home Wednesday night. He was leader of Shannon's 23d Regiment Band and music conductor for the New York delegation at the inauguration of Presidents McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt and Taft.

LABOR PROBERS SET HEARING

Gov. Pinchot's commission appointed to investigate employment of deputy sheriffs in labor disputes will hold hearings in centers affected by labor strife, Councilman John J. Kane announced today.

Kane announced acceptance of his appointment on the commission. J. W. Madden, Pitt law instructor, also is a member.

Hiring of deputies by mining companies will be the first matter investigated, according to a letter received by Kane from Shippen Lewis, of Philadelphia, chairman of the commission.

Though the Governor has said he is particularly interested in the deputies' activities in the Ambridge steel strike of last fall, there was no announcement concerning an inquiry at Ambridge.

Kane said leaders of the coal industry and miners would be interviewed March 10 and 11 and open hearings would be held in the coal fields later. Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, has been asked to appoint representatives of labor to appear before the investigators.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS! :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Chivalrous Men Are Popular With the Ladies

My mother used to tell me of a certain man who had lived on the North Side of Pittsburgh when she was a girl and the river bank was stylish. In flood times he used to come for her and take her out in a little boat, and they even stood on top of the old square piano when the Allegheny River was a foot deep on the parlor floor.

He was a lady's man, mother always would say. Will had a way with him, No matter how many girls he went with, the one to whom he was talking was always sure she was the only one.

She would go on to say how Will made a hit with both the elderly women and the young ones. "My mother thought him fine," she would reminisce. "He couldn't do wrong in her eyes, and many a time I came home and found her sitting entertaining him. She wouldn't have bothered with any other beau of the day. It was a way Will had."

MOURNED BY WOMEN

Will went on and married well and lived to a ripe old age and became a big official in a bank, and everyone respected him, and he had a big funeral, and women were the chief mourners.

This was the way mother always finished her tale.

I remember a fellow who was slim and had dark curly hair and beautiful teeth. He danced like the wind and could write you the sort of letters that said everything but "Will you marry me?" He came to my house on East End avenue often, and when I wasn't there he would talk to my mother . . . and he even gave her a piece of chewing gum one day, and when I came home she was chewing it. That alone placed Harry with my mother.

Harry played hob with the girls' hearts. But he did not mean to. He was always sorry. He called each one of us "little woman." And could sing. And when he stood at the piano and warbled love ditties all the girls were emotionally upset. And all the men had their fists clenched. One girl, I remember, tumbled right and left for him. Not that he encouraged her any more than he had me or any of the rest of us.

BLAMED FRIENDS

When he began back-pedaling and wondering whether he ought to go South or North, she was broken-hearted. But she didn't blame Harry. Oh, no. She blamed me. And Harry's best man chum. And anyone else who had chanced to be around.

I can still feel her hand tremble as she buttoned my dress and while Harry was ringing the front door bell.

Of course, she knew Harry's ring. It was distinctive, like everything else about him.

Well, anyway, she married the other man. And Harry drifted to California, and it is said he married a rich man's daughter. So that is the end of Harry, so far as you and I are concerned.

Today I am thinking of a young fellow of 24. He is tall and charming and dark as a breath of Spain. He can talk a blue streak, and convince his feminine listener of anything. He never considers age, especially if it is a woman's age. On he goes, and he holds us. It isn't that he says anything exactly along the line of love. It's that romance clings to that line of his like the snow birds to the telephone wires on a frosty day.

Chivalry is there. And we eat that up, since not even a seat is granted us on a crowded car these times, and by the sunken male sitters. In that nice young fellow there is a mixture of John Barrymore and Lord Byron and old Adam in one that altogether makes up a personality surely irresistable. And so he goes about, from flower to flower, and every flower is willing and ready to be his only little flower.

NEVER SERIOUS

But he isn't ready. He has life ahead. He has other thoughts than marriage. He wants to make something of himself, poor dear.

There is no harm in him. He is kindness personified. He likes women awfully well, and, although he is now in Atlanta (no, not a prisoner, but the promoter of a big corporation), and, although he does let one girl drive him home from his office and rides down to the heart of his working city in a bus with another girl, and takes still a third to lunch . . . he doesn't mean harm to any one of them.

Bleeding hearts . . . Oh yes. Tears, my goodness. That is to be expected.

But he never really has been serious. No, not once.

He is just Will and Harry all over again.

And as long as spring comes in April, and autumn colors the trees in October, will there be such young men.

They are born over again. Cut from the same pattern. And for the specific purpose of letting girls into the secret of what all men might be if they only knew how.

But there aren't enough of them to go around. They are like radium. Or fine cut precious stones.

Given in Marriage :-: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Newlyweds Make Last Effort to Escape Wedding Party

Mary put her hands to her head with a gesture of exasperation as Katy told her that she never would be able to fool the young people who were trailing the bridal party, if she wore her new traveling hat above Mrs. Ticer's old coat.

"What a dumb coot I turned out to be!" she said, whipping off the offending hat and gazing at it menacingly. "Luckily, it's one of those things it won't hurt to fold!"

She tucked the hat in the folds of Mrs. Ticer's coat, which enveloped her, and looked appealingly at the elder woman.

"May I wear your hat, too?" she asked. "Oh! How dear of you!"

For Mrs. Ticer was already taking down from a hook upon the wall the comfortable but somewhat shapeless old felt hat which she wears to work. She walked back to Mary with it and pressed the hat down over her dusky hair.

"Turn around," she demanded. Then, as Mary obeyed, she gave a delighted chuckle.

'Isn't she the spittin' image of me from the back?" she asked joyously.

The resemblance in figure, stuffed out as Mary was with Mrs. Ticer's sweater, was indeed remarkable, and I said so with decision.

"Watch me!" Mary said, and walked across the room in so life-like an imitation of Mrs. Ticer's gait that our laughter was punctuated with astonished little gasps.

SATISFACTORY DISGUISES

"Perfect!" I ejaculated.

"Marvelous!" Noel said with shining eyes. And Mary swept us a bow.

"You're pretty nifty, yourself," she told Noel, who had invested himself, with Mr. Ticer's help, in the older man's long raincoat and old slouch hat.

"You haven't time for compliments," I warned. "You must start at once. Remember, the car is just behind the barn, and Jerry is watching this door so as to start it when he sees you come out."

Noel started for the door, but Mary waited to throw her arms around me, clinging to me as she had done to Marion.

"Goodby, dearest and best of aunties," she murmured, then gave me a warm tremulous kiss and hastily followed Noel, throwing back over her shoulder exuberant little goodbys and thanks to Katie and the Ticers as she went.

She grabbed Noel by the arm just as he was opening the door.

"All ready, Katie?" she inquired "Don't forget, when we're about ten feet from the door. Noel, remember you go first."

NEWLYWEDS LEAVE

I caught back a smile at Mary's recognition of the manner in which the Ticer's always walked, Mr. Ticer invariably stalking along a few feet in advance of his wife.

"All night," Noel said. "Goodby, everybody!"

His voice was perfunctorily courteous, but mechanical, and I knew that he was practically moving as in a trance, with but one obsessing thought—to get Mary safely away before Avis Arlen should have a chance to make any further mischief.

But Mary was keyed up to concert pitch. "What a radio announcer my husband turned out to be," she gibed. "Let us hope he'll be able to say 'Heigh-ho, everybody,' just as musically when we get back. Now Noel, open the door!"

Noel obeyed her, and passed out in front of her. She whispered something to him as he passed, and I guessed that it was a second reminder to walk like Mr. Ticer. At any rate, he went down the path, simulating Mr. Ticer's gait in creditable fashion—he has not his histrionic heritage in vain—and Mary came plodding after him so like Mrs. Ticer that I almost turned my head to make sure that, by some unexpected metamorphosis, they had not exchanged roles.

The Beauty Box

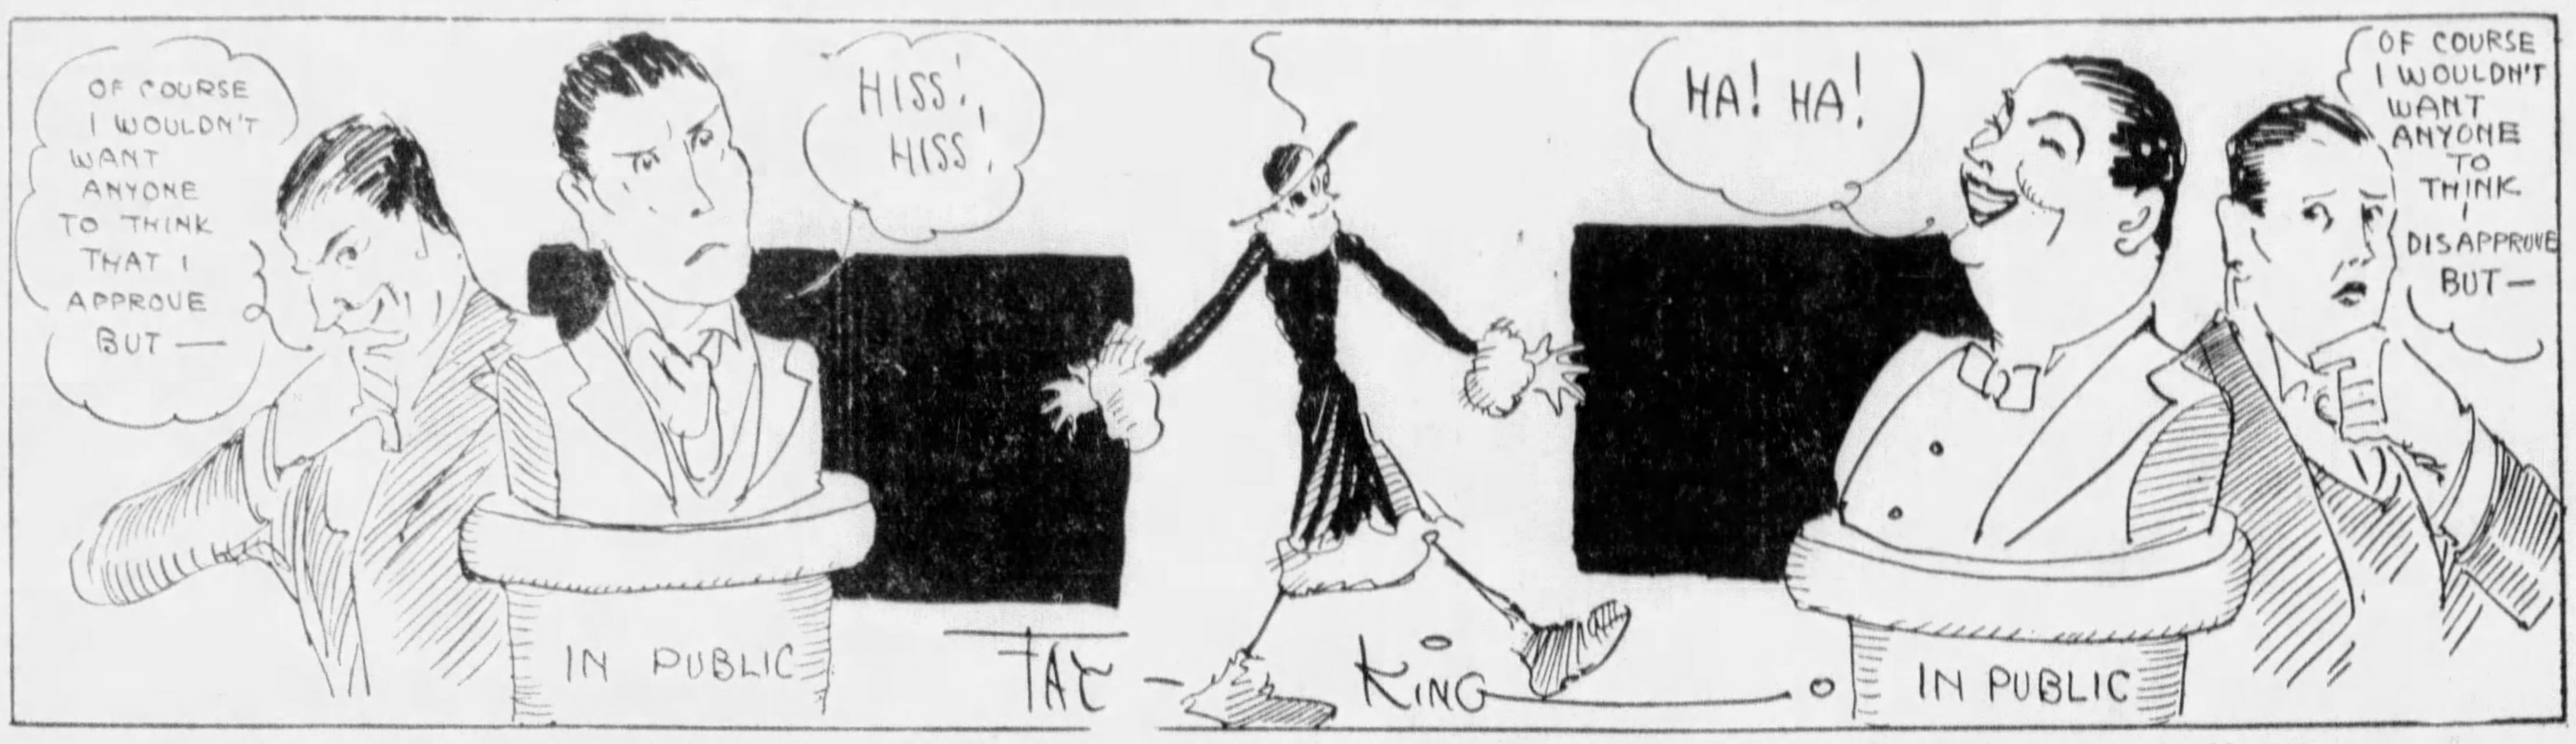
By HELEN FOLLETT

The egg mask is recommended for a skin that has taken on creases and for tissues that have gone on a riotous slump. Bathe the face with soap and warm water, rinse with warm water, then with cold, dry gently. Beat the egg-white and yolk with a fork, not to a foam. Apply with a brush, if you have one. If you haven't, the egg can be smoothed on with flattened fingers. Lie down for half an hour. Remove the mask with tepid water, get active with the tissue cream.

Clavicular breathing — a big hearty intake of air that lifts the collar bones and the shoulders—is what the would-be-bosomy girl should try. Oh, yes, the new slogan is "Be busty or bust." This kind of breathing does the Simon Legree act to blood streams. Active blood streams react upon the complexion, bring to it a healthy color, a tint that beats rouge compacts all hollow. Digestion is stimulated and that's good for everything—hair, skin, finger nails and figure. It puts the fascinating glitter in the eye, too. It boosts spirits, creates zestful appetite, makes sleep more refreshing. This kind of beautifying is as free as air. Lap it up.

Fay King Exposes a Hypocrite Who Usually Gets Away With It



OF COURSE I WOULDN'T WANT ANYONE TO THINK THAT I APPROVE BUT—
HISS! HISS!
IN PUBLIC
OF COURSE I WOULDN'T WANT ANYONE TO THINK I DISAPPROVE BUT—IN PUBLIC
FAY KING

By FAY KING

There are some persons who pretend to be much better than they really are. Publicly they will condemn things which they privately condone. They are rightly called hypocrites.

But there is also another sort of a hypocrite who does exactly the opposite. Publicly they condone and applaud anything which may be offensive. In private they will often express their honest opinion, and it would be well worth quoting.

Of the two hypocrites I think the second is much the worse!

For public behavior has a much wider influence.

But the strange part of it is that the second sort of hypocrite is just as cautious in concealing his better nature as the first one is in concealing his worse nature.

Both are regrettable.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Pre-emptive Bids

When a Bridge player's strength is massed almost wholly in one suit of great length, many players believe that the best type of Opening bid is a Pre-emptive bid with the design of shutting out the exchange of information between opponents. As a general proposition, this is true. Unhappily, however, Pre-emptive bids also sometimes shut out partner, who may have a suit of his own at which the hand could much more profitably be played.

A hand that was opened with a Pre-emptive bid by many North players occurred in the recent Grand National Pair Championship of the United States Bridge Association in New York. Some, through faulty defense, were able to make their contracts, although correct play should result in a one-trick defeat for the Declarer. Of all amazing contracts reached on the hand, perhaps the most extraordinary was that of one no-trump, played by South.

South, Dealer.

North:
♠ 5
♡ K Q 10 9 6 4 2
◇ A J
♣ 7 6 4

West:
♠ Q 10 8 4
♡ J 5 3
◇ K Q 10 8 2
♣ 3

East:
♠ A K 6 3 2
♡ A 8 7
◇ 7 5 4
♣ Q 10

South:
♠ J 9 7
◇ 9 6 3
♣ A K J 9 8 5 2

The bidding of the hand at several tables was as follows:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass (1) | Pass | 4 ♡ (2) | Pass (3) |
| Pass | Pass | | |

1—It is extremely doubtful if this hand should be passed in Duplicate. The seven-card club suit suggests the wisdom of attempting to shut out vulnerable opponents by a mild semi-Pre-emptive bid of three clubs.

2—With any ordinary division of the trump suit, North figures that he should take seven tricks with his hand. The Pre-emptive game bid is based upon the fear that vulnerable opponents may be able to exchange information and reach a makable game contract in spades.

3—East's hand is too weak to justify an Overcall at the range of four. The Pre-emptive bid and the fact that he does not know whether his partner's hand is trickless or not, of course, preclude a Double.

At the tables where the four-heart contract was undertaken, it was made either doubled or undoubled at all but two. The line of defense which brought about the defeat of the contract is, however, fairly clearly marked.

East's Opening lead was the spade King, and the Ace was continued, which North ruffed. North's next play was to lay down the heart Queen, and East, not entirely certain whether or not his partner held the King, played low. The Queen held the trick, and North then continued with the King, hoping to strip the Knave in the hand of either East or West. East, however, won this trick, and now, instead of forcing the Declarer again, shifted to the seven of diamonds, reasoning that North was certain to make the contract unless West had a trick in trumps and unless a trick in diamonds could be established before the last trump was drawn. East knew from his own holdings that the clubs in Dummy would give North a wealth of discards regardless of how the suit was played. The play, it appeared, could not lose and might win, while the useless forcing of the Declarer could be of no benefit.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Should a Girl Obey Her Parents or Her Heart?

Should a "girl" of 28 let mamma run her life?

And if mamma runs that life to ruin—whose fault is it?

Why am I asking these questions? Marie is why—Marie and her Blighted Love. But who's the Blighter?

Dear Elsie—

Will you please help me to decide what I shall do? I am a girl of 28 and I am very fond of my parents. I have always tried to do nothing to make them unhappy. But now I have fallen in love with a man whom my mother absolutely refuses to give her consent to my marrying. This is making her very unhappy.

I'll admit there is a big difference in our ages. He is 43. But he loves me deeply, and I love him. We want to get married, but my mother swears that she will never speak to me again if we do; that she will go away to another city, and never let Dad or me know where she is. She says that she will do this because she will be ashamed to face her friends, who will laugh and snicker if I marry this man.

There is no reason on earth why she should feel this way. He is a man with no bad habits. He is very kind and thoughtful, and has a good disposition. He has a job as proprietor of a restaurant, and can support a wife in comfort. He is liked by all who know him. All she can possibly object to is our difference in age.

PARENTS DISAPPROVE

We have all known him for more than three years. Six months ago, he and I found we were in love with each other. Mother and Dad liked him until that happened. Dad never says much, but I know he doesn't approve either. I am sure I can win him over. With Mother, there are continual arguments. She works herself into hysterics every time she finds I've seen him. She cries and cries, and says I'll "be sorry" if I marry him.

It just breaks my heart to see her crying, but I feel I can't give him up. I promised I will, just to make her happy, but I can't keep those promises. Then, when I don't, it's more tears and pleading.

He knows all this. He wants to talk to her, but I know she would just insult him, and I won't let him. He wants me to go away with him and get married. He thinks that when we come back she will forgive us, but I am not so sure she would. She has a stubborn nature.

So you see I am torn between love for him and loyalty to my parents. I've tried to break with him, but I can't. I feel that there lies my happiness. Must I give it up, throw it away, just because my mother doesn't approve?

Don't you think we could be happy, in spite of our difference in age? I know I can't stand much more of these tantrums that mother works herself into. What shall I do? I've got to do something, and do it quick.

MARIE.

What'll you do? Act your age! Want to know what's really messing up your life? No mamma's grief, but your own infantile notion that you're still a helpless girl. You're not. You're a woman, and your first duty as a woman is to do your own thinking.

KNOW OWN MIND

At present you feel that it's a crime to make your own decisions. It isn't. It's criminal, at your age, not to make them! You needn't be heartless or ungrateful when you do make them—but make them you must, if you ever expect to have any "rights" or any happiness. And if you won't make them, you deserve neither rights nor happiness. For life won't stand by us if we don't stand by her.

So, if you want to marry—do so! You don't need anyone's "consent." You only need sufficient gumption to know your own mind and stand by your own man—against the world, if need be.

As for mamma, she's just suffering from an old-fashioned tantrum because she wants her own way. And the fact that she's a mother of 50 doesn't make that tantrum one particle more dignified than if she were a naughty child of 5.

Will it make her happy if you give up your sweetheart? No, it won't. For that will lock you three all the closer in the tight, tragic huddle that's causing all the trouble. If you really want to make her happier, snap out of that huddle. Break away from the old, unhealthy ways. Bring a new adventure, new hope and joy and pride into the home, by your marriage.

And suppose she stays mad? Then, Sissy, that will be her bad luck, not yours. But, personally, I'm betting she won't.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Walk easily in one of the new tongueless oxfords. A southern model done in white buckskin with white pigskin has a perforated design and cut-outs.

Just now one should be wary in buying an evening wrap for usually Spring demands something new. For wear now and later, a good choice would be a tailored coat of white faille shot with gold threads and closed with big jade buttons, as both white and green are important Spring colors.

Snow falls at northern winter resorts, and smart ski-ing clothes are seen. A new Tyrolean suit has plus-four trousers in heavy gray woolen cloth. The coat matches, but the shirt-blouse is of mulberry colored flannel with green suspenders for the trousers. The Tyrolean hat is of green felt.

CUTWORK PATTERN 567

Cutwork Makes Choice Linens

As every housewife longs to make cutwork linens, here is the needlewoman's opportunity to make a variety of lovely pieces. As each motif is simple and quick to do, a collection of things can be made in a short time. Cutwork embroidery, one of the loveliest types of decoration for linens, is easy to do. It is just buttonhole and eyelet stitch. It has a richness and beauty in its simple design that gives the needlewoman as much joy in possessing it as in making it.

Pattern 567 contains a transfer pattern, of four motifs five inches square for a bridge cloth, four motifs 1¼ inches high for napkins; two motifs 2½x9 inches for towels and lingerie case, with a back edge for two towels given; two butterflies 4 inches square and one butterfly and one reverse 3½ inches square for pillows, lingerie cases and pincushions; illustrated directions for doing cutwork and suggestions for placing the motifs and yardages for a variety of articles that can be made of this pattern.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Another Meeting

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There is a certain young lady whom I am very anxious to associate with, and last week I had an engagement with a girl friend, after working hours, and this young lady happened to be with my friend, so I was introduced to her and we took her home. The next night the same thing happened, and again we took her home.

Would it be proper for me to pay my new acquaintance a visit, and if so, what should I say to introduce myself so unexpectedly?

H.

I don't believe that we can let you "just appear" so unexpectedly as this, for the girl would expect that you would ask for her permission to call. However, if you think that fate might not be so fortunate to you in the next few days as to give you another chance meeting with this girl, it would be quite all right for you to telephone her and ask her if she would like to, say, go to the movies with you. Then the choice will be left with her.

Future In-Laws

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A young man, while attending the university, met and become engaged to a young lady. Her parents and his live in the same city but are not acquainted. It is a foregone conclusion that this young couple will wed. Now the problem is—who should make the first gesture toward the acquaintance of the respective parents, the young lady's parents, or vice versa?

W.

If the couple really are engaged, and the parents of both know it, it would seem the most natural thing in the world that they should meet, even if neither financee or the fiance is in the town in which the parents reside.

The best form would be for the mother and father of the fiance to call on the mother and father of the fiancee, since she is the one who should have the first welcoming visit.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Seek Cause of 'Celiac Disease'

Dr. Copeland

When I was a medical student, little was known about "celiac disease." It is only within the past ten years that this ailment has been properly understood. It is an affliction of infants and young children. Though the actual cause is not known, sufferers from it are no longer doomed to an untimely end.

Celiac disease occurs among the rich as well as the poor; it is most common in infants between 9 and 18 months. It is rarely encountered in breast-fed infants, being most prevalent among the bottle-fed.

The young sufferers show signs of arrested growth and faulty development. As a rule, the child is underweight, undersized, tires easily and learns to walk at a late date. He does not take the proper nourishment. Because of this he becomes more susceptible to other childhood diseases and infections.

The exact cause of celiac disease is not known, but it is an established fact that in this ailment the body is unable properly to utilize the fats, starches and certain sugars. Until this fact was recognized, little hope could be offered to these young sufferers.

Today the child is put on a diet containing little fat and cellulose. Occasionally he is placed on a "protein milk" or skimmed "lactic acid milk" diet. Your doctor will tell you about this.

As the child improves, cottage cheese, egg, scraped beef, sieved liver, mashed vegetables and fruits are added to the diet. Care in the diet helps a lot.

Great progress in the treatment of this strange disease has followed the use of the banana diet. Children suffering from celiac disease have shown remarkable improvement when placed on this diet.

The banana may be given to the very young infant, as well as to the older child. When given to the infant, the strained ripe pulp of the fruit is used with a portion of milk.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of early recognition of celiac disease. When discovered in its early stages, cure is more easily accomplished. But in many instances the disease is overlooked or mistaken for some other ailment. When neglected, the disorder becomes chronic and then it is much more difficult to cure.

As I have said, children with this disease are underweight and undernourished. They fail to make the necessary strides in growth and development.

Children afflicted with celiac disease are irritable and easily crossed. They whine and cry incessantly. As the health improves, there is a marked change in the disposition. The child becomes more pleasant, playful and gains rapidly.

It is hoped that the underlying cause of this disease will soon be discovered by the scientists who have done so much in the prevention and cure of disease. Only then will the prevention of this affliction be possible.

We should make every effort to improve the general health and to safeguard every child against infections and childhood disorders. Do your part by consulting your doctor if you are concerned about the health and development of your child.

Answers to Health Queries

A Reader. Q.—Will cancer result from eating or drinking hot food or drink? 2—Will a sugar substitute, used in hot chocolate, prove harmful in any way? 3—How do infected tonsils or teeth affect the general health?

A.—No, but it is unwise to make a practice of taking excessively hot or cold food or drink. 2—No. 3—The poisons escaping from the diseased tonsils or teeth are absorbed by the system, causing infection, and often affecting even remote parts of the body.

E. G. Q.—My face has been itching for the past three weeks and I cannot account for the disturbance. What would you advise?

A.—Itching may be due to a number of different causes. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Peggy. Q.—I have been under a nervous strain and my digestion has been affected. What would you advise under these circumstances?

A.—First of all overcome the underlying nervousness. Simple food, rest and relaxation should be of general benefit and advantage. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Thank You. Q—Would you advise me to have diseased tonsils removed?

A—Yes.

"This dimity dress is a good advertisement for Chipso!" Mrs. Garn exclaimed. "It was new in 1930 AND STILL LOOKS NEW!"

"My tan rayon is two years old, too. It's had plenty of Chipso washing WITHOUT CHANGING COLOR or losing its smooth sheen."

"Robert's Jersey is two years old. Safe Chipso washing has kept it SOFT . . . colors clear," says Mrs. Garn.

"I've worn this embroidered blue crepe-de-chine for 3 YEARS," Joyce says. "Mother has let it down twice, yet it's still pretty."

says this careful mother

"It's nonsense to think you have to use harsh soap in order to avoid hard rubbing," declares Mrs. P. A. Garn. "I'd no more risk washing our clothes with strong, harsh soap than I'd think of scrubbing faces with cleaning powder.

"Suds are what you want. And how Chipso does make suds! They fill the tub across and up-and-down—deep down! Dirt floats out of a tubful of heavy pieces in no time. My white clothes are pure white—without washboard rubbing or boiling. Yet this same Chipso is gentle enough to wash silk stockings without streaking them, printed silks and cottons without making the colors run, and woolens without stiffening them.

"Chipso is a comfort in the dishpan, too. It gets at the grease without making my hands unsightly. I think the way Chipso saves your hands is a good test of its safety for all the clothes."

BIG BOX . . . LOW PRICE

You will find this big box of Chipso you get from your grocer the best value in rich, SAFE soap on the market today. Don't endanger the clothes you have spent good money for by washing them in cheap flakes or strong granulated soaps and powders. Chipso is not adulterated with the harsh, "dirt-cutting" ingredients contained in inferior soaps which hurt your hands and gradually dull colors and weaken materials. As Mrs. Garn says, Chipso is SOAPIER. It loosens dirt quickly, but SAFELY, with RICHER SUDS.

Salesmen Can Help Nation

By B. C. FORBES

RECOVERY CALLS for more selling.

Comments recently appearing in this column on the role selling must play have elicited many letters and contributions from readers. The best of them all comes from Erich Brandeis, as follows:

Mr. Forbes

THE SALESMAN'S DAY

In 1928 the financier had his day.

He ruled the world.

Then came the depression.

The calamity howler had his day.

His wailing could be heard around the globe.

1933 brought the new deal and the blue eagle.

The professor had his day.

He was to reconstruct the world—rebuild broken business with charts and scientific formula.

TODAY THE salesman rules supreme.

He restocks empty shelves.

He reclothes those who have become shabby and worn.

He replaces dilapidated automobiles and threadbare tires.

He builds new homes for those who have lost theirs during the deluge.

When prosperity comes again—as it must and will—the salesman will be its pioneer.

THE GOOD salesman knows no defeat.

He is the soldier, in the service of his firm, who knows that no business can succeed without selling.

But there is joy in his fight. He knows that every sale made is a definite step toward progress and recovery.

He is the man who fills pay envelopes.

He takes the unemployed off the streets and puts them back to work.

He feeds the hungry.

He brings back happiness to the miserable.

He restores joy to the discouraged.

He is the missionary of good times.

LET EVERY salesman realize his importance.

Let him bear in mind, when he makes his daily rounds, that on his accomplishments depends the fate of the nation.

Let him get it into his head that he is as necessary to his firm as the highest executive.

Without him the wheels of industry must stop.

SALESMANSHIP is vital in every phase of life.

Nature herself is a salesman—the beauties of the flowers, the verdant green of the trees, the majesty of the mountains and the grandeur of the sea—what wonderful salesmanship!

EVERY SUCCESSFUL man is a good salesman.

Every idea has to be sold—against doubt and resistance.

The first steamboat, the earliest train, the old incandescent lamp, the airship and the radio—the world's greatest inventions, all had to be sold before they could revolutionize our lives.

PACIFIC COAST RESPONDS TO 'NEW DEAL'

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The Pacific Coast has responded well to the economic policies under the "New Deal."

Mr. Rukeyser

Herbert Fleishhacker, president of the Anglo California National Bank of San Francisco, who is visiting in New York, told me that he thought that the Far West had been helped as much as any other part of the country. He emphasized that the depreciation of the dollar had reopened foreign export markets for California agricultural products, especially for dried fruits.

The banker indicated that the near-term outlook in his section was good, but of course recognized that longer term prospects depended on the general economic trend throughout the country.

DEBTOR FAVORED

The first significant break in the policy of the federal government to favor, if not pamper, the debtor, comes in the proposed law for regulating stock exchanges.

Under the original draft of this bill, banks and brokers are permitted to lend only 40 per cent on securities, unless they accept the formula of 80 per cent of the lowest price in three years.

Much of the "new deal" legislation, monetary and otherwise, has been intended to ease the burden of the debtor. For hundreds of years, debasement of the currency has been the historic method of helping debtors to escape from their inflexible commitments.

The federal income tax law favors debtors by making interest payments deductible from taxable net income. Likewise, this provision discriminates in favor of home owners and against renters. The renter is not permitted to deduct rent paid for residential purposes, yet rent as an economic concept includes coverage of interest on the mortgage, taxes and profit, if any, to the landlord. The person who elects to be his own landlord is permitted to deduct interest, which bulks large as one of the significant items in rent.

CONFIDENCE GAINS

A sign of the improved state of national confidence is to be found in increasing discussion of the hazard of over-optimism.

John F. Wharton, New York attorney, in his little volume entitled "This Road to Recovery," sounds this thesis. He points out:

"Confidence contains the seeds of its own destruction. It may easily turn into self-complacency. It is a commonplace of American life that when things are going well people believe they will never change, and I cannot emphasize too strongly that therein lies the greatest danger to the administration's program. It is exactly at the point when most people believe that the depression is over and prosperity has returned that we shall be in the greatest danger. Unbounded optimism and the desire for immediate gain will again produce the factors which tend to create great depressions . . . The real test of the Roosevelt administration will be whether or not it can then adopt a program of government control which can be effected rapidly enough to curb the greed, but slowly enough to retain the confidence."

STORMS CHECK TRADE RISE

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The upward trend in trade in effect since the latter part of December was checked this week by holiday and weather influences, said the Dun & Bradstreet Weekly Trade Review today.

These factors, said the agency, were responsible for "the first pause in the uninterrupted advance which has been reassuringly present since the first of the year. Snowbound districts in which transportation was brought almost to a complete halt, the shorter week because of observance of Washington's birthday, and the commencement of the demobilization of the CWA forces all contributed to stemming temporarily the extension of gains. The review continued:

"While the retardation of the rate of gain was most pronounced in country districts, even there, volume of business was 15 per cent to 30 per cent higher than for the comparative week a year ago when the banking debacle all but stopped general trading.

"Road salesmen have been particularly encouraged by the steady increase in orders booked in the agricultural areas since the first of the year and by the number of repeat orders which have been sent in by mail following the initial trips."

Schacht Opposes Mark Devaluation

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—There will be no devaluation of the mark, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichbank, had promised German bankers.

Such a move, he told a group of bank executives yesterday, would only result in further devaluation by the United States and Great Britain.

Also, he added, "German exports depend in large measure upon the finishing of imported material which, through devaluation of the German mark, would immediately become more expensive."

Libbey-Owens-Ford Has Profitable Year

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

Business Editor

THE RECOVERY in automobile production last year made it possible for the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company to show a substantial profit in comparison to losses reported for the two preceding years.

In spite of depression conditions, the company was able to retire all its funded debt in 1933. The period of general business recession was marked by expansion on the part of Libbey-Owens-Ford through consolidation and some plant additions to provide for production of new types of glass.

The annual report for 1933 showed net profit of $4,200,542 after providing for depreciation and all charges. This was equivalent to $1.65 a share on the capital stock. This compared with net losses of $295,019 in the calendar year of 1932 and of $1,700,114 in the 15 months ended December 31, 1931. The company changed its accounting from a fiscal to a calendar year at that time.

* * *

Market Still Below Normal

WHILE THE GAIN in automobile production made it possible for the company to show a profit its markets still were far below the levels to be expected under normal business conditions. John D. Biggers, president, points out in the report that automobile production was 43 per cent more than in the low year of 1932, but it was only one-half of the 10-year average.

Window glass sales are largely dependent on the building industry and these continued to decline for the fifth successive year.

The trend toward the use of safety glass by automobile makers was a helpful factor for the company. Every light of safety glass requires two plates instead of a single plate. Hence this doubles the use of glass which is sold on a square-foot basis.

Last year all automobile makers adopted the use of safety glass in windshields and 40 per cent adopted its use in all windows. Those not making safety glass standard in all windows made its use optional to buyers. In the preceding year only 20 per cent made the use of safety glass standard in all windows.

* * *

Present Unit Made Of Three Companies

THE PRESENT Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company is a consolidation of three leading companies. In 1930 the Libbey-Owens Sheet Glass Company purchased the assets of the Edward Ford Glass Company, giving stock in exchange. In 1931 the company acquired the plants of the National Plate Glass Company, a subsidiary of General Motors, for $10,000,000.

This left Libbey-Owens-Ford and the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company as the dominant commercial plate glass producers. The remaining commercial production is small. The Ford Motor Company is now the only automobile producer with its own glass making capacity and its plants have been idle.

Last year Libbey-Owens-Ford built a $100,000 addition to its safety glass plant and, in addition, it has started a $250,000 storage building at its Rossford plant.

During the year all the convertible 5s due in 1938 were retired, $2,638,000 by purchase and $5,400,500 by conversion into 216,020 shares of stock.

The balance sheet showed current assets of $10,158,873, which were 6.2 times current liabilities of $1,627,348. Cash amounted to $2,235,732 and United States government securities to $1,903,255.

The company resumed dividends last year with two payments of 30 cents a share on October 2 and December 15. The last previous payment was 25 cents a share on September 1, 1930.

Senate Committee Delves Into Part Played by 'Non-Bank' Loans in 1928-29 Market Boom

The Senate Banking and Currency Committee is now engaged in having a look at brokers' loans through the last half of 1928 and the first half of 1929. They are apparently determined to bring out fully the part played by funds advanced by "non-bank" lenders to finance the last 10 or 12 months of the huge speculation which collapsed in October, 1929. The weekly figures on loans, compiled by the Federal Reserve Board have always segregated the data to show the main sources of such borrowings. These reports have schown the proportion of such loans made by New York banks for their own account, that made for out-of-town correspondents, and also for "others" as non-bank lenders were termed.

Loans reached their peak in the first week of October, 1929, at $6,804,000,000 on the basis of Reserve figures. Loans for non-bank lenders, however, reached their top figure the following week at $3,941,000,000, representing 58.7 per cent of the aggregate of $6,713,000,000 loans outstanding at that time.

There is continuous buying for cash and otherwise of many stocks in companies showing substantial earnings. There has also been a comparatively large "cash" odd-lot business. Brokers say that with foreign and "long-pull" buying, which has been an important factor in the last couple of months, a great deal of stock has been removed from the market for a long while to come.

Gains in advertising lineage accounted for by the automotive industry tend to support previous claims that the automobile industry would lead business out of the depression, says the "Advertising Age." Increases in automotive newspaper lineage in eight cities aggregated 29.9 per cent during January as compared with 8.8 per cent for all classifications, according to this authority.

Contracts for the purchase of 1,469,045 pounds of aluminum costing $464,000, to go into the construction of cruisers, destroyers and gunboats, were announced today by the Navy Department. The material consists of alloys, sheets, rods, etc. The Aluminum Company of America has been awarded a contract for $42,000 for immediate delivery and another contract calling for $400,000 for aluminum to be delivered as needed. The Fairmont Aluminum Coompany, of Fairmont, W. Va., has been given a contract for $16,000 and the Bohn Aluminum and Brass Company, Detroit, a contract for $6,000.

The "Big Four" packers are all denying charges of illegal conspiracy to fix meat prices in five southern states, as alleged by the Department of Agriculture. Rather surprised by the action of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace the packers concerned are offering him their "full co-operation" with the department in developing the facts.

CHARGE NAMES BIG PACKERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Secretary Wallace filed a complaint against 10 meat packing companies yesterday, charging they acted in combination to control retail meat prices.

Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Wilson & Co., Morris & Co., the St. Louis Independent Packing Company, Abraham Brothers Packing Company, Cudahy Packing Company, Jacob Gold Packing Company, John Morrell & Co. and the Memphis Packing Corporation.

The charge was filed by the Secretary under authority of the packers and stockyards act prohibiting unfair trade practices, which also gives the Secretary power to institute proceedings and compel packers to submit evidence.

The hearing was called to begin April 9, at the Federal Building in Jackson, Miss.

COKE DEMAND INCREASING

One of the major developments was resumption of the Shenango furnace at Sharpsville, using Connellsville coke. On several previous runs the furnace had used by-product coke. Orders from the furnace were distributed to several operators.

Scarcity of by-product coke, largely because of increased domestic demand, also was a helpful factor in the Connellsville field. A utility firm in the East sent in new orders. There also was a heightened demand for foundry coke.

I. C. C. to Probe Pennsy Holdings

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has ordered an investigation of alleged control by the Pennsylvania Railroads and its affiliate the Pennroad Corporation, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford and the Boston and Maine railroads. Hearing was assigned here May 16 before Commissioner Porter and Examiner Koch.

STOCKS EASE IN QUIET TRADING

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Stocks exhibited a post-holiday lethargy today that restricted trading to intermittent flutters in which most prices had a soggy appearance.

The apparent lack of vitality could not be blamed on commodities, the majority of which displayed an improved tone. Wheat, corn, cotton, silver and rubber were firm. The British pound was a little lower, but the gold currencies did little. Bonds were mildly mixed.

A few shares, responding to especial influences, stepped forward gingerly. Dullness, however, was the rule throughout the early hours and many of the leaders eventually drifted lower. Even the recent feverish specialties cooled down appreciably.

A few of the tobaccos reflected an upturn in cigaret production for January, but most of these stocks showed no great enthusiasm. Various packing company shares were depressed following Secretary Wallace's charges of "price-fixing" in the industry. Followers of the alcohols were interested in word that Washington was studying alleged excessive retail liquor costs.

Some support for aircraft issues followed further reports that the Postoffice Department might soon call for new bids on air mail contracts. At the same time, traders in this group were inclined to go slow because of the thought that, even if Washington decides to relieve the Army of its temporary mail carrying job, commercial bids will be scrutinized closely with the idea of holding down disbursements.

Although the consensus among commission firms was that proposed measures for the federal regulation of security exchanges would be substantially amended before coming up for final congressional approval, several operators were said to be standing aside to await more concrete indications that the expected legislation will not have too many teeth.

JERSEY WIDENS CRUDE SOURCE

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The vast holdings of the Slick-Urschel Oil Company have passed into the hands of the Carter Oil Company following a week of rumors which precipitated an intensive battle for new well connections in the midcontinent producing area.

Sale of the Slick-Urschel properties, including 128 wells in the productive Oklahoma City field, to the Carter Company, midcontinent producing unit of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was announced here last night. The amount of the consideration was not stated, but estimates placed the figure close to $5,000,000 cash.

The deal which came at a time when major oil companies are seeking new crude sources, deprives the Stanolind Crude Purchasing Company (Standard Oil of Indiana) of its largest crude oil sources in the area.

Since rumors of the deal began spreading last week independent purchasers have been active among producers whose wells flowed into their lines, tightening contract clauses and otherwise assuring themselves that they would lose no oil.

In the struggle for new connections oil men foresee a possible increase in prices, or perhaps the payments of small premiums by bigger purchasers to induce producers to sever existing connections.

U. S. LONG TERM ISSUE SEEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The Treasury pointed today toward long-term borrowing to finance this year's $10,000,000,000 money-asking program.

Secretary Morgenthau's intention to change at least part of a billion and a quarter dollars in three and six-month outstanding Treasury bills into long-term indebtedness became evident when it was learned that some of a February 28 maturity would be met partly from cash on hand.

Yesterday's offering of $75,000,000 in six months bills will not meet the $100,000,000 maturity. Previous recent offerings all have exceeded maturities and permitted an increase in the Treasury's cash balance.

Indications pointed today, moreover, toward a bond issue to meet a $460,000,000 maturity March 15 and to enlarge the cash balance. The Treasury calls five-year or longer obligations "bonds."

The Federal Reserve Advisory Council recently recorded approval of the longer-term borrowing tendency and suggested a bond issue.

P. W. V. Asks Loan To Buy Engines

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—The Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue $331,000 of 4 per cent equipment trust certificates to PWA for a loan with which to purchase three locomotives.

News and Views

TIRE EXPORTS INCREASE

Exports of automobile tires and inner tubes increased 17 per cent and 16 per cent, respectively, in 1933 over 1932, the Department of Commerce reports. Casings exported last year numbered 1,058,378, compared with 908,462 in 1932. They were valued at $9,015,543, compared with $7,777,459 the preceding year.

STEEL PLATE ORDERS RISE

New orders booked for fabricated steel plate totaled 199,031 tons in 1933 comparet with 161,801 in 1932, according to the Department of Commerce. December orders totaled 13,692 tons, as against 14,466 tons in November and 9,510 in December, 1932.

NEW HAVEN LOADINGS

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad handled 93,971 cars of revenue freight in January, a gain of 18.3 per cent over a year ago and of 10.1 per cent over December, 1933.

SHOE OUTPUT RISING

Shoe plants started the year at a fairly low operating rate, in line with seasonal trend, but according to manufacturers, it is indicated that the current month will show a slightly higher operating schedule. The industry expects to attain its seasonal advances from now until mid-summer.

HOME FURNISHINGS ACTIVE

Reports indicate a broadening demand for home furnishings. Brisk consumers buying is said to cover a wide variety of kitchen items, blankets, rugs and domestics generally.

INDUSTRIALS LEAD LOCAL ADVANCE

Quotations on heavy industrial issues moved higher on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today with United Engineering leading the advance. The rise in Engineering was credited to orders now coming in from the steel producing units for new rolls, installation of which has been made necessary by the steadily increasing output. Further improvement was also noted in Pittsburgh Plate Glass which ranged around the year's best level. United States Glass came into the market a full point above the price at which it sold last week.

Armstrong Cork was firm reflecting the 1933 earnings report which showed earnings of $1.98 a share on the common against a net loss of $2,259,000 the previous year. Pittsburgh Forgings moved up fractionally to a new high for the year to date. Fuels were quiet and the miscellaneous specialties and brewings showed only nominal changes.

HIGHER CABLES AID COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Cotton futures opened steady, 7 to 14 points advance in response to higher Liverpool cables and on trade and commission house buying. March, 12.07; May, 12.25; July, 12.41; October, 12.59; December, 12.72; January, 12.78.

Circulation of the first March notices representing about 25,000 bales, according to early estimates, brought out some near month liquidation. March sold up to 12.14 and October to 12.63 during the early trading, making net advances of 13 to 16 points, and prices were within a point or two of the best at the end of the first half hour.

The early advance was followed by moderate setbacks later in the morning. Little southern selling was reported, but there was continued March liquidation and scattered realizing in later months. Prices sagged to 12.11 for March and 12.59 for October, or about 3 to 5 points from the best. Trade buying of near months continued, however, and the market at midday was quiet and steady within a point or two of the best, at net advances of 12 to 15 points.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Raw sugar was steady early today and while no sales were reported it was revealed that on Wednesday a local refiner purchased 10,000 bags of Porto Rican, due March 12, and 13,500 bags of Philippines, due March 22, at 3.29 cents. Futures opened unchanged to 2 points higher on renewed covering and trade buying, promoted by the steadiness of the spot market. May contracts sold up from 1.63 cents to 1.64 cents and September from 1.72 cents to 1.73 cents, or 1 to 3 points above the previous close. In refined a fair withdrawal demand was reported and prices were unchanged at 4.50 cents for fine granulated.

SWIFT HOLDOUT, STENGEL SIGNS TO LEAD DODGERS

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Pitt Freshies Spill Dope. Don't Live Up to Form. Slump in Second Year.

Old Spitters Find Haven. Notable Feats On Turf. Danger in Hamas' Punch.

What happens to the crack freshman basketball teams at Pitt? In almost every one of the last six or seven years, first Dr. George Kowallis and later Paul Zehfuss developed five frosh quintets, teams which in some cases went through the season undefeated. But the star players on some of them failed to shine afterward on the varsity. After each season, fans who take their basketball very seriously start doping out the varsity combination for the succeeding campaign, and invariably they count in the lineup one or two of the players who will be coming up from the freshman ranks.

Paul Zehfuss

Strangely enough, however, the freshman team of recent years that had the strongest representation on the following season's varsity was the five making one of the poorest records. That was the 1930-31 outfit. Of that combination, Charley Hughes, Russ Ochsenhirt and Don McCamant all stepped into varsity jobs the next winter, though Hughes and McCamant really alternated at one guard post. Contrariwise, a great undefeated yearling quintet of the preceding campaign, composed of Joey Rodgers, Don Smith, Bernie Leech, Zola Alpert and Rocco Cutri, sent only one man to the varsity, he being the great Don Smith. Another fine collection of former scholastic stars graced the 1931-32 yearling team, but only one of the regulars, Claire Cribbs, made the varsity the ensuing year, whereas Skippy Hughes, who had been only a freshman sub, had no difficulty in stepping into a first-string berth.

NO SOPHOMORE MAKES VARSITY THIS YEAR

Coach Zehfuss had a strong freshman outfit a year ago, but not one member of the squad has broken into the varsity lineup this season as a sophomore. An undefeated quintet, with Sullivan and Dopeken at the forwards, Bache at center, and the Groat boys at the guards, failed to provide a single varsity performer. Sullivan and Bache were dropped for scholastic reasons, Dopeken withdrew from school, and neither of the Groats has shown the necessary varsity class to date.

The current Panther Cubs haven't much of a record to show, having lost several games to high school teams, but it would not be surprising to see some of them in varsity roles next winter. Despite the lack of team success, there are several boys on the squad who appear fitted for the Carlson style of play. These include the rangy Emerick, from Swissvale; Ross Ferguson, from Scott High; Bobby Garcia, from Fifth Avenue High, and Bill Jesko, from South High. Emerick, because of his height and speed, looks like the best of the lot.

COAST LEAGUE HAVEN FOR SPITBALLERS

Though the retirement of Urban Faber, following the passing of Jack Quinn and Clarence Mitchell, leaves Burleigh Grimes as the only survivor of the spitball tribe still operating in the major leagues, it will be possible for the veteran saliva specialists who have dropped out of the big show to find work in one of the big minors. A new haven for the fading spitters looms in the Pacific Coast League, and two of them already have caught on there in Quinn and Southpaw Mitchell.

Clarence Mitchell

If all of the minors had maintained their ban on the moist delivery there would have been no opening anywhere for the old-timers slipping out of the majors. The Coast League permitted one pitcher of that type, Frank Shellenback, of Hollywood, to continue using the pitch, but barred any newcomers. However, the Pacific loop has come to the rescue of the grizzled veterans by adopting a rule whereby hurlers who previously employed the spitball will be allowed to work in that circuit. Under the new regulation, Mitchell, the only remaining left-hand spitter, has signed to pitch for the Mission club, Quinn has joined Hollywood, and the way is open also for Faber, as Oakland has offered him a job.

MANY TURF VICTORIES ON SAME MOUNTS

Discussions of the success of some jockeys in getting a lot out of one horse have led to a research that reveals several notable achievements in the earlier years of the American turf. Jimmy McLaughlin won 24 races on Hanover, 23 on Luke Blackburn, and 22 on Hindoo. He won the Kentucky Derby on Hindoo in 1881, and that horse never was out of the money in 35 races, scoring 30 victories, finishing second three times and third twice. In 50 races, Hanover had 32 wins, 13 seconds and three thirds, being unplaced only twice. Isaac Murphy, greatest of all Negro jockeys, and three times winner of the Kentucky Derby, won 19 races on Emperor of Norfolk. Jimmy Butwell rode Roamer to 19 victories, and Tommy Knight won the same number of races on Dick Welles.

Speaking of jockeys, the leading two riders at the Agua Caliente track for the current meeting present an odd contrast in names. They are Danny Summers and Mack Winters. Some wisecracker has offered the suggestion that they are riding to a fall. There may be more truth than poetry in this byplay on the seasons, for Mose Helm and Dublin Taylor are pressing Summers and Winters so hard for winning honors that one or both may pass the present leaders before the meeting ends.

BAER MUST RESPECT WALLOP OF HAMAS

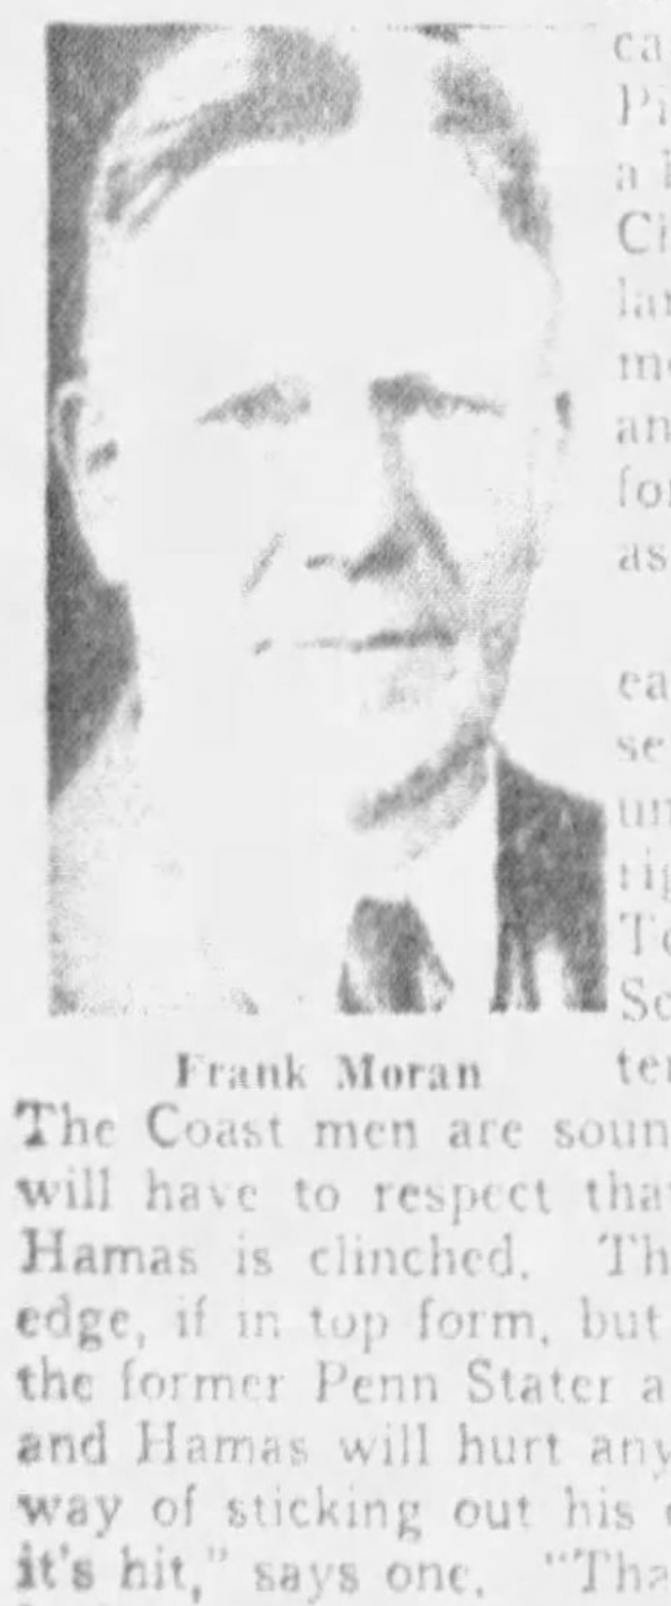
Your old Pittsburgh friend, Frank Moran, remarked in Los Angeles recently that what the fight game needed was "a few more Mary Anns." That was the name that Frank, in his fighting days, gave to his own right-hand punch, of which he was very proud. It was largely because of Mary Ann that the former Pittsburgher became a big card and got a lot of fights, including two with World Champions Jack Johnson and Jess Willard. And now Moran and other boxing men on the Coast see in Steve Hamas another heavyweight who may go places for the same reason—because his main asset is a wallop.



Frank Moran

They saw Hamas in some of his early fights out there and recall that several opponents made him look foolish until Steve suddenly connected with his right. That same punch knocked out Tommy Loughran and gave Max Schmeling the only marking up the latter ever received in an American ring. The Coast men are sounding a warning to Max Baer that he will have to respect that wallop if the proposed match with Hamas is clinched. They admit that Baer will have a big edge, if in top form, but contend that Steve's punch will give the former Penn Stater a chance. Baer can be hit, they argue, and Hamas will hurt anybody he can hit. "Baer has a quaint way of sticking out his chin and then laughing merrily when it's hit," says one. "That's fair enough. But some day somebody's going to hit it and everybody's going to laugh. And who knows?—it may be Hamas that does the hitting."

Carnegie Tech's Hockey Squad in Local Amateur League

These players represent Carnegie Tech, which has joined Duquesne University in rounding out the local amateur hockey circuit. Lacking the experience of the other teams in the league, the collegians have shown a willingness to make up for this handicap with a lot of dash and the old college try and are expected to develop some star performers. The Tartans battled the Red Ravens through two extra periods in their most recent game before succumbing, 5 to 3. They played a tie previously with the Duquesne University skaters. # FORMER PIRATE NAMED FOR TWO YEARS

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Charles D. (Casey) Stengel, former Brooklyn Dodgers' outfielder and a coach since 1932, today was named manager of the team for 1934 and 1935, succeeding Max Carey.

Stengel was called East from his Glendale (Cal.) home Sunday to discuss terms with the directors when it was definitely decided to let Carey go. He slipped quietly into town last night, but remained secluded until this morning.

He was present, smiling broadly, when General Manager J. A. Robert Quinn made the announcement of his appointment. The only surprise was the two-year contract, as Wilbert Robinson worked under only a one-year agreement preceding his dismissal in 1931 and Carey also was given only one-year contracts, the last of which the Dodgers broke day before yesterday.

FORMER OUTFIELDER

Stengel was a Brooklyn outfielder from 1913 to 1918 and played with the Dodgers in the World Series of 1916. Later he was with the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia clubs before going to the New York Giants in 1922 where he helped John McGraw win two pennants. He finished his big league career with Boston in 1924 and from then until he was brought back to Brooklyn as a coach served as a promoter and manager of minor league teams. He was manager of the Toledo Mud Hens, of the American Association, while that team was a Giant farm and led them to a pennant in 1927.

He is 47 years old and a favorite with Dodger fans, who love his antics along the third base coaching lines.

Despite his clownish [illegible]tions he is credited with being a shrewd baseball leader and a good developer of young talent. One of his most famous stunts was to catch a sparrow, place it in his cap and when he came to bat, release it as he dropped the headpiece, giving the umpires "the bird" in a manner to which they were not accustomed.

STARTED WITH BLUES

Stengel began his baseball career with Kansas City in 1910, a circumstance which gave him his nickname as he always told inquirers that he "came from K. C." Later he was with Kankakee of the Old Northwest Association, Maysville, of the Blue Grass League, Aurora of the Wisconsin-Illinois circuit, and Montgomery, of the Southern Association.

His life time major league batting average is only .285 but he was always a timely hitter, his two home runs in the 1923 series against the New York Yankees giving the Giants the only games they won. His best years were those two in New York when he batted .368 and .339.

The financial terms of Casey's contract were not divulged, but he said there was no haggling over terms and it was believed the document called for at least twice the $6,000 he received as coach. Carey was reported to have been paid off on a $12,000 manager's contract.

Stengel announced that he had appointed Chick Frasier, former Pirate scout, his first lieutenant. Frasier has been scouting for the Dodgers. Irish Meusel may replace Otto Miller as his other coach.

BOTH FORMER PIRATES

Both Casey Stengel, newly appointed manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Max Carey, whom he succeeds as pilot, were former star outfielders of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

With the appointment of Stengel five former Pirate players will be in charge of major league clubs next season. Bill McKechnie is with the Braves, Joe Cronin with the Senators, Charley Grimm with the Cubs and George Gibson with the Pirates.

Earl White Loses To Ed Andrews

E. D. Andrews, of McKees Rocks, with a high run of 16, defeated the veteran Earl White, of the North Side, 125 to 61, in a West Penn pocket billiard championship tournament match at the Ritz parlors last night.

In tonight's match, H. L. Rumstay, of the North Side, meets Jim Williams, of Squirrel Hill.

Two Horses Burned In Latonia Fire

LATONIA, Ky., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Two horses, Agatha, a 4-year-old filly, and Zeus Prince, a gelding, were burned to death yesterday as fire destroyed barn No. 5 of the Latonia Jockey Club, one of the leading race tracks of the Middle West.

Twenty-four other race horses, valued by track officials at $35,000, were led to safety.

RAISED OFFER TURNED DOWN BY HURLER

S. E. Watters, vice president and secretary of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today admitted the club was having difficulty signing Pitcher Bill Swift to a 1934 contract. Swift, released today from the Mercy Hospital in Scranton, where he was treated for mouth hemorrhages resulting from a tooth extraction, was scheduled to leave with the first squad Monday morning for the Paso Robles training camp, but reports from Scranton indicate that he is in a weakened condition from the loss of blood and may be required to stay home until the middle of next week.

The news reports from Scranton to the effect that Swift announced that he was dissatisfied with terms offered him was the first information Pirate officials have had from the pitcher, Watters revealed today.

FIRST OFFER REJECTED

The first contract offered Swift shortly after Christmas was returned by the hurler as unsatisfactory. The original offer was increased following a conference held with Swift during the baseball meeting in New York on February 5, but this contract also failed to meet with Swift's approval. Since then nothing has been heard from the pitcher. The first word the local club had concerning Swift was a newspaper report that he was confined in a hospital at Scranton. Watters said:

"The Pittsburgh Club has been very liberal with Swift in view of the season he had with the team last season. The original offer was increased after a conference in New York on February 5, but apparently these terms did not meet with his approval. If he is asking for more money than we have offered him, he has not informed us of his demands."

15 TO LEAVE HERE

As a result of the announcement that Swift would not be on hand for the departure at 9:45 Monday morning, the vanguard leaving the Pennsylvania Station will number 15 players, wives, club officials and newspapermen. Additions will be made at Chicago the same evening and at Omaha the following day. The remainder of the first squad will go direct to camp from their homes.

Word was received at Pirate headquarters today from Art Veltman informing the local officials that his father died on February 16. Veltman, residing in San Antonio, Tex., will be one of the batterymen to go direct to Paso Robles.

DISCHARGED FROM HOSPITAL

SCRANTON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Much improved, Bill Swift, member of the Pittsburgh National League team pitching staff, was discharged today from Mercy Hospital. He had been in the hospital several days receiving treatment for mouth hemorrhages.

Swift disclosed here that he is a holdout this year because the terms of his 1934 contract did not suit him. He refused to discuss the amount involved.

SOUTH HIGH NEEDS VICTORY TODAY TO CLINCH TITLE

WESTINGHOUSE QUINTET FOE OF ORIOLES

By JULIUS LEVIN

Undefeated in 24 successive City League games, the Orioles, of South High School, defending scholastic champions of Pittsburgh, will be out to clinch their second straight championship this afternoon when they invade Westinghouse High School to meet the Silver Lakers in the feature attraction on the local card.

Holding a two-game advantage over the Connelley Trade School passers, resting in second place, the Orioles have an opportunity to clinch the title in Section I by scoring their fourth victory in two years over the Silver Lakers. The Orioles conclude their City League schedule next Tuesday when they oppose Fifth Avenue High School at Fifth Avenue.

ORIOLES UNBEATEN

In event the South Siders succeed in defeating both Westinghouse and Fifth Avenue in their remaining two games, and they are favored to do just that, they will have completed their second successive season in the City League undefeated. Should this transpire, the Orioes will boast four successive victories over every one ot the six remaining members of Section I as well as two victories over Perry High School, last year's champion in Section II.

Hoping against hope that South may lose its next two games, the Connelley Trade School Trojans, still having a mathematical chance to tie the Orioles by beating Allderdice this afternoon at Allderdice and Westinghouse at Connelley Tuesday, will be eager to regain their winning streak. In the other Section I fray, Peabody plays at Fifth Avenue High School.

TEAMS BUNCHED

The race in Section II may be concluded this afternoon if Perry, defending champion and present pacesetter, takes over Carrick at Perry and Langley disposes of South Hills. If South Hills wins at Langley and Perry defeats Carrick, the championship can be decided Tuesday by Perry defeating Oliver at Perry.

Allegheny Vocational and Allegheny come together in Phipps Gym in the third Section II contest.

The races in the 19 sections of the W. P. I. A. L. come to a close tonight and with the exception of a few playoffs in cases where teams are tied, the eliminations will be all set to get under way Tuesday.

Officials of the W. P. I. A. L. have announced a change in the date for the Dormont-Washington elimination game at Mt. Lebanon High School. Originally scheduled to be played on March 2, the contest has been moved up to March 1. The basketball committee of the league will hold another meeting tomorrow morning in the Fort Pitt Hotel to iron out any difficulties.

Marino Gets Win Over Ray Eberle

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Feb. 23.—Three knockouts featured the amateur boxing show staged under the auspices of the local police department here last night. The boxing bouts were supplemented by two wrestling tussles.

In the feature bout, Custie Marino, of Ellwood City, defeated Ray Eberle, of Aliquippa, in three fast rounds. The summary:

147-pound class—Custie Marino defeated Ray Eberle.

150-pound class—Al Harge knocked out Chester Prosser, 4 rounds.

WRESTLING

135-pound class—Frank Catanese, Rochester, defeated George Rocco, Ellwood City.

180-pound class—John Rusky, Rochester, defeated Charles Sanucco, Ambridge.

WAGNER TO SPEAK

To Descamps Stroke Fatal Georges' Pilot

PARIS, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Francois Descamps, who managed Georges Carpentier during the latter's ring career and was attempting to aid the one-time idol in a comeback, died at Laguerche last night on the eve of his fifty-ninth birthday.

F. Descamps

Descamps, who was well known in the United States, where he handled Carpentier in his bout with Jack Dempsey, suffered a stroke of parlysis last Sunday while watching a football game in which his son was playing. He never spoke again.

CUE ACES DUEL FOR TITLE

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The world's three-cushion billiard championship and $1,500 in cash will be at stake tonight when Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, and Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., take their places at the familiar green-cloth table.

It will be the last regularly scheduled game of the tournament which began February 5,

Cochran, who won the crown for the first time last year, and Layton, 10-times holder of it in the course of a long career, reach the climax match with identical records of eight victories and two defeats. The winner tonight takes the championship; the loser automatically falls into a second place tie with Allen Hall, of Chicago, necessitating a playing for second and third positions.

Whillie Hoppe, defeated J. N. Bozeman, 50-42, in the next to the last game of the tourney last night, and tied for fourth place with Bozeman. Each won seven games and lost four. They will play off Saturday.

Martin to Direct Wheeling's Affairs

Sports Shorts

Mrs. S. G. Worten, of Pittsburgh, lost to Mrs. J. H. Ford, of Washington, in a 19-hole match in a second round match in the second flight in the West Flagler women's golf tournament at Miami, Fla., yesterday.

The Jersey City Club, of the International Baseball League, is to transfer its franchise to Syracuse, N. Y., it was reported today. The club may be returned to Jersey City for the 1935 season.

Ernie Lombardi, first string catcher of the Cincinnati Reds, is a holdout. He has protested a $2,500 cut in salary.

John McGraw, veteran baseball manager, now is taking a nourishing diet, and physicians are hopeful of complete recovery in a short time, the latest bulletin from New Rochelle (N. Y.) Hospital stated today.

Noble Kizer, Purdue football coach, today ended reports that he might accept a coaching position at Ohio State with a statement that "I definitely have decided against making any move."

Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion, will box Gordon Fortenberry in a 10-round non-title bout at Orlando, Fla., March 12.

Don Cordingly, of Ashton, Idaho, was the winner of the American Dog Derby staged in that town yesterday. Due to the lack of snow, the sleds were equipped with 10-inch wheels.

Harry Drennan, of Buck Hills Falls, Pa., drove his Arctic huskies to an easy victory in the dog-sled race staged in Central Park, New York City, yesterday.

The McKeesport Willigs, leading local independent basketball team, will meet the Rosenblum-Celtics tomorrow night in the Palisades at McKeesport in the rubber game of a three-game series.

Ohio State alumni will be guests at a smoker at the Keystone A. C. next Tuesday evening at which Ernie Godfrey, line coach, will speak and show moving pictures of games of the past season. Jack Fullen, alumni secretary, also will be on hand.

SPORT VIGNETTES

A year ago, Bunny Buntach wanted to buy the contract of a young Jewish heavyweight boxer in the Middle West. Today that fellow is a senation in California, a great puncher. He is Art Lasky.

Johnny Harris has got himself a "contract" from the Pittsburgh Pirates, whom he will accompany to California for the spring training trip . . . He didn't know he was going to get the contract when arrangements were made, but President Bill Benswanger sent it to him just to make everything legal in case it should develop that this guy Harris really can pitch. . . . Harris, by the way, likes the looks of our sports department since we've had it fixed up lately, with fresco work 'n' everything . . . May copy the design for one of his enterprises.

That Harry Greb vs. Ted Yarosz comparison last week continues to stir the fans . . . And are the letters piling in! . . . The very idea of comparing Yarosz with the immoral Icky gave A. Ray Paige, of Morgantown, W. Va., a laugh. . . . Says he can't see where Teddy would have a chance against the same field that Greb faced . . . Lew Raymond, the veteran matchmaker, says we haven't seen Yarosz at his peak yet and that he may even outdo Greb before he's through . . . He adds: "If you ask me, Yarosz is a great fighter, and I think his peculiar style more closely matches Greb's than that of any other outstanding middleweight I can recall . . . I think the comparison is a good one."

Even Byron Foutts, brother of Ray Foutts, manager of Yarosz, has been drawn into the discussion. He writes interestingly from East Liverpool, O., as follows: . . . "Just read James F. Conlon's letter concerning Greb and Yarosz. The comparison should be based on Greb's bouts with middleweights alone. Greb was bigger than Yarosz. When Harry boxed heavyweights he weighed around 168 to 170 pounds during the latter part of his career. Yarosz can make 153-154 pounds.

"Mr. Conlon writes of Greb's bouts with Soldier Bartfield, Mike Gibbons, Mike O'Dowd and the Chip brothers. I saw all of these boxers perform and Mike Gibbons is the only one of them whom I could concede a chance against Yarosz. Mr. Conlon does not mention two middleweights who had Greb's number, Jeff Smith and Tiger Flowers. I saw Greb and Smith box in Youngstown and Greb received what I considered a friendly decision. Later Greb boxed him a 15-round draw down South and reports were that Smith should have had the decision. What Flowers did against Greb is history. He really beat Greb in their first bout, in Ohio, and then won twice over him in New York.

"With Greb's weight, Yarosz in my opinion would have a picnic against Max Schmeling, Charley Massera, King Levinsky and Steve Hamas. I figure Tommy Loughran and Maxie Rosenbloom would give him trouble. In conclusion, I want to say that my brother, Ray, who manages Yarosz, always thought Greb was the greatest fighter that ever lived until Teddy came along." . . . Well, well, does anybody want to conduct a forum of the merits lacrosse vs. hockey or badminton?—HARRY KECK.

BUTCH TO BOX MILLER HERE MARCH 5

CINCINNATI, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Freddie Miller, N. B. A. featherweight champion, has been matched with Mose Butch, of Pittsburgh, for a 10-round non-title fight in Motor Square Garden, Pittsburgh, March 5, it was announced by Pete Reilly, Miller's manager.

PRIMO LOOKS BAD IN DRILL

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23.—In the cool of a soft, southern evening, five nights hence, while dowagers simper and white shirtfronts gleam in the night, the developments that are comparatively unimportant in themselves may combine to make the occasion more than memorable. The first may see Primo Carnera lose his heavyweight title, the second may see Promoter James J. Johnston lose his job.

I suspect that Promoter Johnston may be through with the Madison Square Garden Corporation because even Johnston believes it now. As for Carnera, I'm convinced that he is teed up for a fungo hitting contest after I saw what happened out there in the training ring yesterday afternoon. Carnera, slow, stodgy and as underdone as a raw onion, is so far away in timing and speed that he cannot possibly come all the way back in the short time intervening before Wednesday and the Tommy Loughran fight.

STOPPED BY POPPER

They gave him a humpty dumpty by the name of Popper Stopper yesterday for one very obvious reason. Popper was to be popped or stopped or both before the horrifier gaze of all, but, at the end of three minutes, the Popper was still in there stopping them; so they decided to time it by a pair of binoculars. The first round, therefore, went seven minutes before they noticed the oversight, with the result that they were more careful about the second. It only went four and a half minutes.

This comparatively abrupt ending was brought about, not so much by the fact that Mr. Popper Stopper finally found himself supine, inert and horizontal, as that he promptly arose and smote Carnera so hard that it even was felt by his dearest of kin. This was enough for Mr. Bill Duffy, who was holding the watch and almost lost his composure when the blow fell.

NOT A GOOD BET

Just how Popper got on the floor is another story. He wasn't knocked down, neither was he pushed. Rather, he was flung, flang, flinged, or, in other words, thrown down, after which Mr. Duffy, the humanitarian, rang the bell to save Popper. As Walter (Good Time Charley) Friedman, the under-secretary, says, the fighter who can take Carnera's terrific punches simply has to be "inhuman to punishment."

However, all I know is what I see in the almanac and this clearly says that a man who can't beat a bad light-heavyweight in the training ring isn't any better than even money against a pretty good heavyweight when the checks are down.

Bell, Le Boutillier Score Tennis Upset

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The field of 16 in the mixed doubles competition, held in conjunction with the women's national indoor tennis championships, has been reduced to two.

The finalists will be Berkeley Bell, of New York, and Florence Le Boutillier, of Westbury, N. Y., seeded fifth, and Frank Bowden and Norma Taubele, of New York.

Bell and Miss Le Boutillier accounted for the big upset of yesterday when they eliminated the first seeded pair, Frank Shields and Millicent Hirsh, of New York, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 in the quarter-finals and then went on to defeat Eugene McCauliff and Mary K. Smith in the semi-finals, 6-4, 6-4.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Miami, Fla.—Buck Everett won by a technical knockout over Frankie Edgren, 6 rounds; Harold Murphy and Red Tonn drew, 8 rounds; Joe Lipps won by a technical knockout over Joe Dunn, 5 rounds.

At San Francisco—Johnny Indrisano defeated Chick Devlin, 10 rounds; Baby Manuel won by a technical knockout over Albert Ledoux, 1 round.

At Philadelphia—Tony Morgano defeated Vincent Reed, 8 rounds; Wally Sears knocked out Joe Camille, 3 rounds; Billy Passamenito defeated Roby Budman, 6 rounds; Patsy Mandel won by a technical knockout over Lou Fortuna, 2 rounds; Mike Decamille and Dixie Kid drew, 6 rounds.

At Muncie, Ind.—Tiger Walker defeated Buddy Scruthings, 10 rounds.

At Quincy, Ill.—Henry Rothier defeated Joe Reed, 10 rounds; Allen Mathew knocked out Hugh Gray, 8 rounds; Clem Reed and Earl Traylor drew, 8 rounds; Albert Moke defeated Peni Vahlkamp, 6 rounds.

WOMEN IN SLED RACE

Keck Named Commissioner For Softball Tourney

Announcement was made today by the Amateur Softball Association of America, with headquarters in Chicago, of the appointment of Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, as acting commissioner of the amateur teams in the Pittsburgh district, to succeed Steve Cox, the original appointee, who withdrew to become commissioner for the National Softball League, fostering the semi-professional branch of the sport and specializing in the development of leagues.

The naming of Keck was done to facilitate the handing of the Greater Pittsburgh tournament under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, the class A winner of which will be sent to the national finals at Chicago, which will be sponsored by the Chicago American, like the Sun-Telegraph a Hearst newspaper. Other Hearst newspapers are blazing the way in the spread of the new type game, which is declared to be an improvement on mushball, which it has supplanted in many sections of the country.

TOURNAMENT PLAN

The Sun-Telegraph's competition will be a tournament pure and simple. It will not be based on league races, but members of league teams will be welcomed into the fold provided they can establish themselves as amateurs. All teams must be sanctioned for play, and it is obvious that semi-professional or profressional teams will not be eligible. Church, industrial, school, independent and other amateur teams will be able to make the grade.

The rules of play were standardized at a meeting in Chicago last month at which practically every organization promoting sports was represented. It was at this meeting that is was voted to discard such names as diamond ball, playground ball, kitten ball and others in favor of "softball."

RULES STANDARDIZED

The new rules recognize two standard games—12-inch ball on 60-foot baselines and 14-inch ball on 45-foot baselines. The pitching distance is 37 feet in both instances. Bunting is prohibited, as is the stealing of bases. Teams consist of 10 players, who have the option of wearing gloves, since the ball, in spite of the name, has the consistency of a baseball, except that it is larger.

A legal pitch is defined as a "ball delivered by the pitcher with a full swing, following through with the arm parallel to the body, the hand below the hip and the ball not more than six inches from the body. Snapping, jerky, or side-arm pitching is barred. The size of the bat has been increased to 2¼ inches, although the length is unchanged at 34 inches.

The Amateur Softball Association reports that commissioners have been appointed in more than a dozen states, with men under consideration in practically all of the others.

Leo H. Fischer, of Chicago, is president, and M. J. Pauley, of the same city, secretary-treasurer. Among the officers and members of the advisory board of the association are A. A. Stagg, Maj. John L. Griffith, Nat Holman, Coach Elmer F. Layden, Judge F. O. Hoffman, Grant P. Ward, William C. Larson and other prominent sports leaders.

SQUASH ENTRIES CLOSE TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Entries for the annual City Class B squash racquets championship tourney will close at 5 o'clock today. Names of aspirants for secondary laurels will be received by Chairman Ben Pope at the Keystone Athletic Club, Court 6600, until the final hour.

Competition for the Class B crown will get under way on the Keystone courts at 1 p. m. tomorrow. The draw will be made immediately upon completion of the list of contestants. All district racqueters, save those listed definitely in Class A by the Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association executive committee, are eligible for the tilting.

Prospect of the largest field in the history of local squash tournament tussling was enhanced yesterday by addition of contenders from the Edgeworth Club and the Allegheny Country Club.

With regular league campaigning completed in both the squash realm and the handball domain, the Class B racquet event just about monopolizes the morrow's club sport program. Sunday, however, besides continuance of the titular squash meet, calls for inauguration of the round robin play-off for Class A honors of the City Handball circuit with downtown Y. M. C. A. engaging Dick Koubek's Keystoners on the Y. M. H. A. boards. The remainder of the glove play brings together Y. M. C. A. and Y. M. H. A. at the Keystone on March 3 and Y. M. H. A. and the K. A. C. at the downtown Y on March 10.

Names in News

VIRGINIA VAN WIE, National champion, defeated KATHLEEN GARNHAM, of England, 4 and 2, to gain the semi-finals in the South Atlantic women's golf tournament at Ormond Beach, Fla., yesterday. MRS. O. S. HILL, LUCILLE ROBINSON and MARIAN MILEY are other semi-finalists.

SAM ATCHESON, of Memphis, defending his singles title, meets GEORGE NELSON, of Washington, in the semi-final round of the National Y. M. C. A. handball championships at Washington today. JOHN ENDZEZICK, Cleveland, and ALBERT HOBELMANN, Baltimore, also survive.

The manager and three players of the MURRAY TEACHERS COLLEGE basketball team, on their way to Louisville to participate in the KENTUCKY INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETIC CONFERENCE tournamnt opening there today, were injured when their automobile hit a telephone pole near Louisville late yesterday.

BOB CIUCI, of New York, the medalist, was eliminated in the quarter-finals of the Dixie amateur golf tournament at Miami yesterday by BOB LESTER of Short Hills, N. J., who won, 1 up, in 20 holes.

JOHN C. (RUBE) BENTON, for 24 years, 15 of which were spent in the major leagues, a southpaw pitcher in organized baseball, has been given his unconditional release by the MINNEAPOLIS MILLERS, of the American Association.

GEORGE WEISS, general manager of the WHEELING STOGIES, a farm of the the NEW YORK YANKEES, has announced the appointment of EUGENE MARTIN, of NEW YORK, as business manager of the club.

CALMAR ANDREASON, 29, UTAH state amateur ski champion, died last night as a result of injuries received in a leap near SALT LAKE CITY.

EMIL ST. GODARD WINS

Ponies Inoculated; Polo Tilts Off

Hunt Armory's riding hall will be dark tomorrow night, and the polo ponies will not leave their stalls. Neither will the draft horses, for all are undergoing an annual inoculation against a dreaded contagious disease.

Hospitalization of the ponies necessitates postponement of the two polo games scheduled for tomorrow, which would have found the Vangs facing the South Parkers and the Artillery poloists meeting the Cavalrymen. The games will be played at a later date.

MORTIMER BEATEN

BOSTON, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Warren Ingersoll, young Philadelphian, today had contributed the big upset in the national singles squash racquets tournament, by defeating Stanley G. Mortimer, New York veteran and former champion, in second round competition at the Tennis and Racquet Club. The score was 13-16, 15-9, 15-8, 15-12.

DETROIT MAKES LACROSSE BOW HERE TONIGHT

LACROSSE ASSOCIATION

Pittsburgh vs. Detroit, Motor Square Garden, 8:30 p. m.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS
(Second Half)

| | W. | L. | G. | OG. | Pts. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Pittsburgh | 1 | 0 | 18 | 13 | 2 |
| Chicago Sox | 1 | 1 | 23 | 22 | 2 |
| Chicago Ribbons | 1 | 2 | 35 | 41 | 2 |
| Detroit | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |

By CARL W. SHATTO

That Detroit's representatives in the American and International Lacrosse Association will not be the former Buffalo Indians, but a new group of players, was revealed today when the Detroiters arrived here for their league game with the Yellow Jackets at Motor Square Garden tonight.

The representatives of the association's new member city are experienced performers recruited from Toronto, Hamilton, St. Catherine's and Brampton, Ont., where the game has been flourishing for years, and where the talent is particularly plentiful.

Tonight's battle will mark the Jackets' second start in the second half of the association's split-season campaign. The locals have not been in action since Friday of last week, when they defeated the Chicago Blue Ribbons, 18 to 13, in inaugurating second half hostilities.

Because the White Sox and Ribbons divided two games in Chicago during the last few days, the Jackets find themselves at the top of the heap, a position exactly similar to the one in which they finished the first half race. The Detroiters, engaging in a light workout today to acquaint themselves with the Garden court, expressed confidence in their ability to "take" Coach Suds Sutherland's stalwarts, but Suds, when last seen, was bearing up very nicely under this dire threat. The probable lineup:

| DETROIT. | | PITTSBURGH. |
|---|---|---|
| Hall | G. | Cordick |
| Griffis | D. | P. Langevin |
| Stevens | D. | N. Langevin |
| Shannon | C. | LaFrance |
| Thomas | F. | Vincent |
| Cleghorn | F. | Bouliane |

POLO SERIES PLANNED

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Providing America's high-goal polo players suffer no further serious mishap from combat among themselves, all-star teams representing the East and West will provide the feature of the 1934 season with a series of matches, best two out of three, to be played this summer, probably on the historic turf of the Meadow Brook Club, Long Island.

SWIM MARK SET

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—A new American record for the 100 meter breaststroke was set yesterday by Walter Savell, Yale swimmer, in a special event as the Yale varsity swamped the Boys' Club of New York, 50 to 21, in a dual meet. Savell swam the 100 meters in 1 minute 13 2-5 seconds to break the former American record of 1 minute 14 seconds, held by Walter Spence, of New York.

MEMORY TEST

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

How good is your memory of sports events, heroes and dates? Can you answer these questions:

1—Which two National League teams played a tripleheader to decide a position in the first division?

2—Who were the brothers who starred simultaneously for the old P. A. A. hockey team?

3—Who was the greatest pinch-hitter in the Pirates' history?

4—Who was the St. Louis pitcher who almost ruined Glenn Wright's career by hitting him in the face with the ball?

5—Who was the Cleveland shortstop who died after being struck with a pitched ball, and who was the pitcher in the case?

PANTHERS HEAD EAST, CRIBBS IN HOSPITAL

By JESS CARVER

Claire Cribbs, brilliant center, will remain at home as a patient in Mercy Hospital and Pete Noon will be primed to assume the injured star's duties as a pivot when the Pitt basketball team follows Duquesne and Carnegie Tech into the East tonight, headed for Washington, D. C., and tomorrow night's Eastern Intercollegiate Conference clash with Georgetown.

Cribbs sustained a painful leg injury when he crashed into the seats at the end of the Stadium court while leading the Panthers to a triumph over Westminster here Wednesday night. Deeming it advisable to give Cribbs a complete rest and the benefits of hospital treatment, Coach Carlson sent Claire to Mercy Hospital today. Cribbs will remain in the hospital for several days, and will be out of the lineup when Pitt meets Tech next week.

A victory for the Panthers, who have taken over Notre Dame twice, West Virginia, Wash-Jeff, Army, Duquesne and Westminster in a row, practically will clinch another Conference title for the Panthers. If the Hoyas can be taken into camp, only Carnegie Tech, Temple and West Virginia will remain for the Panthers to shove out of the way.

PITT FAVORED

Georgetown gave Pitt a merry battle here in Pittsburgh as the rival quintets pried open the local campaign, but since that time, the Panthers have improved 100 per cent. Georgetown, beaten on its own court by West Virginia, figures to put up a stiff argument, but does not rate being chosen to stop the Panthers.

Three Pitt varsity teams will be in action tomorrow, the swimmers meeting Franklin and Marshall in an Eastern Swimming Association meet in the Keystone Club pool and the track and field squad engaging West Virginia at Morgantown.

Christy Flannagan, new athletic director and backfield coach at Duquesne, is expected to arrive on the Bluff next Tuesday to take over the reins dropped by Elmer Layden when he answered the call of his alma mater and returned to Notre Dame as athletic chief.

GROVERS BEAT ROCKETS

GROVE CITY, Pa., Feb. 23.—Grove City College's varsity basketball team secured revenge for an early season defeat served it by the Slippery Rock State Teachers by beating the Rockets here last night, 32 to 25.

The Grovers got away to a substantial lead, but Coach Thorn was forced to use his regulars to save the game as the Rockets staged a dangerous rally in the second half. The lineup:

MISS MAUREEN ORCUTT'S PUTTING STROKE.
CLUBHEAD COMES ONTO BALL AT RIGHT ANGLES.

PUTTING TECHNIQUE

In the above illustration Miss Maureen Orcutt is following out one of the precepts long advocated by Bobby Jones not only on putts but on all shots. She is hitting the ball with the clubhead at right angles to the intended path to the hole. The clubhead has finished low, in fact, is barely over the turf, showing that as large a margin for error in striking the ball has been allowed as is possible. Struck with this flat arc the ball may be hit at any point in the trajectory of the clubhead as it travels parallel to the ground. The arms and body have moved in the same manner as the longer shots here, though it is quite unnoticeable and the small weight transference is anything but obvious. She is directly over the ball, and the arms have traveled not only in close to the body but apparently nearly perpendicularly to the clubhead. With a shorter and more abbreviated swing the putter head would have to come onto the ball at the lowest point of the arc for best results. This motion, formerly called the pendulum motion, is being rapidly discarded, and the more sweeping putting stroke, which is light enough to float the clubhead into the ball, and still powerful enough to make sure the ball reaches the hole, substituted.

SKIBOS DEFEAT BUCKNELL

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—Carnegie Tech's varsity basketballers arrived here today to rest up for tomorrow night's Eastern Conference tussle with Temple singing the praises of Ted Rigg, veteran guard.

It was Rigg's sharpshooting and all-round play that enabled the Tartans to start their two-game eastern trip in a blaze of glory by beating Bucknell at Lewisburg in a Conference tilt last night, 37 to 34. Rigg dropped in seven field goals, one of them coming during the last minute of action to put the game on ice for the Plaid. The defeat was the fifth in a row in Conference competition for the Bisons and marked Carnegie's second triumph.

Bucknell took a 21 to 19 lead at half time, and increased this margin to 32 to 22 early in the second period, but Rigg and Acting Captain Silverman collaborated to whittle this margin away and finally tie the score at 32-all. Bucknell twice took the lead after that with successful foul shots, but Rigg's field goal and foul saved the Plaid's bacon. The lineup:

| Bucknell | G. | F. | Pt. | Tech. | G. | F. | Pt. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|

Celtics Win Over Y. M. H. A., 42-25

The Cleveland Rosenblum-Celtics had little trouble in taking the measure of the Y. M. H. A. passers on the Y floor last night, the crack pro quintet winning by a score of 42 to 25.

Pete Barry, performing at forward, led the attack of the Rosies with seven field goals. Miller, at guard for the Y, was high scorer for the locals with three goals. The lineup:

Adams, Ferry On Boxing Card

Irish Jimmy Ferry, of McKeesport, and Joey Adams, of Johnstown, who fought a great battle against each other in a recent show at McKeesport, both are on the card at the Palisades there next Monday night. The former's opponent has not yet been named, but Adams has been paired with Ralph Gizzy, younger brother of Battling Gizzy, of Donora. They are featherweights.

Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, and the Cocoa Kid, of New Haven, welterweights, are in the top 10-rounder, and Battling Gizzy and Don Asto in another battle over that route.

AVELLA LOOMS AS TEST FOR HEIDELBERG

By TOM BIRKS

When the green and gold-clad Heidelberg aggregation clashes with Avella in the third round of the National Amateur cup competition at Greenlee Field on Sunday afternoon, it will meet what is without a doubt the most improved soccer club in Western Pennsylvania.

Headed by Manager McCabe, the Heidelberg officials and followers are certain that another amateur championship will come to the little Carnegie suburb this year, but the team is going to have to stop one of the fastest young soccer clubs it ever has had the pleasure of tangling with in Avella.

UPSET GALLATIN

Rated as a junior club, this Washington County aggregation threw a bombshell into local soccer circles when it eliminated Gallatin, one of the greatest cup aggregations in the district. According to the referee, there was no fluke about the victory; it was clean cut and well earned.

Avella has won 15 games, lost one and tied two, has scored 72 goals against 20 goals for the opposition. Lincoln Hill was the only club to lower the Avella colors. The Avella boys turned around and wiped out that defeat with a 5-to-1 victory.

From the present setup there will be plenty of fireworks at the regular meeting of the West Penn Soccer Referees' Association tomorrow.

It is common knowledge that the West Penn Football Association is far from satisfied with the work of some of the referees. A communication has been sent to the referees to that effect.

TROUBLE LOOMS

Some of the referees feel that the West Penn is justified in its stand, and trouble is looming ahead. Jimmy McFarlane, president of the United States Referees' Union, with headquarters in Cleveland, has offered to come here and straighten out the trouble.

The joker is seen in the fact that Cleveland is having trouble of its own, and three weeks ago requested that the local body send a referee to Cleveland to handle a game.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Johnny Jadick vs. Harry Serody, 10 rounds; Mike Marshall vs. Ralph Fulton, 8 rounds, and Norman Rahn vs. Milt Jacobs, Tommy Conway vs. Billy Purnell and Al Hughes vs. Jack Kelly, 6 rounds each, Philadelphia.

DEVIL'S ISLAND BOASTS 'DUNGEON KING'

Convicts Mutilate Selves for 'Respite'

By GORDON SINCLAIR

CHAPTER XXI

ST. LAURENT DE MARONI, French Guiana.—In the block house back of French Guiana's "Five Acres of Hell"—the bamboo clump where convict dead are buried—you'll find the king of the black cell.

He's the only man in the 75-year history of the Devil's Island penal empire who can never again get additional punishment for any convict crime short of murder.

The only way to punish this freak of the dungeon is not to punish him. To ignore this lifer is to humiliate him. To stretch out his sentence, clap him into the dungeons or shackle him in the blockhouse is to delight him and play up to his amazing vanity. He is Sarchelle the self-sadist.

Sarchelle has spent 12 years in the bear pits. Twelve years in total blackness. Twelve years alone. Twelve years in which he has heard his neighbors moan in the pain of self-torture. Neighbors have bitten pieces out of their own arms and stuck castor beans in the raw flesh. The beans fester and raise deadly infections in a day. He has heard others in convulsions brought on by the tight binding of their wrists with horse hairs.

Self-Mutilation for Spite

These hairs sooner or later cut into the flesh and result in raging fever, stiffening muscles and often death by lockjaw. But denizens of the bear pits will do anything to attract the doctor's attention and get out, if only for a week or two of pain in the hospital. For in the hospital they can talk in their fellows.

Not so Sarchelle. He screams for more punishments. Defies everything and everybody in sight. No box wallah in a Hindoo bazar, even though he curse you back through 10 generations of ancestors could think up the burning biting insults of this dungeon madman.

Practically every sitting of the traveling tribural for the past 12 years has seen this wolfish convict paraded before it screaming triumphant defiance. He has smashed windows, broken the beds and assaulted guards.

Sometimes he has switched his ground and begged on his knees for more punishment:

"Please monsieur; a dose of the lash. Give me the cat 'o nine tails. Beat me. Life is too easy. I implore you."

Turns on Guards

When his time in the bear pits is up Sarchelle invariably leaps on the guard who comes to free him. It had been his habit to seize his cell bucket and konk it on his liberator's head. That usually meant a beating with the buckled end of a belt and a fresh term in the caves.

Glorious!

That's just what he wanted. But guards tired of this. They were in terror of their growling black panther. Nothing could be done to tame this man. He never got sick. He never seemed to sleep but like a great shaggy gorilla he padded up and down waiting his chance to maim. But he never tried to break away. No, he would drink his cup of punishment to the bitter dregs.

The blockhouse is the true torture chamber of the Devil's Island colonies. Into it are chained all men awaiting death on the guillotine, all recaptured men who have tried escape and failed. All suspected dormitory killers.

Because their stay in the blockhouse is supposed to be temporary there are no regular beds in the place; just shelves against the wall and no lights inside the bars.

Men might use such lights to electrocute themselves so only a feeble gleam shines down through the steel.

No Beds, No Plumbing

Daily the occupants of the blockhouse are unchained like so many tigers and sent, naked, into a high-walled quadrangle. While they are exercising a careful search of the blockhouse is carried out. Walls and floors are stone and concrete; there are no beds, plumbing, lights, shelves, cupboards or tables. The naked convicts are walked around the court and yet, occasionally knives, money and razor blades are found. In such case no attempt is made to learn who smuggled the forbidden goods into the blockhouse. They are just taken away, the convicts brought back and re-chained to the wall to await the coming of the tribunal. They can redress if they want to, but many don't bother.

Among them, as a permanent resident, is the black panther. No matter what he does or says now guards pay no attention to him. That's their strict order. If he does in a fit of fury, rip the cell bucket from its heavy chain and smash it on a guard's head, the guard is supposed to go serenely about his job and pass this all off as routine stuff.

Five or six hundred men make a break from the Guiana convict camps every year. It's estimated that four in a hundred get clear of the camps. The others are brought back and sent to the bear pits or die in the jungle. Every man on the sad march to the dungeons stops off at the blockhouse. Yet the blockhouse is roughly the size of an ordinary home. Perhaps that tells you how many don't come back.

Strictly Confidential

OVER IN the garment center, reports Abner Silver, there is a manufacturer who is very prosperous.

At the same time, however, he is very tight.

It is very difficult to make him spend money for anything at all—which may be one reason why he is so wealthy.

The other morning, a committee of men called upon him for a charitable donation.

"You know the cause," they told him, "and you know just how worthy it is. We need money very badly and we are counting upon you for your support."

The manufacturer nodded agreeably.

He wrote out a check and sealed it in an envelope.

"Here you are," he said. "Use it as you see fit. But please do not open the envelope until you get downstairs."

The committee thanked him profusely, and departed.

Ten minutes later, the men returned with the check.

"We want to thank you," said the chairman of the committee, "for your very generous donation. You have given us $5,000—and it is by far the largest contribution we have received. But—"

He hesitated for a moment and smiled apologetically.

"But," he went on, "you forgot to sign the check."

The manufacturer leaned back in his chair.

"I know it, gentlemen," he smiled, "and that's the way it will have to be. For I am a very modest man. When I give a donation, I don't want people to know whom it comes from! . . .

"A little more passion, men," he cried. "More passion!"

They tried the piece again—and in the middle of it, the leader stamped his feet and tore at his hair.

"Don't you understand me?" he shouted. "I want passion. Passion! Good heaven, are you all married?" . . .

A FEW suggestions:

In the theater, you should not miss "Ah, Wilderness!", "As Thousands Cheer," "The Follies," "Her Master's Voice," "Men In White," "Sailor, Beware!", "Mary of Scotland," "She Loves Me Not" and "Tobacco Road."

In the world of books, I recommend "They All Sang," by Edward Marks, the music publisher. Tracing the history of the popular song back through the years, Mr. Marks rings in a wealth of anecdotes and tells his story in a simple fashion that makes for highly interesting reading. You will enjoy it—and whenever an argument arises about a song—you will refer to "They All Sang" time and time again.

In the cafe line, you owe yourself a visit to Bill's "Gay Nineties," on East Fifty-fourth street: to Sherman Billingsly's Musical Bar, on East Fifty-first street: and of course, the Casino de Paree at any time.

This column also recommends shorter bathing suits for women, no taxes for anybody at any time, free champagne for the unemployed and a baseball team for Brooklyn. . . .

* * *

AT a recent opening, a chorine whom I have known for years sat behind me with an elderly gentleman.

This play called for numerous extras to stroll across the stage—and among them was a girl who looked something like Greta Garbo.

"Look," he whispered. "The Garbo type."

"Don't be a fool," was the chorine's reply. "Garbo is in California." . . .

* * *

AT another opening during the week, society turned out to witness the debut of one of its favored night club entertainers in his first speaking role upon the stage.

The lad did well enough, but the director had evidently been afraid of his performance—for he whisked the character on and off the stage very swiftly.

"What did you think of Peppy's performance?" asked the first.

"Perfectly amazing," returned the second. "The only way they could have taken him off the stage any quicker was to have put him on wires!" . . .

* * *

THE genial Dick Bard was having cocktails the other night with two young ladies from the South.

One cutie mentioned the fact that, a few nights previous, she had enjoyed a wonderful drink that was new to her.

It was served in a small glass, she said, and it contained a number of different colored liquors.

"Oh, I know," said Bard. "A pousse cafe."

The girl shook her head.

"No," she replied, "you're wrong. It was a restaurant in Cincinnati." . . .

Everybody says

IT'S GOOD

SWEEP STAKES became a popular sensation overnight. A "sell-out" the first day introduced—a "sell-out" ever since. Everything about it is right—price, flavor, purity. Wherever you go—in homes, in hotels, in clubs, in restaurants—everywhere, everybody says it's "my kind of liquor." Smooth, genial, pure, SWEEP STAKES is equally good in cocktails, highballs or "straight."

Prominent Chemists say

IT'S PURE

Recognized chemists publicly proclaim the purity of SWEEP STAKES. Quoting a newspaper statement of a noted Philadelphia Biological chemist following an analysis of several blended whiskies: "SWEEP STAKES is as palatable as high priced blends and is in no sense inferior in taste. It is a pure spirituous liquor."

SWEEP STAKES

"THE PEOPLE'S DRINK"

Right from the start SWEEP STAKES made friends, by the thousands, and hundreds of thousands. They bought—They tasted—They cheered! Why? Because SWEEP STAKES answers the big demand for a good bottle of pure, palatable liquor at a reasonable price. It's the people's drink—the standard liquor for all. Thousands and thousands are enjoying its goodness and economy. If you haven't tried it ask for SWEEP STAKES at your nearest State Liquor Store today. Convince yourself—let your next bottle be SWEEP STAKES.

+ ON BROADWAY +

The Private Papers of a Reporter

The legends and other fables that followed the snatching of the Lindbergh baby taught some of us a good lesson in the editorial rooms . . . The most exciting stories, some of which seemed so true, melted into nothing after investigation . . . And when I encountered a fantastic clue or tip about the case I passed it along to my editor or the Department of Justice—rather than risk the responsibility of it jelling into fact and the solution of the world's outstanding mystery crime . . . But these stories make good copy if nothing else. The first deals with a mechanic in a local car-renting agency, who has been telling it around . . . He asserts that on the night of a crime a man (he has the name) brought back a rented machine which registered the mileage, which was the distance from New York City to Hopewell, N. J.—the home of the Lindberghs then—round trip . . . In the car were cartridges and two Connecticut license plates.

A good story, I thought . . . And I turned it over to the proper authorities . . . But this one is more exciting . . . A barber who used to shave me badly in a Times Square shop is supposed to have been visited by three Swedish sailors, his friends . . . They called on him at his home in the Bronx, I think it was . . . The barber, who knew where to stop on certain things, lost his temper with them when they told him of their plot to kidnap the Lindbergh child and they wanted him in on it . . . "Not that!" he is supposed to have screamed, "get out of my house!" And they left . . . A few nights later the baby was stolen. A little later, so goes the exciting story, as the barber left the shop he worked in, he was surrounded by two of the men who called at his house with the invitation to kidnap the baby . . . They closed in on him and prodded him with a gat . . . "Keep walking," one whispered . . . The trio ankled down Broadway to 49th Street, a block away . . . As they neared 49th the same man said: "Now, turn right" . . . But the barber took a chance and didn't . . . He turned left and ran . . . He told that story a year ago to barber colleagues, who just told it to me . . . And he hasn't been seen since!

I like David Murray's flippancy—he describes Broadway as a place where they boost you—over the hill to the poorhouse . . . I didn't get her name—but it is the sort of tale I like to write about—because people may believe that the newcomer has a chance on Broadway . . . She asked Rudy Vallee if she might sing a song with his crew accompanying her . . . She was a stranger, they say, and happened to be dining at the Hollywood where Rudy is working hard to pay this lawyer and that one . . . Anyway, Rudy agreed and she cooed so well—he engaged her to warble with him on his coast-to-coaster . . . Her last name is Roach or Roche, and please don't send in any comical first names . . . But Jerry Lee rates this mention. Jerry just came here from Hollywood and she clicked big by "dubbing" the singing for Gloria Stuart in "I Like It That Way" . . . But she rates no credit and few believe she did the pretty tonsil work . . . Jerry was good enough to dub for a star—but the struggle still is tough here . . . I think I'll do a col'm called: "If I Were the Roosevelt of Radio."

When I was on the coast last summer there were big stories of a romance between Peggy Joyce and Jack Oakie . . . Anything for a laugh, you know . . . A story also broke about Oakie giving Peggy a costly gift! . . . Well, it urned out to be a radio which cost $22—and Oakie didn't "give" it to her . . . The man who sold it to Jack still is trying to collect . . . Oakie, whose sensayuma is too, too devoon—(as that saying goes when you want to get on people's nerves) keeps sending the collector to Peggy and Peggy keeps sending him back! . . . Ah, this millionaire love! . . . The old Barnum trick was employed successfully last week on Broadway . . . The tiny Criterion Theater, a flop house for years, is now playing to terrific business with "Forgotten Men," a series of actual photos taken at the front during the big war . . . So good are the shots that Hearst papers everywhere are giving full credit to the film for many of the photos used in their current campaign for preparedness . . . But the opposition theater next door revived a two-reeler called "War Debts" and advertised: "Uncensored War Film" . . . Hardly ethical—but what of it? . . . The Criterion is doing big business because the shrewd manager remembered the old Barnum stunt when imitators got on both sides and copied his ad . . . The Criterion now uses a sign reading: "Main Entrance!"

George Jessel says Broadway is where they spend half their time trying to borrow money from you and the other half trying not to pay you back . . . J. M. Josefsberg says if he did a column called: "If I Were Walter Winchell" that he'd fling a daily scallion at the snooty Florida place which kept Bernie off its golf course. Because Bernie should never be kept off anything, except, of course, the radio . . . Good heavens! I still can't believe it . . . That there actually is an Elmer Zilch! . . . He is a retired Brigadier General in the U. S. Army!

I liked that editorial which suggested a medal for George M. Cohan . . . If Mr. Cohan never did anything else—he rates it for "Over There!" I hope everybody writes to Senators and Congressmen indorsing it . . . What a tribute to Eddie Cantor . . . I mean when that Methodist pastor, Dr. Du Bose, of Athens, Tenn., deferred his regular evening services so that his flock needn't miss Eddie's broadcast . . . "The church still comes first, however," the pastor reminded . . . Now there's a broadminded preacher—if ever I heard of one.

Studio Cuts But Keeps Stars

By GWYNN

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.—Just to spike a lot of rumors about the why and wherefore of what Twentieth Century is doing, the main reason for not taking up a lot of options is because they figure to make next season a season of special productions.

The only people whose options are not being taken up are those on the supporting player list, and the star power of the company has not been, nor will it be, at all affected by this move.

Daryll Zanuck has already released Constance Cummings, whose contract had no options anyway; Sally Blane, Judith Wood, Blossom Seeley and Morgan Conway, or practically 50 per cent of the entire stock list.

Of the star group, those whose contracts run in options are all being retained because of the fact that they are of the caliber easy to carry, even though the studio shuts down for a vacation, due to the fact that there is such a demand for them it is easy to make loanout deals with other major companies.

David Manners was so glad to be back in Hollywood that he celebrated with a cocktail party at the Colony and incidentally had the honor of giving the last private party in the place, since it closed down permanently that night. They wanted David Manners to stay in England to make more pictures, but the lad is completely native Californian and wouldn't stay. Lyle Talbot was explaining to Kay Francis that he just started work in a new picture in which he plays exactly the same kind of doctor part that he just finished playing in another production, making the third in a row for him. Must be an original story, that doctor angle. Kay is about to play another doctor role, too, in "Dr. Monica," and she and Veree Teasdale were discussing it. Miss Teasdale will have a featured role in "Dr. Monica."

Bayard Veiller swears he actually heard this happen. Seems he was sitting in the office of a casting director on a major lot. The casting director had just called in an agent and explained to him that he needed a gal for a certain part—someone very much like Jane Cowl. The agent thought hard for a moment and then said:

"Well, I think I could get Jane Cowl for you."

REMEMBER WHEN FLORA FINCH AND JOHN BUNNY STARRED?

This is a Picture-Story of Dramatic Events, Personalities, Beauties, Customs and Fashions Within the Memory of Living Americans

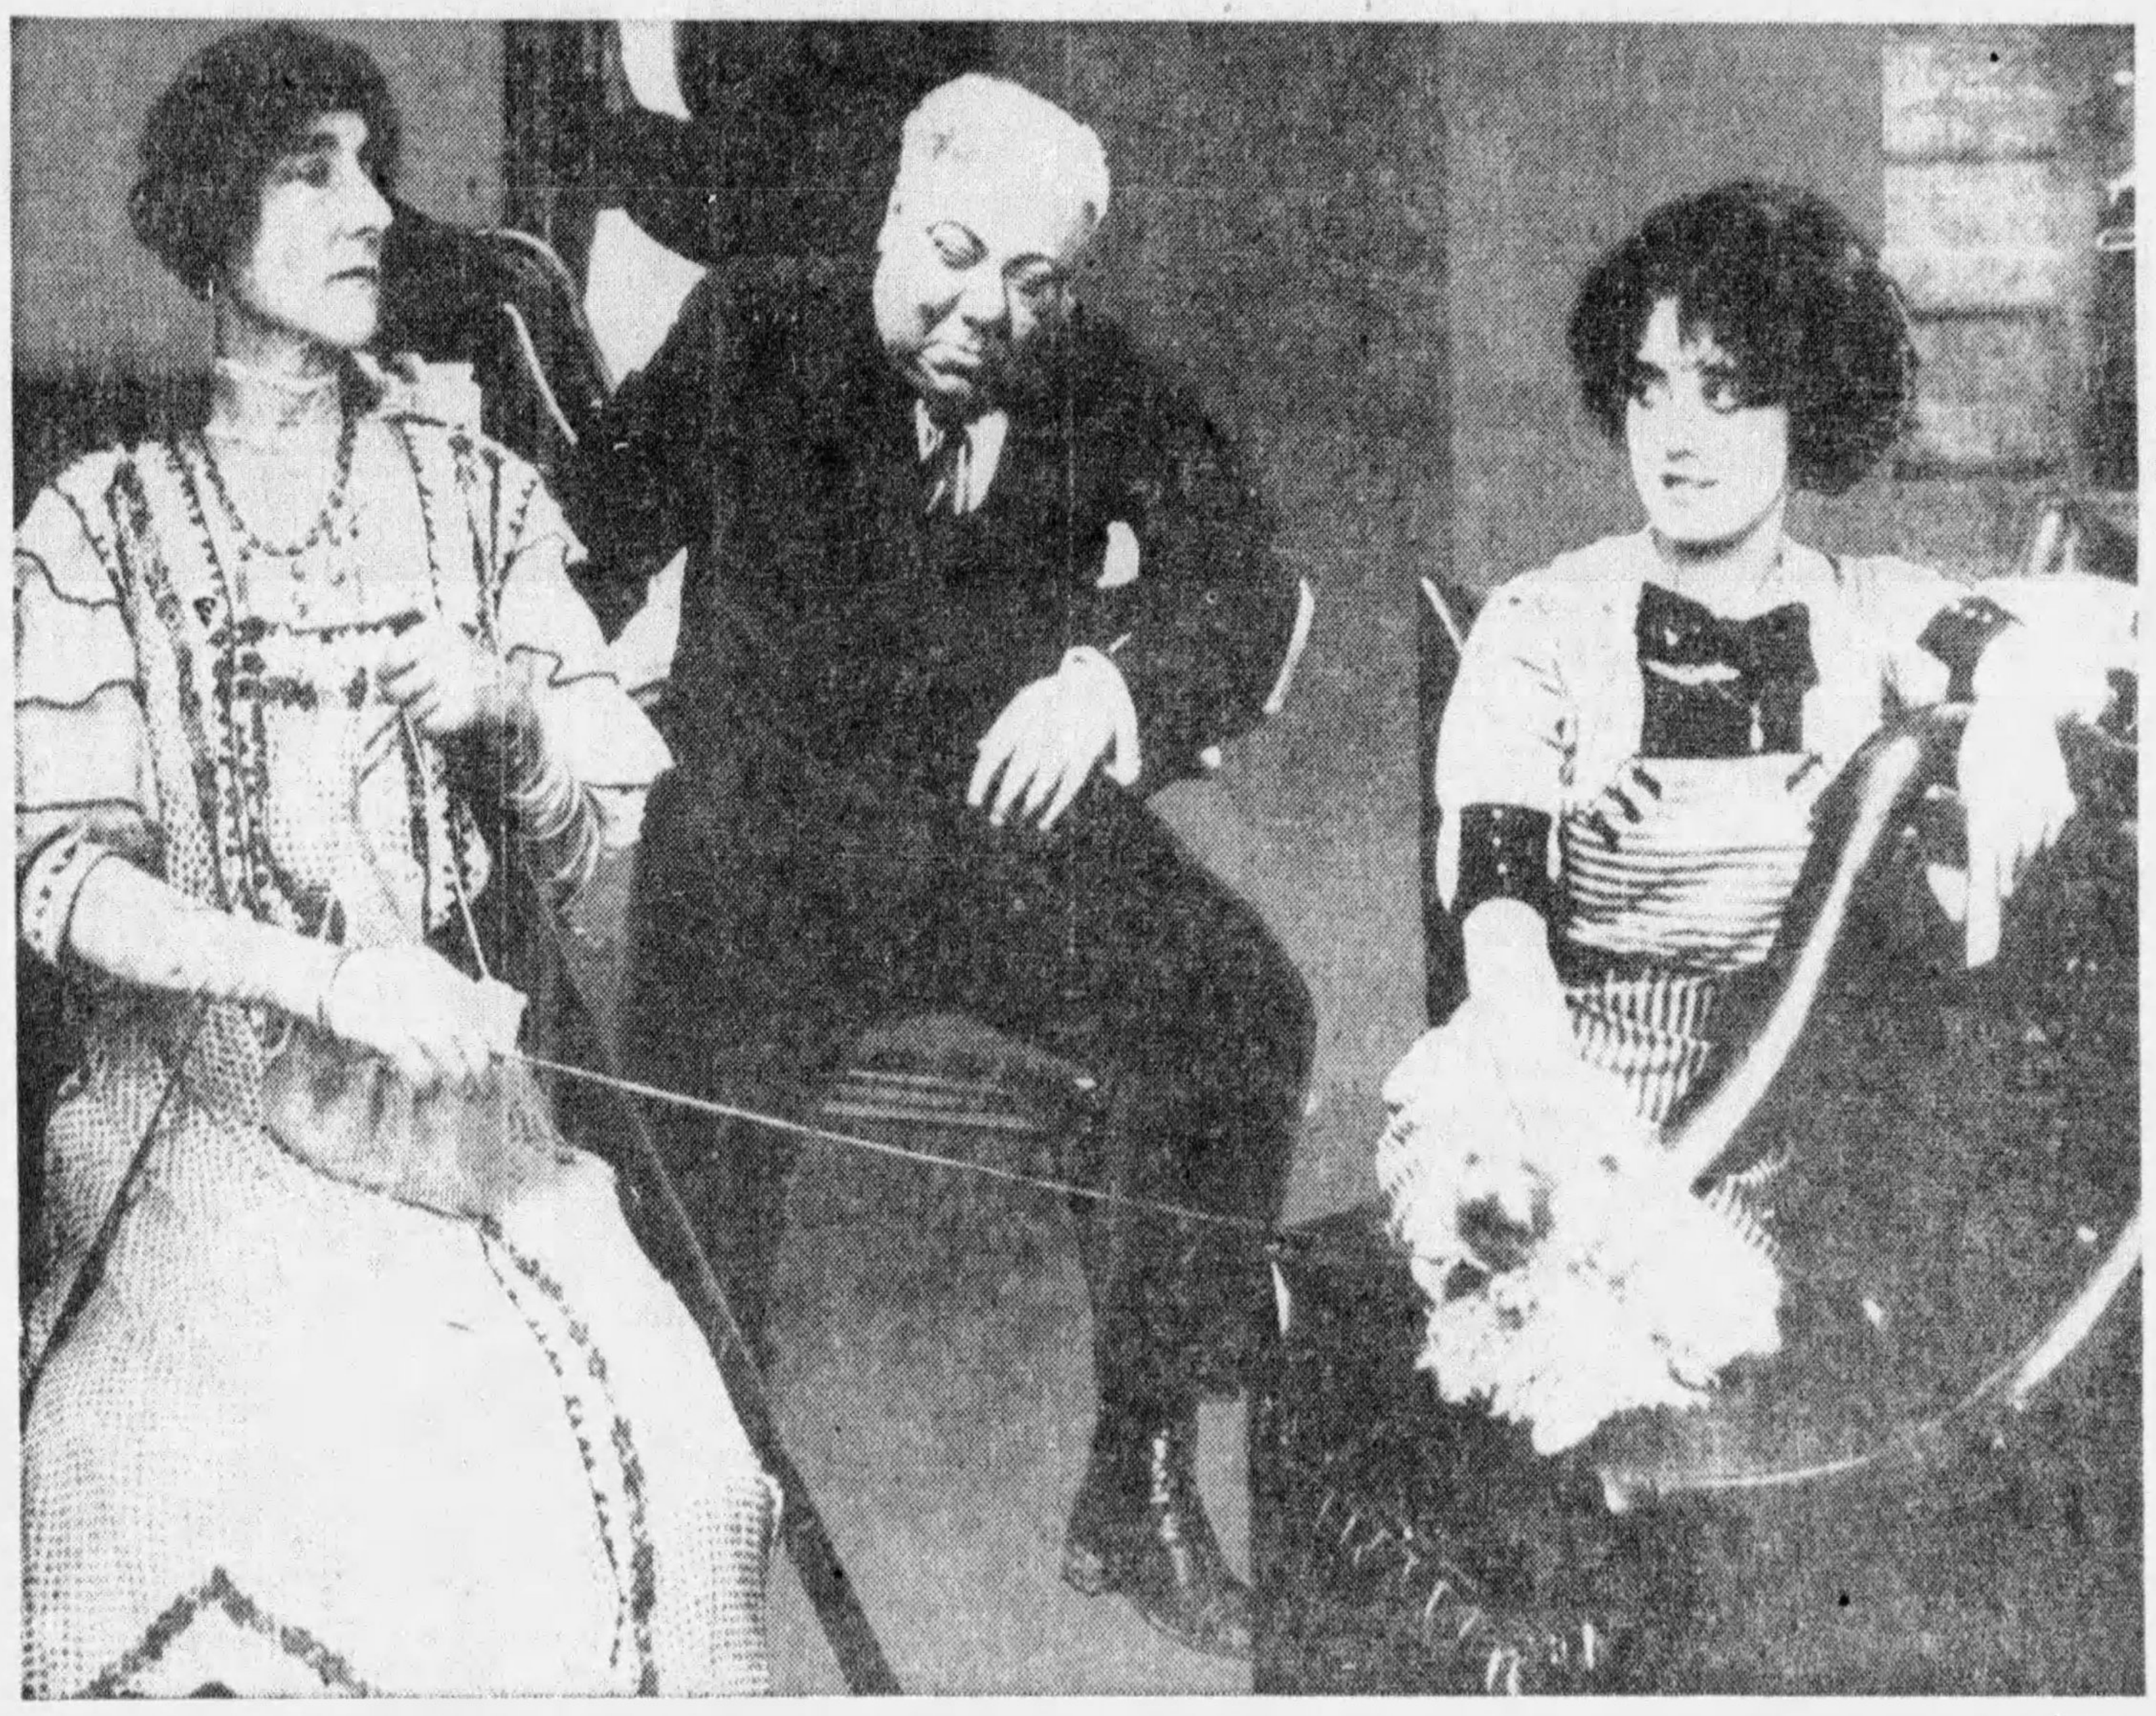
Remember when the Union Monitor (cheesebox on a raft) off Newport News on March 9, 1862, fought its famous "no decision" battle with the Confederate Merrimac, the old "Virginia" plated with rails? Heres the Monitor's "cheesebox"—and the dents of the nine cannonballs that struck it. Fourteen times in all the Monitor was hit, Unionists said.

Remember when Edna May in the musical "Belle of New York" captivated U. S. audiences? She retired in 1907.



Remember when John Bunny and Flora Finch (left) formed the first movie comedy team? Here they are with Mabel Normand, who died in 1930. Mr. Bunny is also dead and Miss Finch recently tried a comeback in the modern day's talkies.

Remember when this young lady 28 years ago was the belle of the White House? She's "Princess Alice" Roosevelt, daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt, shortly before her White House wedding to "Nick" Longworth, Feb. 17, 1906.

Remember when Carrie Nation in 1888-1910 campaigned against liquor in Kansas? And smashed beer kegs, bottles?

NOTABLES ACCLAIM MT. RUSHMORE INSCRIPTION PLAN

MEYER POINTS TO SALES TAX ADVANTAGES

The income tax was condemned as a penalty on success by John D. Meyer, assistant state attorney general and former United States attorney, speaking at the Washington birthday celebration last night at Kaufmann's under auspices of the Women's Political Educational Association.

Sharing the program with Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, Mr. Meyer urged the substitution of a manufacturers' sales tax which, he said, has so many advantages and so few disadvantages that it comes nearest to being an ideal tax. He added:

"The human viewpoint, the natural psychology is that income belongs to the person receiving it. When a profit is made on a business transaction natural avarice, cupidity, or pride in success all tend to force the individual or organization of individuals to evade and avoid that tax on profit if it is possible.

PAID WILLINGLY

"How different with the manufacturers' sales tax. We want something in our home, in our office, or in our business. We ask the price from those who have the goods we want. The price includes a tax.

"If we have enough desire for the goods, if we feel that we really must have them, then we pay the price and pay it willingly because if we have the money and the desire, the natural human thing is to satisfy the desire by using the money.

"The sale is made, the tax is paid and there is no omnipresent interest and desire to evade.

EASIEST TAXES

"The only easy taxes we pay today are those on tobacco, gasoline, alcoholic beverages and similar products of consumption which we can take or leave alone as we desire.

"It seems to many of us that our legislators should well consider the propriety of eliminating in large part the ponderous, awkward, inquisitorial methods of the income tax with its almost terrifying ineffectuality, by placing the tax where it belongs and depending in large part for the support of the federal government upon a general manufacturers' sales tax levied upon all products of manufacture, excepting food and clothing and the simple necessities of life.

"Such a tax would be paid by those who buy and that means by those who have the money. It would be paid in larger part by those who are the greatest consumers."

REVENUES COMPARED

Income tax collectors in the past fiscal year were less than $750,000,000, Mr. Meyer said, while a federal tax on the sale of many articles, including tobacco, was over $800,000,000. He said:

"Over $330,000,000 of the $800,000,000 represented receipts from the tax on tobacco and tobacco products which was actually paid to the federal government. Of course, the rate of taxation on tobacco products is high because on a 15 cent package of cigarets the federal tax is now 6 cents, and if I continue my present habit of using cigarets it will be necessary for me to pay the federal government about $20 tax a year.

"I can easily evade this tax by dropping the cigaret habit and I suppose I could reduce it in amount by 'rolling my own.' The payment of this tax, therefore, becomes entirely voluntary on my part.

"I must have a home and if I have a home I must pay taxes, either directly because of ownership, or indirectly through the rent I pay to my landlord, but the tobacco tax I pay only if and when I use the tobacco.

INCOME LEVY EVADED

"A vast majority of the people of the United States pay no income tax whatever and another considerable percentage evade the payment of that tax through investment in tax-free securities or other subterfuges or loopholes, but whether a man chews scrap or smokes Havana cigars, costing $1 each, he pays the tobacco tax and cannot evade it.

"Though this tobacco tax is high, there are few attempts at evasion, so few that in by four year term as United States attorney, I remember only one prosecution for violation of the law, and that was a petty violation by a corner retailer whose gross business per year probably did not amount to $10,000."

Rescuers Stand by Grounded Oil Tanker

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Apparently free from immediate danger of breaking up, the oil tanker Swifteagle lay grounded on San Benito Island, 450 miles south of here, today, with the Coast Guard Cutter Shoshone standing by.

With 75,000 barrels of fuel oil aboard, the tanker went aground Wednesday night. She lost her boilers and was pounded severely by heavy seas.

Writers, Artists Hail Contest In Writing Patriotic Summary

Cobb Welcomes Writing of Epic By U. S. People

By IRVIN S. COBB

Famous American Novelist

I believe a great sentiment should always be encouraged. For that reason I subscribe heartily to the magnificent idea of having the American people attempt the writing of their own epic in the inscription to be carved on Mt. Rushmore's national memorial.

It seems fitting to have such a movement inaugurated on Washington's birth anniversary. The Rushmore memorial is in every respect an impressive project. The inscriptions found among the ruins of the antique world are in many respects more significant than the temples they adorned. Messages from the past to the present, they survive like speech from other planes of existence.

The American people who join in writing the historic episodes of their country's growth, to be carved by the great art of Gutzon Borglum on Rushmore memorial, will be recording dramatic facts for the ages. Truth here will be stranger than fiction or any invention of fable.

Nothing in the ancient myths is as truly wondrous as the lives of Washington or Lincoln—men who proved that all demi-gods do not inhabit the skies. To perpetuate the deeds of these and other of their illustrious compatriots in imperishable stone is a task that should inspire all the eloquence of which our people is capable.

URGE SALES TAX FOR WEST VA.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Kump informed the Legislature today that raising of $10,000,000 in new revenue is "an immediate fiscal necessity."

To provide the money the Governor suggested a consumers' sales tax, a luxury tax, recapture from utilities of their savings under the new tax collection act and increases in taxes upon other large business activities.

Under the Governor's program the consumers' sales tax would be allocated to support the schools and the luxury tax for relief for which the federal government is demanding an appropriation of $250,000 monthly under threat of withdrawing further direct relief grants.

The Governor fixed his estimate of $10,000,000 needed immediately upon the basis of $5,000,000 for schools, $3,000,000 for relief and the remaining $2,000,000 for general state purposes.

COMMUNITY AID FUND REVISED

Failure of the Community Fund to secure pledges to finance its proposed budget for 1934 has resulted in a revised budget for every agency participating in the fund, according to Horace F. Baker, chairman of the finance committee.

The largest cut was that of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Association, which was reduced from $163,000 to $78,000. An increase in the problem of neglected and homeless children caused the committee to favor the Children's Aid Society and the Children's Service Bureau in the general revision.

Though no further appeal for funds will be made this year, Wilbur F. Maxwell, executive secretary of the Community Fund, said:

"Social agencies can do little more than pick out the more acute types of need and atattempt to meet them in a fairly adequate way."

Sculptor to Speed Work On Likeness Of Jefferson

completed to begin work next summer to complete the gigantic head of Thomas Jefferson, which is being carved on Mt. Rushmore, near Keystone, S. D.

Already the magnificent head of George Washington, 60 feet high, has been hewn out of that solid stone on the backbone of the Rockies.

LASTING MEMORIAL

There remains to be completed, besides that of Jefferson, the heads of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. When finished, the project will stand as a lasting memorial to these four men who have played such an undying part in molding the destiny of the United States of America.

Borglum's announcement today definitely heralds the ultimate completion of the project, which was started in 1927. The idea for the memorial was for a long time a dream and ambition of Doane Robinson, state historian of South Dakota.

Mr. Robinson's original plan was for two figures, that of Washington and some other figure—possibly Lincoln. Borglum was called to action. Exhaustive surveys were made by him and assistants in the Black Hills in 1924 and 1925.

As the survey developed, Borglum and others finally decided on the idea for the memorial as it is at present. Work finally started in 1927, with the late President Calvin Coolidge standing before thousands at the foot of the mountain.

600 WORDS

The other side of the mountain is a rugged and untouched surface. In this space, more than 100 by 120 feet, the sculptor's chisel will engrave 600 words epitomizing the principal events in the history of the United States.

As outlined by the Mt. Rushmore National Memorial Commission, of which Fred W. Sargent, of Chicago, is chairman, there are nine of these epochal divisions. They include:

The writing of the Declaration of Independence.

The making of the Constitution.

The purchase of the Louisiana Territory.

The ceding of the Floridas to the United States.

The rise of the Republic of Texas and its entry as a state.

The Mexican War and the acquisition of California.

The cutting of the Panama Canal.

Both the Rushmore Memorial Commission and the sculptor feel that it would be particularly appropriate to have the American people combine in supplying these inscriptions.

OPEN CONTEST

To that end every man, woman and child in the country is being invited to contribute a definite share to the memorial.

The plan calls for the naming of a national committee to pass final judgment on the texts to be submitted in the competition.

Local committees in each community will sift the first entries in order to do the preliminary elimination work for the national committee.

The foremost American historians, poets, authors and statesmen will be invited to sit on the committees.

Cash and scholarship prizes will be offered in addition to the distinction of seeing the winning inscription perpetuated in the Mt. Rushmore national memorial.

There will also be gold, silver and bronze medals designed by Borglum as well as certificates of merit issued to contestants.

For the next nine days the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will carry news of the latest developments in the organization of the nation-wide competition, and on Sunday, March 4, full details of the competition will be published.

Sarg Points Out Vast Historical Scope in Contest

By TONY SARG

Painter and Master American Craftsman.

This idea of having the American public write the inscriptions on the Rushmore memorial is one that is sure to take hold. I find myself giving it instant response and feel my hand itching to take part in it.

American history is rich in episodes, and the ones presented for perpetuation on this heroic monument appeal to a wide diversity of interests.

Therein, to my mind, lies one of the reasons why the project will evoke progressive attention. A man or woman can elect to write the inscription for the epoch or episode that appeals to him or her most in this national tournament of expression.

There is a breadth of vision about the entire undertaking that is impressive. It has genuine significance and purpose.

ACCUSED BOY'S MOTHER ILL

FRANKLIN, Pa., Feb. 23.—While Russell Graham, 17, striving to regain his composure, is in Venango County Jail, his mother, Mrs. Alonzo A. Graham, her husband dead and her son facing a murder charge, is verging on complete collapse. The mothers' condition is considered serious, doctors said. She worked as a cook in an Oil City dining car to help support the family, while her husband, a sufferer from asthma, was unemployed.

Inquest into the tragedy, brought about when Russell Graham wielded a hammer and knife and killed his father in a row over the radio, was scheduled for late today.

District Attorney Maurice P. Breene indicated possible delay in filing of a first degree murder charge until Monday.

Mrs. Stanley Graham, 20, sister-in-law, who young Graham also struck with the hammer, is recovering and is reported to be the principal witness at the inquest.

Graham will be buried Sunday.

LaGuardia Reported Favoring Lottery

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—The reported plan to add millions of dollars to the city treasury yearly by means of a legalized lottery was reported today to have gained the approval of Mayor F. H. La Guardia.

The information came from Aldeman Elias Jacobs, fusionist, who intends to have a lottery measure introduced in the Legislature at Albany next week. Jacobs indicated he had won the chief executive's support. The Mayor refused to comment.

MEMORIAL TEXT CONTEST WINS PLAUDITS HERE

Leaders in the city's liberal arts voiced their praise today of the national competition sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers seeking inscriptions for the Mt. Rushmore national memorial in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

Among them a historian and an architect, both well known in Pittsburgh and other parts of the country, acclaimed the movement started formally on Washington's birthday. They declared the contest should draw much attention.

Dr. John W. Oliver, head of the department of history at the University of Pittsburgh and author of several historical papers, said:

"I am heartily in sympathy with such a contest as it is very appropriate at this time.

"The unsettled state of mind in which the nation finds itself demands fundamental and sound thinking on our historical heritage.

"It is a beautiful thought that prompts this thought to engrave in stone the highlights of American history."

Henry Hornbostel, designer of the Harding Memorial at Marion, O., Memorial Hall, the Grant Building, the Rodef Shalom and B'Nai Israel synagogues, the Montefiore Hospital, the Hell Gate and Queensboro bridges in New York and a score of other structures and monuments, stated:

"It will make a great number of the people think patriotically—and to get them thinking about the fathers of our country will produce patriotism.

"It may bring out some interesting inscriptions either in prose or poetry, or better still a simple phrase or single sentence describing our past history.

"Phrases are part and parcel of our history. You often hear them used on various occasions. There is Patrick Henry's 'Give me liberty or give me death!' and one of the best is Pershing's 'Lafayette, we are here.'

"This country has had so little for the imagination because it was so busily occupied with money matters and commercial affairs, that to stimulate the imagination either in art or in patriotism is just now of immense value."

REED PROTESTS U. S. SPENDING

EASTON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Senator David A. Reed predicts that unless government expenditures are curtailed they will lead to "printing press" money.

Asserting that "we are increasing the public debt at the rate of $25,000,000 a day," Reed called on Pennsylvania bankers last night to protest against heavy spending by the federal government. He spoke before Group 3 of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association.

Unlimited issuance of fiat money will follow exhaustion of the government's borrowing power, the Senator said, adding:

"That is the route that all governments must take that find their borrowing powers depleted."

Reed also expressed the belief that the courts will not uphold the government's seizure of gold.

FEWER SCHOOL AREAS URGED FOR ECONOMY

(Three weeks ago the Sun-Telegraph published an article urging one school district for each county. Today's article reviews the proposal of the State Department of Public Instruction to reduce the 2,587 districts in the state to 500. Consolidation is urged as a matter of economy to eliminate waste and duplication in administrative duties.)

Believing there should be no school district with a population of less than 5,000 officials of the State Department of Public Instruction have repeatedly urged the merging of smaller districts so that the 2,587 districts in the state would be reduced to 500.

Under the proposal, first brought up in the last regular session of the Legislature, existing districts with 10,000 or more population would continue as separate school areas. Remaining districts in each county would be regrouped in "community units," each having a population, as far as practicable, between 5,000 and 10,000.

ECONOMIES POINTED OUT

James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction, is heartily in favor of such a consolidation. Among the advantages of a larger unit, as given by the state officials are:

1—It makes possible immediate savings from 10 to 20 per cent in non-instructional costs through elimination more than three-fourths of the school board treasurers and secretaries, greatly reduces the cost of tax collection and centralizes the purchase of books, equipment and supplies.

2—It would also provide for the establishment of a more efficient budgetary control of school costs.

3—It would make possible the removal of artificial barriers set up by small district boundary lines, with assignment of pupils to schools nearest their homes, thus reducing transportation costs to parents, taxpayers and the state.

4—It would also provide for organization of a district on the basis of a "high school attendance area," or a district large enough to support a high school. Practically every district then would be able to have its own high school. This would largely eliminate non-resident high school tuition charges, one of the most troublesome of rural district budget items. Regroupings would be possible so as to use existing buildings.

5—It would make possible a more equitable distribution of educational opportunities to the boys and girls of the state, particularly for those of the rural communities.

DUPLICATION OPPOSED

Superintendent Rule makes the following statement regarding consolidation:

"In this age of rapid transit and telephonic communication, there is unnecessary duplication of work in the administration of the schools in the small districts. Every individual who has any interest in the public schools, either as a parent or as a taxpayer, should give serious consideration to the question of a more economical and efficient school unit."

A report issued by the Department of Instruction last week stated that more than one per cent of the 2,587 districts are not conducting their own schools. Pupils are sent to adjoining school districts to which tuition is paid.

The report further asserts:

"Many pupils of high school age have been barred from educational opportunities this year because of the inability of their home districts to pay non-resident tuition charges. The Department of Public Instruction, now that a special aid fund has been made available, expects to remove this handicap in every financially distressed district so that every pupil who desires it will be able to obtain a high school education."

Woman Justice Spurs Plea for U. S. School Aid

CLEVELAND, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—A declaration by Florence E. Allen, justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, "we cannot dispense with that pride of American life, the free education system," has moved a joint session of college deans of women and principals of girls' schools to appeal to Congress for school aid.

Justice Allen spoke before the deans and principals, whose associations are sub-groups of the National Education Association, last night without specifically mentioning a federal emergency bill, backed by the N. E. A., to provide funds to keep schools open.

After her address, however, the two groups voted to telegraph Congress, urging passage of the bill. The woman justice said:

"If we don't keep the children in schools we will keep them in jails. It will cost the United States more in money—and that's the smallest part of it—to keep them in jails instead of the schools.

"I would infinitely prefer to be mired on a bad road than to drive along a splendid road from nowhere to nowhere and at the same time have the spiritual lives of our boys and girls impoverished by cutting off the free education system as we have known it in the past."

40 VETS SEEK CITIZENSHIP

Aliens who served with armed forces of the United States in the World War today had their last opportunity to file applications for citizenship without the formality of seeking first papers and paying the $20 fee.

Forty former soldiers took advantage of the act at the office of W. W. Wiggins, divisional director of immigration and naturalization, Federal Building. The act expires May 25, but applications must be filed 90 days before.

Some Real Information on

COLDS

How any community can cut down the time lost and suffering in "Cold" season

Place no faith in so-called "instant" cold cures. To relieve any cold, try above all to clear the head, dry the secretions, and reduce the fever. This takes more than a "few minutes," and medicine of more than one kind.

To relieve a more stubborn cold will require a second treatment, and frequently a second day of this treatment, but it's worth the time. Colds that have been driven out of the system are gone.

98 OUT OF 100 WOMEN REPORT BENEFIT

JUST ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS

Right in your neighborhood there must be a woman who has been benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Let her tell you how good this medicine is before and after childbirth, at the Change, or whenever a woman is nervous, weak and rundown.

MRS. RUTH GUTH
2541 Wilson Avenue
Chicago, Illinois

"After my little girl was born I was weak and nervous and all rundown in weight. My mother heard about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me my first bottle. It did wonders for me and I am glad to recommend it to anyone."—Mrs. Bessie Felten, 323 7th Ave., Altoona, Pennsylvania.

For Jumpy Nerves

"Before my second baby came your Vegetable Compound made me strong. It relieves headache, backache and irritability. My nerves were jumpy but now I can do all my work and feel happy. I recommend your medicine to all women, especially at pregnancy."—Mrs. Milton Stevens, Route 3, Goodwater, Alabama.

MRS. WILLIAM McDONALD
612½ South Huron Street
Ypsilanti, Michigan

"I had an operation two years ago and since then I have not been strong. At my period I had awful pains in my sides and through the abdomen. I had headaches, felt tired and sick and had to stay in bed most of the day. I heard about Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets from my friends and now I do not suffer so. I have lots of faith in the Pinkham medicines and I tell my friends about them."—Mrs. William McDonald.

"Four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets relieved painful periods. I do not suffer at all now. It steadied my nerves. I have a clear complexion which I never had before. I used to feel melancholy at times but I never felt better in my life than I do now."—Mrs. Ruth Guth.

Helped at the Change

"My back was so bad I had to lie down most of the time. I was weak and dizzy and had frequent headaches and hot flushes. Three bottles of the Vegetable Compound has helped me a great deal. My nerves are steadier and I feel better in all ways."—Mrs. Jennie Stoyakovich, 2441 North 16th St., Terre Haute, Ind.

TABLETS, TOO

Many women like the convenience of Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. They relieve and prevent periodic pain and discomfort. Persistent use brings permanent relief. New purse size package—at all drug stores.

DANGERS SEEN IN EXPANDING PUBLIC DEBT

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—There are two points in the Chicago speech recently made by Gen. Charles G. Dawes which require examination. One is his statement that we have nothing to fear from the growing public debt.

The other is that if only we develop a "mass confidence" in present and future conditions all will be well.

The General refers to the "inherent strength" of the nation, and that such strength still exists, we may agree. But a man or a nation may be "inherently" strong, and yet get into bad financial shape. One may be inherently strong and still be insolvent.

A large part of his thought, as recently reported, rests upon a comparison of our present debt with that of 1919. He says that our federal debt was then somewhat larger than it is just now, but we then quickly reduced it.

AFFECTED BOOMS

But note these three points:

First, the war and post-war debts had much to do with the boom which ended in the crash of 1929. We do not want another such period of new era "prosperity." Such periods are necessarily always followed by aftermaths as in 1930-1933

Second, we are not heading for any debt retirement. Rather we are spending over a billion dollars a month, mostly for things which produce no income.

Third, the nature of the federal debt is vastly different now. It is over 50 per cent short-term debt, which has to be renewed continually, thus causing continuous financial disturbance and strain. It is largely held by banks, and not by the public as long-term investors.

The government is like a corporation which is running on bank loans. The fact that it so largely dominates the banks from which it gets its loans renewed makes the condition all the more dangerous.

The general says that our public debt is less than $360 per capita. He might have gone on and argued that it is less than $212 per capita now that the gold dollar has been cut 40 per cent!

In 1919 our dollars were gold dollars, containing about 70 per cent more gold than the present gold dollars. More than that, government bonds were payable in gold dollars. All this is now different.

How can anyone hope to maintain government credit indefinitely when the government's bonds are being at least 40 per cent repudiated?

He says that the government pays less interest than in 1919. That is but a symptom of an unsound condition. Its huge mass of short-term borrowings carried by the banks on a fear basis, is one explanation.

'CONFIDENCE' PERIL

As to "mass confidence," there lies one of our greatest dangers. If it is maintained on present lines we may sweep on to "bigger and better" debts, which would mean another 1929. We had confidence in 1929.

What we need is a basis for confidence. We have such a basis only when debts are in proportion to sure earnings, and credits are based on business conditions. Then confidence would take care of itself. Nothing could stop it.

We don't need any more confidence on the part of debtors. What we need is some confidence for lenders.

Some of our bankers are big debtors to the government. Do they want another inflationary boom so that they can get out from under, leaving the rest of us holding the bag?

I wonder!

CHAPTER XLIV.

"That gave me a lot of chance around here, but I never was able to shake off all your men at the same time. Always one of them tagging along so as I couldn't search proper. I was hopin' that the young lady tore it up, but I couldn't be certain," Judson continued.

"The first real chance I gets on the upstairs floor alone is the night you have all the police here to go over things again! When I got here you was all in the library talking. MacNally says 'Hello' to me, but don't pay any more attention. I goes past him in the hall, and then, seeing that his back is to me, I keeps softly on upstairs into the lady's room instead of going into the library. My skeleton key opened the door and I stepped in.

"First thing I does is to break open that cedar chest on the table—it was a likely place for a letter. And while I'm working at that, I happens to look up and there is MacNalley standing looking at me.

"For a minute I musta lost my head—haven't been able to think straight these days any way. 'Stead of taking the rap for breaking in where I had no business, I goes up to him, whips out my automatic and lets him have it. He gives a terrible screech and tumbles over backward into the hall downstairs, the blood spattering all over me.

Locked Officers In

"I rushes down the steps, intent on making a getaway, but still have enough presence of mind to switch off the lights at the top of the stairs. Just as I reaches the library door, somebody steps out and I hit him a terrible wallop with the end of my gun. Then I takes the only chance left. I reaches in and gets the key and locks you in.

"That gives me a minute or two, but not long enough to get in my car and make off. And there I am covered with blood and certain to be caught in a second or two by your bunch of cops. So I just steps behind a bush determined to shoot it out with you. The first man I seen coming toward me was you, Inspector. I lets you have it. Not that I knows it was you, but I wants to account for the blood all over me."

"I was fairly sure at the time that you shot me intentionally," said Anderson nodding. "That was my first definite suspicion of you, Judson. When I saw that MacNalley had been killed on the second floor I believed that it was because he had let someone enter whom he knew. I have compared the bullet found in his chest with that in my arm and I have no doubt but that Dr. Jones and his comparison-scope will be able to prove by the grooves and markings on the bullets that it was fired by this very automatic of yours. After that it was all easy, especially when you failed to show up at any of Tim's hearings. Thought he would recognize your voice, didn't you, Judson? Well, he probably will when we reach court with you.

Conclusive Evidence

"What a contemptible swine you are! You would have let Tim Stokes, innocent though he is, swing for this crime without a twinge of conscience. Luck played into your hands, Judson, but it deserted you at the critical moment! Tim, under the influence of the truth serum, gave me just the clue I needed. It's a wonderful thing, this scopolamin!

"You've done a wise thing in confessing, Judson. The evidence is absolutely conclusive. We have your signature to the letter you wrote Mrs. Paige, the two shots which you fired at MacNalley and me, and the electric bulb on which you left your finger-prints. A fatal error, Judson!"

At this moment, we heard a car rushing up the drive and the loud honking of the police horn. Towson headquarters had sent a machine without a second's delay.

"Go ahead with him, Andy," I said. "I'll stay here. I have an hour's work dictating this story over the wire. Gosh, won't we scoop the morning papers! I have my own car over here in the woods. Go along without me!"

"Come along, Judson," said Anderson roughly. "Hanging is too good for you. Now you be quiet, damn you, or I'll blow you to bits." Anderson was once more the grim efficient police official.

"Bye-bye, Judson," I said with a grin in which there was a lot of satisfaction. "I'll be seeing you again soon—at the end of a rope, I hope! So long!"

* * *

An hour later I left that sinister house of tragedy. Dawn had broken, the fifth dawn since beautiful little Sunny had been so needlessly and cruelly murdered to pay for a wicked man's conflict with the forces of Society and Order. But now she would be avenged. The law had reached out and gathered in its prey!

I struck off through the woods to where I had parked my car the night before. Years ago, it seemed.

Life Imprisonment

Then it had been night and darkness. Now there were a million birds singing their souls away and turning the world into a riot of sound. And the big red sun was rising in a blaze of rose and gold over the edge of the world, lighting the fields and orchards of the Paige estate and turning the waters of the Gunpowder into a sparkling dancing torrent.

* * * *

Today, behind the grim gray granite walls of the Maryland Penitentiary there is one man doomed, forever as long as he shall live, to remain behind bars, cut off from the world, from home, family, friends and all that makes the life of men worth while. His days are spent in the "scratch room," as convicts call the foundry. At night he is locked alone behind his steel bars to meditate upon the two murders that he so wantonly committed.

Number 1764 he is now. And Number 1764 he will remain until he has drawn the last breath of life.

For his sentence of 99 plus seven years permits of no pardon, nor parole, no reprieve. Alone, forgotten, without a friend, he is making his expiation to society.

But the Paige case is not forgotten.

It never will be.

It is one of the most sinister and the most famous in the entire history of Maryland criminology.

THE END.

JUNIOR PATROL

Junior

Nowadays, of course, many shows are fairly good. But there are still only a few which are excellent. Be on the lookout for the good shows, then try to see them.

And when you see a show, ask yourself if real people would act that way. See if the show is honest and sincere. A really good show doesn't fool you. It makes you interested in the characters, so that you feel that you are seeing a part of life the way life really is.

It's fun, too, watching for "errors." Maybe the girl will go in one door and an instant later come out another door wearing a different dress. She couldn't have had time to change dresses. The picture director made the two scenes at different times, and the girl did not wear the same dress both times. Most errors are harder to find than one like this, though, because most of the picture companies are very careful. But they still make mistakes, and sharp eyes and ears can find them. Write and tell us what "errors" you find.

Another thing, we are looking for good jokes, fellows. Write and tell us your favorites, will you? Perhaps we can print them in the Mail Box.

We have a letter today from Robert Davis, of 718 Market street, McKeesport. He tells us that he reads the Junior Patrol every night and that he likes it very much. He is in the fourth grade and getting along well.

We're glad to hear it, Robert, and your badge and card will soon be on the way.

We hear that many Junior Patrol clubs enjoyed some wonderful Washington Birthday parties yesterday. Now we are waiting for some letters from captains telling us about them.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.

LANDING OF ROGER WILLIAMS (1631) IN BOSTON

Roger Williams (1604(?)-1683), an extreme Puritan, minister, dissented soon with the Massachusetts Colonial leaders (especially of Salem) over religious ideals as he emphasized freedom of thought and religious liberty. He also attacked taking of Indian lands without purchase. Banished from the colony in 1635, he fled with a few adherents to today's Rhode Island, for which he procured a charter in 1643. Roger Williams is known to be the founder of the first Baptist church in America. (U. S. History)

BATTLE OF MARATHON (490 B. C.)—ATHENS VICTORIOUS

This battle marked the start of the downfall of the Persian empire, that had reached its climax under Darius I (521-486 B. C.). Xerxes, son of Darius I, still powerful emperor, was unsuccessful in wars, especially against the Greeks, who destroyed his entire fleet in 479 B. C. Greece (united with Macedonia) was destined to become master of Persia for several centuries. (World History)

THALLUS PLANTS

Living things are divided into two kingdoms—plants and animals. The plant kingdom is subdivided into four main groups, phyla, the first, comprising the thallus plants: cells, cell-masses without distinct leaves, stems or roots. Thallus plants divide into three groups: 1, Algae (seaweeds, pond scums, etc., common seaweed shown); they are simple structures, having chlorophyll bearing cells. 2, Fungi (bacteria, yeasts, molds, rots, toadstools (shown), mushrooms); these are cell structures without chlorophyll. 3, Lichens (algae and fungi grown together, the former producing food, the latter storing water and lending support). It is shown on the dead branches of a tree. Lichens work down into rocks and split them (4).

ORIGIN OF THE SOLAR SYSTEM

That all planets revolve about the sun and rotate around their axes in the same direction as the sun rotates, that the orbit-planes of the principal planets are nearly coinciding with the plane of the sun's equator, are facts that point toward the supposition, the sun, planets and their satellites were once one star, a rotating hot mass.

According to the planetesimal theory of Profs. Chamberlain and Moulton, a giant star passed near the parent star of the present solar system, billions of years ago. Its gravitational pull caused masses of gases to be ejected, both toward it and in opposite direction. These masses continued their rotation, also revolving about the central mass of the parent star, the sun, to which they became the planets. Smaller ejected masses, caught by the gravitation of the planets, became their satellites (moons). (General Science)

MAIN PARTS OF ENGINE FUEL SUPPLY

Float F keeps gasoline at constant level. The motor sucks in air at A, which rushes past the ventury cones Z1, Z2, lifting from the main discharge jet (in communication with float chamber) gasoline in fine spray-form. Throttle valve T regulates the intake of fuel of the engine; when almost closed (at idling) air sweeps past the idling discharge jet with great velocity, lifting enough gasoline spray to keep the motor slowly turning.

Vacuum tank may be eliminated by a fuel pump or by placing the storage tank higher than carburetor. (Automobile)

OZONE PRODUCTION

Ozone ($O_3$), an "allotropic form" of oxygen, is produced by the action of ultra violet rays on oxygen or by electric sparks. The latter is the commercial production method. Ozone is used for purifying water, bleaching, deodorizing, destroying germs. In the electrical production (above) high tension alternating current (from transformer) is led through aluminum plate electrodes, placed between mica insulators; the metal casings are the second electrodes. Between electrodes steady sparking occurs. Air or oxygen is blown in carrying off the generated ozone. (15—III—B)

George Never Had Deductions

Every year on his birthday we have called attention to the immortal Washington. In a few more years we will probably claim he was our protege.

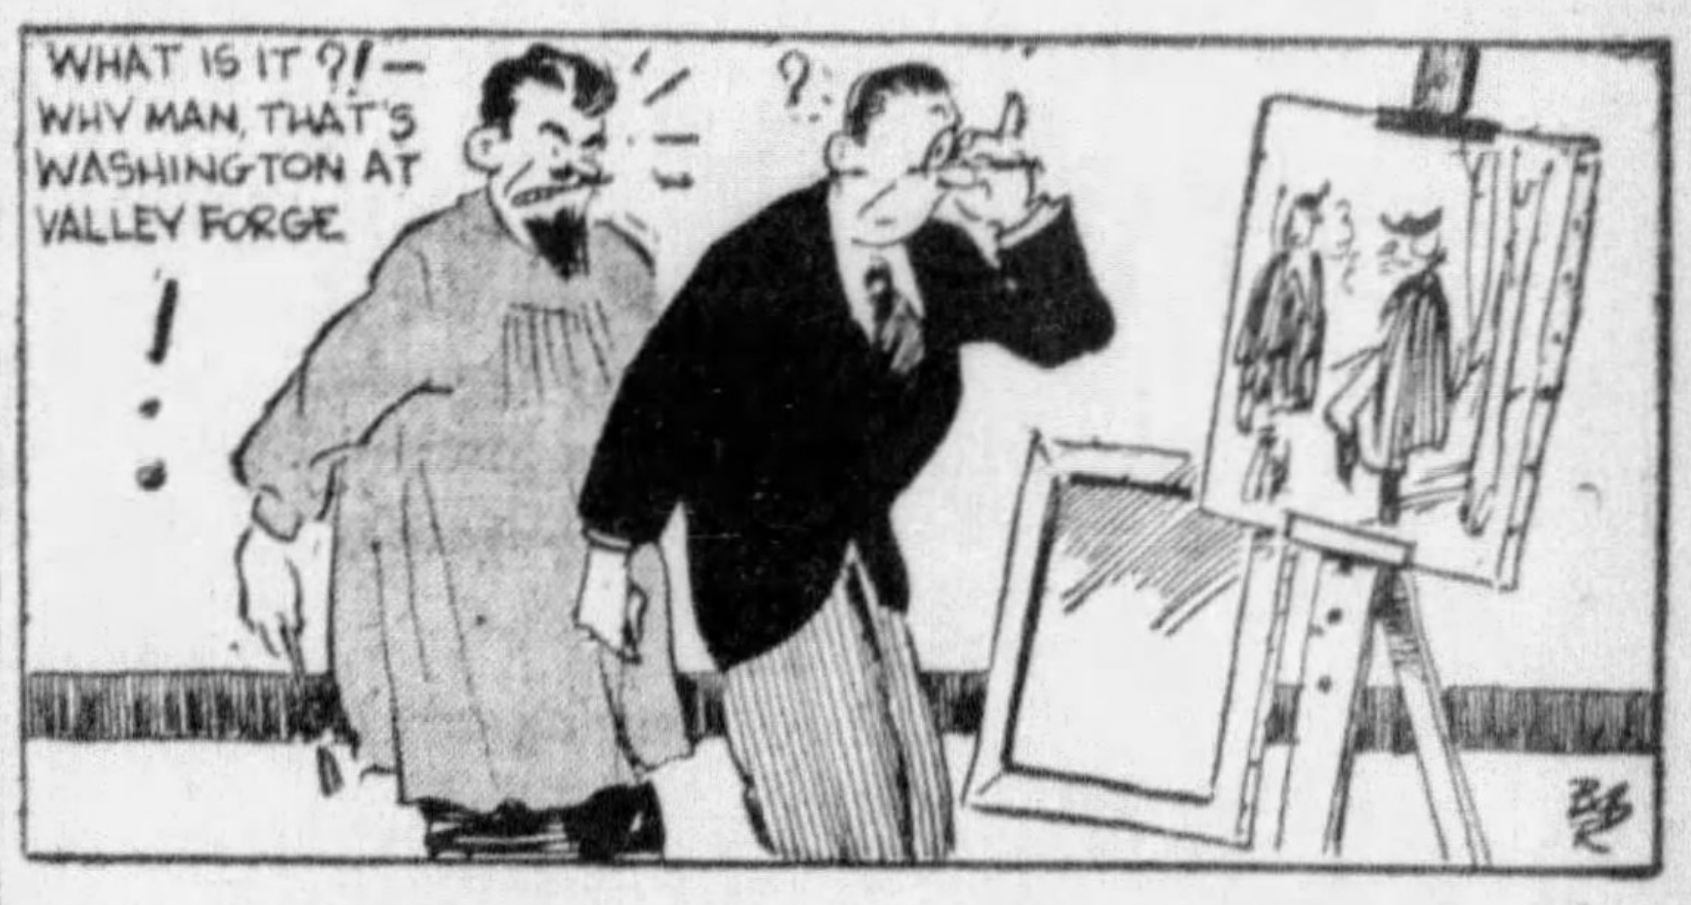
While engaged in winter sports at Valley Forge he got the idea of holding a regatta on the Delaware. This led to a glorious victory and many bad paintings.

It was at Valley Forge he suffered while Gates and Conway engineered their cabals in Congress. They clipped his food and chiseled his army. Even at that period a man could be accused of having too many parties and too many pals.

George couldn't tell a lie no matter how hard he tried. Like the hobo and the caviar it wasn't in him.

He was just naturally honest and had no attorney. If he were alive today it might be different. We have to make out our income taxes next month. And while performing that double entry bookkeeping we never think of Washington crossing the Delaware. We're too busy trying to doublecross the Potomac.

If we handled that cherry tree incident for the internal revenue collectors we would work it two ways. We would claim $50 depreciation on the tree. And another $50 for improvement of property.



WHAT IS IT ?! — WHY MAN, THAT'S WASHINGTON AT VALLEY FORGE
B. B. R.

While never actually ratified by plebiscite it seems to be generally understood that March 15 is the compound fractured birthday of Ananias and Baron Munchausen. That date goes down in history as the day it rained red ink.

Everybody looks sad and melancholy and has a tale of woe longer than a snake's backbone. We all seem to think that the proper method of arriving at the desired sum total is to reduce the net from the gross. Some of the boys do better than that. They reduce the gross from the net.

It makes a nice circle. The politicians trim the people. The people trim the government. The government consists of the politicians. It's like a dentist pulling his own teeth.

The man who hasn't got a dime is a cheerful citizen compared with the man in the 60 per cent brackets. That's what we would call palatial parenthesis. Yet, it can't be so tough when you give one million to Uncle Sam and keep a million for yourself. If that's what they call starting life all over again we will be satisfied with a short order.

NRA Fallacies

The Act Is a Social Reform Rather Than an Instrument for Economic Recovery

From the outset, the Hearst newspapers have pointed to the confusion of thinking at Washington concerning the NRA.

It has been repeatedly pointed out in these columns that the NRA is not primarily an instrument of economic recovery, but rather a mechanism for social reform.

It was a blunder to assume that there was lifting power in the program.

As a matter of fact, it actually took months for reviving business to overcome the adverse initial effects of the NRA program for saddling down enterprise with additional burdens.

The immediate judgment rendered by the Hearst newspapers has been confirmed in a leisurely appraisal by eleven eminent economists, who at Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's request contributed to the Columbia University report on economic reconstruction.

Referring to current fallacies concerning restricting production, the experts significantly said:

"These considerations apply particularly to the activities conducted under the National Recovery Act. In so far as they are designed to prevent undercutting in wages and prices and other competitive practices incompatible with a decent minimum standard of living for the worker, they have a HUMANITARIAN justification, but they should be viewed in that regard.

"THERE SHOULD BE NO ATTEMPT TO IMPOSE SUCH REGULATIONS ON ANY BROADER SCALE WITH THE IDEA THAT THEY ARE MEASURES OF RECOVERY.

"There should be no illusion with regard to the fact that a general rise in prices through such measures IS NOT A SIGN OF INCREASING PROSPERITY."

These experts make clear that only "the rise of prices reflective of INCREASED DEMAND and INCREASED PURCHASING POWER can be associated with the process of recovery.

"The concomitant illusion that a deliberate limitation of output, because it raises prices, helps toward recovery is a still more dangerous fallacy."

It clarifies the air to distinguish between fact and fancy in the official recovery program.

In the last analysis, the revival of prosperity will be accelerated by stressing economically sound policies, such as stimulating industry and providing government employment, but will be hindered by burdens upon industry, which hamper industrial development, and consequently restrict the natural capacity of industry to employ.

The Mayor's Auto

Our Champion of the Single Tax Does Not Refuse to Pay Gasoline and Motor Taxes.

Mayor William N. McNair, boasting that he has put the city on its feet, has done just the opposite for himself.

When elected Mr. McNair declared it an outrage upon the taxpayers that an expensive automobile should be maintained for the Mayor's use, with a chauffeur to run it.

The expensive automobile was to be turned over to the Board of Assessors for their tours, and the chauffeur was to be provided a pick and shovel, or something else useful.

For a while he stuck to that decision, except upon the frequent occasions when newspapermen drove him to his office.

Then he began to yearn for the same soft cushions upon which had ridden the late Mayor Charles H. Kline and former Mayor John S. Herron. The temptation became too great, probably because the street car company refused to reduce its fare to five cents.

The Mayor would not pay 8 1/3 cents. He'd ride the city auto instead—an alternative not permitted the taxpayers who put up for the auto. And so he does, to and from his office, and for some private chores.

However, unlike his attitude on other matters, he has not so far refused to permit payment of either the gasoline tax or the motor vehicle tax, a strange departure from strict championship of the single tax.

Perhaps the Mayor some day will say that if the Schenleys paid ground rent we could all have expensive autos.

The Housing Demand

The People's Call for the Elimination of Slums Cannot Be Silenced

The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, the railroad employes' brotherhoods and the Pennsylvania Security League have united in addressing a letter to the Republican State Committee demanding among other things that the Republican Organization support legislation for the elimination of slums.

Simultaneously Sidney A. Teller, director of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, has called Council's attention to 32 dwellings condemned by the city but still standing, and a hundred others listed as unfit by the Pittsburgh Housing Association.

There are other developments, too, which point to the urgency of the need of government action to replace slums with sanitary low-rent houses.

The people's call for action cannot be silenced.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders, if wise, will heed it.

Lopsided Development

The Allegheny Requires Improvement as Well as the Monongahela

The National Forest Reservation Commission announces that it has approved the purchase of 73,374 acres—a tract about one-sixth of the area of Allegheny County—for addition to the Monongahela National Forest.

The forest has been created for the specific purpose of regulating stream flow in the Monongahela River. It will serve as an auxiliary to the storage reservoir to be built on the Tygart River.

Oil for the Lamp of Knowledge

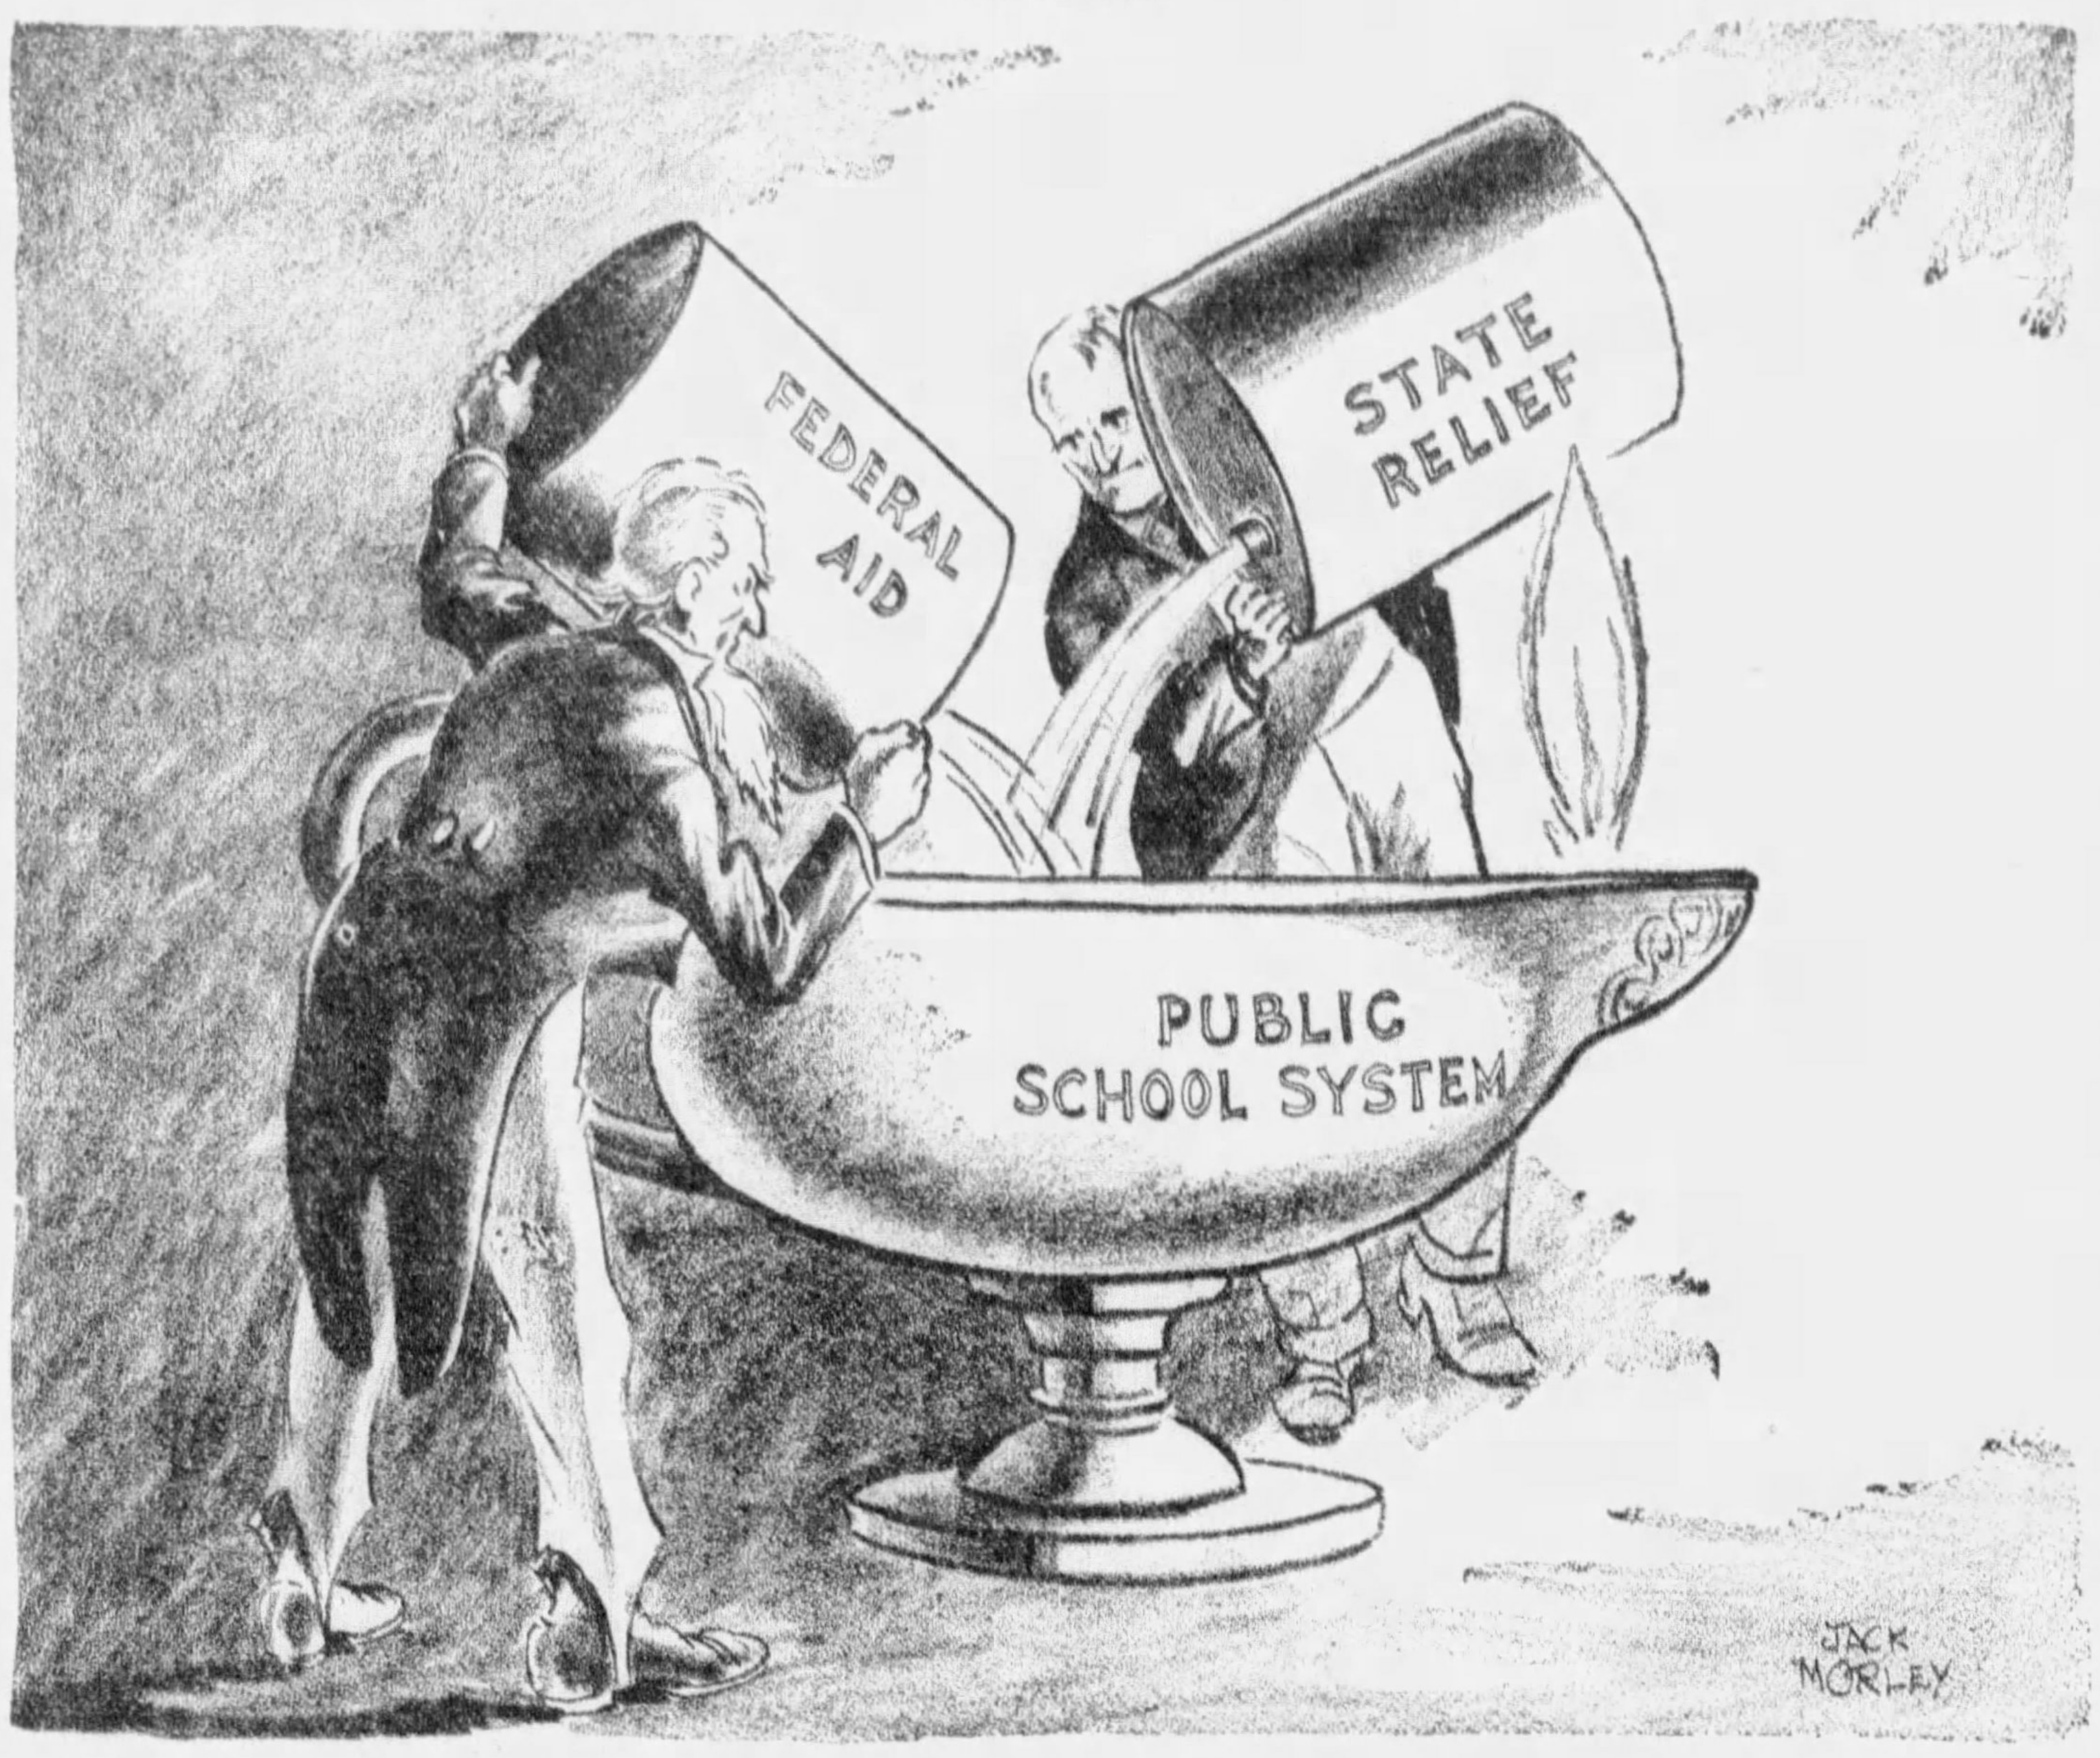
(Copyright, 1934.)



This country—it is our shame to say—has more illiteracy than many countries of Europe. Yet we pride ourselves on our zeal for education.

And during the economic crisis we have allowed our schools to suffer enormously.

In State after State schoolhouses have been closed for lack of funds, and a recent survey has shown that our average school term has become shorter than the average school term of Europe.

Federal relief funds have been provided to keep rural schools open and twenty States have provided emergency funds for education.

These belated efforts must be encouraged and continued.

Moreover, Congress should act to prevent a recurrence of the school crisis by establishing a Federal Department of Education, headed by a Secretary who shall be a member of the President's Cabinet.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Thoughts while strolling: I can never tell which is Phil Plant and which is Billy Leeds. And John Farrar and Sterling Holloway look alike. A Chinese cafe called "The Good Earth." The way those elevator girls at Stearn's talk Bree-tish. Or maybe they take me for a Haw-vahd man!

One word description of Frances White—glossy. Strange how people became well known in rather inconspicuous posts. Coxey, the New York insurance man, for instance. Also "Mary of St. Louis" at the station newsstand there. And Jimmy Widemyer, the Cincinnati newsboy.

Nobody looks so dandyish for his years as Whitney Warren. And Eva La Gallienne suggests a demure maid reading Keats in the arbored archway of a cathedral garden. So pronounced is Maurice Chevalier's protruding lip no one pays the slightest attention to his pigeontoed walk. That's art!

The smell of pine always reminds me of grandma's croup-kettle. Whatever become of One Eye Connelly? Nobody can so deftly sidetrack one of those cafe bores as Bugs Baer. And why is it his presence erupts such a swift crackle of wit across a table top?

One of my favorite people—J. Harvey McCoy. A star danced and under it Betzi Beaton was born. The eerie glamour of a gas-lit waterfront hotel. All day long I've been repeating "arroyo." It pops out so smoothly. In one's dotage I suppose such trivia become memorable.

* * *

Maj. Raymond Dickson has forwarded his yearly rack of sausage from his Mexican—here it goes again!—arroyo. It's a mixture of fire, brimstone and canned lightning. A fire eater might sit down to it and start right off, but the novice should practice swallowing lighted lamps. The first bite unloosens the bridge-work, snaps the suspenders, stops the watch and opens all pores. I had Paul Whiteman to breakfast and after two gulps he exclaimed in a watery-eyed, red-faced whew: "Boy, what I could do to a trumpet!"

* * *

With one of those trivia-tonnaged minds that fastens to some cutlandish uselessness I have been fretting to know if the hook-worm species in that drab potpourri of up-the-holler life actually gnaw real turnips throughout Henry Hull's "Tobacco Road." Always they are munching. They are, I learn from high authority, real turnips purchased daily by the property man from an Eighth avenue grocer. So that's that.

* * *

Crossing Fifty-eighth street early one evening recently, I saw a group knotted in front of a sagging canopy stretching from the entrance to the curb. An ambulance was waiting and there was a sprinkle of those policemen with that knowing manner of ask-me-if-you-want-to-be-bawled out. So I peeked in the foyer. A tipsy lady was there. Save for a cop's suddenly shucked coat, a Godiva without a horse. She had, after a lover's spat, jumped seven stories from her bath a la natural. Hitting the canopy, she bounced until rescued. Her only injury was a wrenched thumb, showing drunken gentlemen do not get all the breaks in their falls.

* * *

New York's shirts have grown a pale Facisti. The reigning shade is a slatey solid gray—only a few tones removed from the black shirt. The style is merely a revival. Fifteen years ago Lawrence Weber, the theatrical manager, sported them as well as other shirtings of solidly heavy colors. It was the period when Earl Carroll going hatless to cure baldness, ho, ho, was walking the Rialto with an ebony black silk shirt and collar and a snow white tie.

* * *

The shirt-waist evening frock seems no evanescent hoop-de-doo of the moment. Such elegantly dressed style exponents as Doris Duke, Mrs. Byran Foy, Mrs. Harrison Williams and Mrs. Robert Rubin are constant wearers. The shirt waists are usually of old gold, silver or rare brocades. Eighteen out of 20 well dressed women on a recent night at the Casino wore them.

* * *

I wish I could shake hands with people, murmur a polite nothing and skip on. But I have to keep pumping their arm and mouthing asinine inanities. The accomplished worldling shakes hands with a quick firm clasp, says "Charmed!" and goes away. But when they shake hands with me I go into the history of my entire family, give the fundamental reasons for the World War and the devaluation of the dollar.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Open Sesame

The magic "Open Sesame"
Was hidden a weary while;
So potent as a smile.

Who deals in words may make strange slips,
At home or in far lands;
Who goes with smiles upon his lips,
The whole world understands!

And if to any door he bring
A blithe and smiling air,
Its bolts will turn, its hinges swing
So he may enter there.

O, magic Sesame of smiles,
You lead to all delights,
To tranquil seas and sun-sweet isles,
Gold days and starry nights!

No secret witchcraft of the past
Is needed to beguile
The fates, since folk have learned at last
The power of a smile!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

My Greatest Fear—I Fear to Fool Myself!

Now that I am 50 I find that I fear only one thing greatly.

I do not fear poverty, for I have been poor most of my life.

I do not fear riches, for, being what I am, I shall never have them—couldn't keep them if they came my way.

I do not fear sickness, for I have known that, too, and no matter what it does to your flesh, it can't do any irreparable harm to your spirit—unless you let it.

I do not fear persecution, for I've learned that it's the price any brave soul pays for living.

I do not even fear death any more, though, after 50, we must all see the loom of it ahead. But death has already taken that which I loved far more than my own life. Death has darkened life for me, yet left me with a growing conviction that the darkness is only in my own eyes—that the skies are clear and bright beyond this little blindness.

So, at 50, nearly all the fears that once haunted me have passed away. But one fear remains — grows stronger with each day—and I realize that this peril is the worst of all; that it is, perhaps, the only real danger I have ever known.

I FEAR TO FOOL MYSELF!

Let others fool me as they can and will; such chances as that are only part of the game. And though I naturally resent such trickery and have my hot, human moments of hungering for revenge, nevertheless I know I had it coming to me, and will be the better for the bitter lesson. So, I repeat, I do not fear that others may fool me.

BUT I DREAD, WITH ALL MY HEART, MY OWN FOOLING OF MYSELF.

For one only lives to the exact extent that one knows the truth about oneself. The rest is just a pipe dream—and that pipe dream is more terrible than death. You can't help being dead when you are dead. But to be dead when you are alive—to deliberately close your eyes to the wonder and challenge of life's amazing spectacle—that's the sickest and most shameful surrender that a human being can know.

AND EVERY TIME I FOOL MYSELF ABOUT MYSELF, I DO CLOSE MY EYES TO LIFE—I DO CHOOSE THAT LIVING DEATH.

There's the worst menace—the only real menace—of middle and old age. Each day you're more tempted to fool yourself about yourself.

You're getting lazy. How you once loathed and laughed at lazy old people! And something in you still says that you should loathe and laugh at laziness. But—you don't want to! It's so comfortable, so easy, to be lazy.

And there are so many Perfect Alibis! You can blame it on your health. You can say it isn't laziness, at all; it's really poise. You've learned, at last, not to fly around needlessly; not to fidget.

So you fool yourself, and presently even that secret self-contempt is stilled. You believe your own alibis. And laziness closes about you—a soft and horrible trap!

Or you're getting cowardly. Cowardice—how you've always despised it. Twenty years ago—even 10—you'd have been furious at anyone who called you a coward. But now there's an inertia settling on your spirit, as well as your flesh. You know you shouldn't let it. You know you don't have to let it. You know you can, if you will, be as brave now as you were at 20. You can be brave to the end. But—

It's hard work to be brave. People may laugh at you. You may get into messes, may lose some friends or money, even your position. You can't bear the prospect!

And so you tell yourself you're not really cowardly. You've simply grown more philosophical and prudent—don't fly off half-cocked any more. No; you've learned a sense of values.

So you fool yourself, dope yourself—and all the world helps you. For the world no longer expects you to be brave or lively, as it once did. You're getting old, and it would make the other oldsters mad as hops if you challenged their comfort by refusing to take the count—by fighting on. As for the youngsters—you're blotto at any rate, as far as they're concerned; just an old has been.

Why is old age so hideous? That is why. Not because the body is naturally wearing out—BUT BECAUSE WE ARE DELIBERATELY LETTING THE SPIRIT WITHIN THAT BODY DIE OUT.

God, here's my one and only prayer; a short one, but it carries all I've got:

Give me whatever's due me; I can take it. Take from me whatever I must lose. But, for the sake of that spark of Yourself which You breathed into me at my birth, help me keep that spark alive. Strengthen me against these shameful surrenders and evasions. DELIVER ME, FATHER IN HEAVEN, FROM THE HELL OF FOOLING MYSELF!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

This and That About Marriage

Marriage, according to the well-famed husband, is the point at which a girl stops leaning on a man's shoulder and begins jumping on his neck.

* * *

* * *

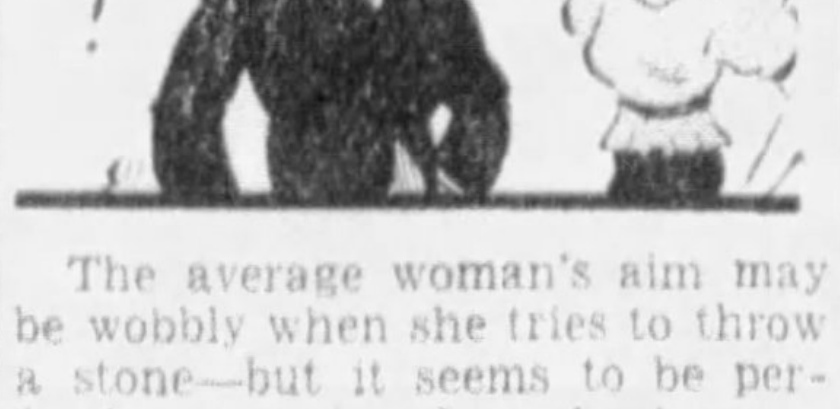
Are doomed to find romance exceedingly slow.
And ladies who wed for mink coats and rubies,
Will soon find themselves among house-pets and boobies!



YOU USED TO LEAN ON MY SHOULDER — NOW YOU JUMP ON MY NECK

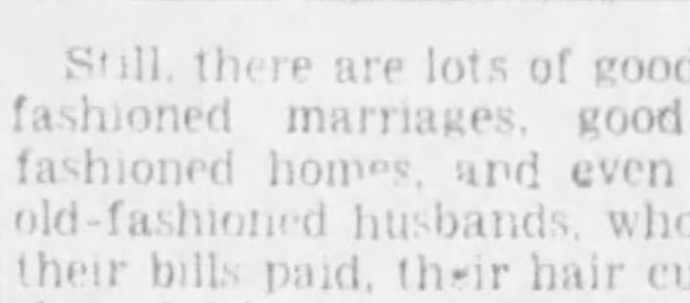
The average woman's aim may be wobbly when she tries to throw a stone—but it seems to be perfectly accurate when she turns a gun on her husband.

* * *

Warfare and transportation are not the only things which have been completely transformed in the last few years. Even marriage starts off at such a different pace that it is harder to recognize than your grandmother in her beach pajamas.



Still, there are lots of good, old-fashioned marriages, good old-fashioned homes, and even good, old-fashioned husbands, who keep their bills paid, their hair cut and their fidelity to their wives. Believe it or not!

* * *

A man's second wife is not apt to nag him—because, she knows that, if his first wife couldn't teach him the meaning of shoe trees and the sacredness of guest-towels and monogrammed bath-mats, there isn't any hope or any use wasting breath.

* * *

ISN'T IT SO?

Some people are never willing to take things as they come unless they can sell them at a profit.

Text for Today And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.—Mark, xvi:15.

A Proud Papa

He Heads Millions of Mohammedans.

BEHOLD HIS HIGHNESS, THE AGA KHAN, WITH HIS YOUNG FRENCH WIFE AND THEIR BABY SON, NAMED SADRUDDIN.

This quiet gentleman, with the "American spectacles," looking well contented, you would hardly take for the leader in a great religion, one of the greatest on earth, though he is that, or for one of the most successful sportsmen of England, triumphant owner of race horses. He is that also.

Because he represents Mohammed to a very large degree, and tens of millions of Mohammedans look up to him, this gentleman receives yearly a gigantic revenue in addition to his already great fortune.

The little baby in the picture will get the enormous fortune and the great revenue afterwards, for he, also, by birth will be looked upon as somebody very close to Allah and Mohammed, who is his prophet.

A sensible, wise person is "His Highness the Aga Kahn." He picks out the right horses; he picked out this beautiful young French woman, whom he saw in a shop and married. And now he has this fine little Mohammedan baby.

Let bachelors write this on their tablets. HE TAKES MORE SATISFACTION IN THAT LITTLE BABY THAN IN ALL HIS RACE HORSES AND RACE WINNINGS, AND ALL THE MONEY THAT THE MOHAMMEDANS SEND HIM TO BE SPENT IN ENGLAND.

Commander G. M. Dyott Leads an Adventurous Expedition To Remote Parts of the Earth

By Edwin C. Hill

THE 200-foot steel yacht Southwind has steam up, all ready to sail out of New York harbor, and I'm sure that there's not one of us with a spark of adventure or wanderlust in his heart who would not want to be one of the Southwind's company when she takes the bone in her teeth. That is, all except the ladies. They might wish to go along, but go they cannot, for it's a stag affair.

The only requirements for the adventure were health, good character, a year of leisure and $3,000. Fifteen were found who met the requirements and they make up the ship's company, along with Commander G. M. Dyott, that adventurer and wanderer extraordinary.

They are off for the Dutch East Indies by way of the southern seas, and they expect to be back in a year's time, bringing with them dragon lizards of the Island of Damodo—those pre-historic reptiles which grow to a length of 23 feet. They will shoot motion pictures of the Polynesians, a dying race of mankind. They will stop at Cocos Island and have a go, it may be, for the famous treasure of the Cathedral of Lima, which has balked so many hard-bitten adventurers in search of its $50,000,000 worth of gold bars, gold vessels and jewels.

* * *

Bounty Descendants To Be Visited

THEY will put in at Pitcairn and Norfolk Islands, where dwell the descendants of the Bounty mutineers—people who see a ship and strange faces perhaps once a year—and they will give these lonely people the latest gossip of the world—the New Deal, the racketeers and kidnapers, repeal, the acrobatics of the dollar and all the rest of the odds and ends of life for which the happy Pitcairners and Norfolkers have no use or need.

This man Dyott will find adventure for them, for he seems never to miss. He is one of those rare fellows who roam up and down the by-paths of the world, seeking out the strange and the mysterious.

Middle-aged and very English looking, Dyott came to America when he was 17, drifted about in the mining country and got enough gold to take him back to England and through a university. He returned to build an airplane and to be caught with it during the Huerta revolution in Mexico. He won his title of Commander with the Royal Navy Air Force in the World War.

He has been all through South America—the last time seeking the lost Col. Fawcett, who disappeared in the Brazilian jungle six years ago while hunting for a race of white Indians. Dyott was flying over a volcano when it erupted and blew him like a leaf before the wind. He has suffered snow blindness in the Arctic and baked in the heat of the desert.

He just can't keep his restless feet from striking out, and now he's off with the hopeful fifteen to stalk the giant lizards of Komodo and take what the red gods offer.

* * *

Ellsworth Has a Misfortune

A WALL of ice on the edge of the South Pole gives way, topples with a crash and wrecks the dreams and the ambition of one of the world's great adventurers. It was a tragic misfortune that befell Lincoln Ellsworth in the Antarctic when the airplane in which, with Bernt Balchen and Sir Hubert Wilkins, he hoped to explore an unknown region, was wrecked by an irremediable mischance.

Perhaps two years must go by before Ellsworth can try again. In the meantime Admiral Byrd and his stout fellows are setting up housekeeping again in the Antarctic in their Little America, their ice-bound village of huts they occupied three years ago. But they, too, came nearly to grief when an iceberg burst apart and crashed into the sea almost at the forefoot of their trembling ship.

The last great abode of mystery, Lincoln Ellsworth calls the Antarctic, hiding no man knows what secret of the human race. For once there were great trees in the Antarctic and a climate favorable to beasts and men, and perhaps a land bridge that led to Australia. Gold may be there in incredible quantities and other precious metals, buried under the ice which fell upon the polar seas millions of years ago and locked them in mystery for millions of years to come.

* * *

Other Mysterious Lands Remain

BUT the Antarctic is not the last frontier, not the last great adventure left for man. There are still strange nooks and crannies for man to poke his way through, strange jungles, deserts and fastnesses that have barred his way since the beginning of time. There are bold, curious and restless men who will push on into the unknown, under some nameless urge, to carry on the exploration of earth's surface. We have not seen the last of the great roamers, and will not in our time.

Airplane and Zeppelin have given men the mastery of the air and permitted them, like Lindbergh, not only to look down upon vanished civilizations choked in the jungle, but actually to land at the foot of ancient temples.

Half the Arctic as well as the Antarctic is still unmapped, still clinging to ice-locked secrets. In Alaska are mountain chains and smoking valleys studded with active volcanoes— a region of incredible tales told by the Eskimos over their winter fires. The heart of the Sahara, with its buried cities, still lures, and the Berber country of the Atlas Mountains, which may once have been part of the fabled continent of Atlantis.

In Southern Asia, in Burma, there are mysterious, unknown tracts of jungles, with lost cities and buried empires concealed in their matted thickets, strangled by the roots of their mighty trees. And there remains the Amazon Valley, with its steaming jungles, its unknown tribes of men, and queer legends.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

It is a bit surprising how many bosses forget the sort of treatment they expected and appreciated before they reached their positions of authority.

They do not treat those under them with courtesy and fairness that they would have demanded in their employe days.

He wants to do his work as his superiors wish him to do it.

In his efforts to meet demands there may be a slight nervousness which put his work a little below par for a time.

At times it may seem to the boss that he is not trying.

Or the boss may think that he does not wish to subordinate his own ideas to those of his employer.

Particularly when jobs are scarce, few men will deliberately take a chance of offending the one to whom they are responsible.

And if they do think their own way is best in certain particulars, and superior to the one called for by the boss, their good sense will not permit them to go contrary to the orders of boss or employer.

And there are comparatively few employees who desire to do so.

MODERN SLANG OKAY, ASSERTS PROFESSOR

By DIXIE TIGHE
Universal Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Purists of speech will probably see red—but there is no use of their bawling out the boys and girls, for slang has made the grade.

Slang has force, according to Dr. Walter Barnes, of New York University, who has placed his John Hancock on "lousy" as being worthy of use. But you mugs don't use your beans and you ball up the real McCoy handling of slang. Dr. Barnes said:

"I approve of 'lousy' if it is used with reference to its true sense. It is not applicable to everything you don't like. If it's used because something makes you feel creepy, then lousy is a good description."

Nuts and screwy are two words he's not so hot about. Snappy, balmy, chump and gold digger are okay by the professor. But, it's the bum's rush for bee's knees, applesauce and baloney. The professor thinks they are a lot of banana oil.

Where Dr. Barnes is heading in, is to stop all the bunk about trying to can slang. It can't be canned and anyone who thinks he can, can dry up and bust for all the headache it gives the professor. Slang can be quite doggy, says the professor.

"Slang is often expressive. I want people to place a proper value on it. Use it thoughtfully. If you say everything is 'lousy,' it loses its value.

BOY, 7, ADMITS ROBBING BANK

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The speech William Shely, chief of police, made at the annual Christmas dinner for newsboys has led to the solution of a bank robbery committed by a 7-year-old boy. In his speech the chief said:

"If ever any of you get into trouble, come and see me. The police are always ready to help you when you are willing to do the right thing."

A group of boys accepted the invitation yesterday, and behind closed doors the spokesman reminded the chief of his speech. They not only confessed that a member of the gang had stolen some money from a bank and divided the loot, the chief said, but also brought in the youthful robber, who admitted he had sneaked into the bank unnoticed and reached over the counter for a roll of bills.

No report of the missing money had been made to police, but bank officials had discovered a shortage of $175. Of the amount, $33 was returned by the boys.

Chief Shely promised the boys he would not "tell the folks about it," and said he would not file charges as the bank did not desire to prosecute.

CHILDREN RIDE FREE IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23—(AP.)—In a drive for "new riders," the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company is liberalizing fare and transfer policies on the city's elevated, subway, surface and bus lines.

Father and mother get the first "break," effective Sunday. Heretofore all children over 35 inches tall had to pay fare; now two children under 12 years may ride free with each adult on Sundays, New Year's, Memorial, Independence and Thanksgiving days. The only exceptions are on the buses.

The Public Service Commission, meeting at Harrisburg, approved the plan.

On April 1, the company will inaugurate extensive changes in the rule governing transfers between various lines and "exchanges," or part-fare payments.

'Lady Bountiful' Deserts Istanbul

ISTANBUL, Feb. 23—(AP.)—Hundreds of human derelicts, refugees and unemployed, lost a "Lady Bountiful," and the dwindling American colony here lost two of its most prominent members with the departure for Boston of Dr. and Mrs. George Huntington.

Dr. Huntington is vice president of Robert College. Mrs. Huntington, the daughter of Cleveland Dodge, has devoted her wealth during the last quarter of a century to charity work in Istanbul.

Jumping Frog Fete Revived on Coast

ANGELS CAMP, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—After a one-year lapse due to the depression, this noted old gold camp will stage its world-famous jumping frog jubilee again this year.

The celebration, which will be held May 19 and 20, is based on Mark Twain's fable of the jumping frog of Calaveras County and always is featured by a jumping contest between frogs.

PROPHET SEES MORE SEVERE WINTERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—If H. Merrill Wills' nose for weather news doesn't play him false, this country is entering a cycle of frostbites.

The present severe winter is a forerunner, he believes, of more cold winters to come in the next few years.

This is a purely personal, unofficial opinion of Wills, who is a meteorologist for the United States Weather Bureau. Long range forecasts are not approved by the Weather Bureau; but "off the record," Wills admits this belief:

1—That the balmy winter era is at an end, temporarily, and that several years of red noses are ahead.

2—That next winter will be bleak, but not as cold as this one, which he calls "the country's biggest weather surprise in seven years."

Nature has just been balancing the books these last few weeks in which the mercury at many places has plunged to a new low, Wills said. Six unusually warm winters lay behind, and the pendulum now swings back.

Weather records over a century, he said, show six years to be the longest consecutive period of high temperature this country has had.

BLONDES LOSE AS 'IDEAL' GIRL

LONDON, Ontario, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Long black tresses carry the most appeal for gentlemen of the University of Western Ontario. Blondes are out.

A poll of male students revealed an ideal girl equipped with blue eyes, a fair complexion, 122 pounds, and 5 feet 5½ inches in height to go with the long black hair.

The ideal girl would be a good dancer and bridge player, athletically inclined. She would have a good sense of humor but not necessarily academic brilliance.

She would be romantic, not—distinctly not—platonic.

Seventy-four per cent of the men said they were willing to marry college girls and 39 per cent said they already had met one who filled the bill.

DEFENDS CAKES IN $20,000 SUIT

CINCINNATI, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Maria Stahley has filed suit for $20,000 from the Woman's Exchange here, charging injury to her reputation as a cake-baker.

She has furnished cakes to the exchange for years, she said, and recognition of her ability grew and grew. Then, she contended, last November the exchange "maliciously, wantonly and unlawfully" tampered with three cakes, making them unfit for consumption, but sold them nevertheless. The damage to her reputation, she asserted, caused her "great mortification, shame, humiliation, and mental anguish."

CWA Workers Start War on Rats

SAN FRANCISCO.—(INS.)—The rat population of San Francisco is not in accord with the CWA here. One of the newest CWA projects to start here is a war on rats in which 200 CWA workers will be assigned to the extermination. The project is a part of the nation-wide survey to determine the most efficient way to stamp out contagious disease carried by rodents.

New Jersey Relief Cost for One Year

TRENTON.—(INS.)—Work of the Emergency Relief Administration in New Jersey cost $25,135,345.60 during the year between October 1, 1932, and September 30, 1933. The figures are disclosed in the second annual report of the administration which State Director John Colt submitted to Gov. A. Harry Moore here.

Studies Six Months To Be Good Citizen

ALFRED, Me.—(INS.)—To make certain he would not be stumped during a quizzing at final hearing on his citizen's application, Noel Paradi, of Limerick, told Justice Herbert E. Holmes in Superior Court that he read the Constitution of the United States every day for six months. He passed.

'Kidnap Proof' Babies Goal Of Science

A complete apparatus designed for this purpose, baby included, has been assembled by Marcus W. Hinson, vice president of the Institute of Radio Service Men, for exhibition at the organization's convention.

A small cell which emits a thin ray of invisible light is concealed beneath a false bottom in a baby's crib. This beam, shuttled between mirrors at the head and foot of the crib, focuses on a photo-electric cell and any interruption which shuts off light from the "eye" starts a loud alarm. Electricity from an ordinary wall plug actuates the contrivance. An alarm is also set off if the current is disconnected.

SOURCE OF JOY FROM SMOKING ANALYZED

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb 23.—(AP.)—A discovery that people like to smoke mainly because nicotine releases sugar in their blood is published from the Yale Laboratory of Applied Physiology.

The nicotine gives a little kick to the adrenals, the glands which supply energy. They in turn open the body faucets which release a little stored-up sugar, the body's normal muscle fuel. The body proceeds forthwith to enjoy this sugar under various sensations.

SMOKE STUDIED

The studies were made upon cigaret smoke by Howard W. Haggard and Leon A. Greenberg. The details are published in Science, the official journal for American scientific announcements. They say:

> "The gratification derived from smoking always has been rather a mystery. Exactly what elements in the smoke exert the pleasurable physiological effects has never been determined, nor precisely what these effects are.
>
> "Chemists have pointed to carbon monoxide in tobacco smoke and have suggested that it is a cause of the ill effects, if not the pleasure, of smoking. But in fact a heavy smoker accumulates less carbon monoxide than does the non-smoker who takes a walk on Fifth avenue, New York, during the hours of heavy automobile traffic.

DUE TO NICOTINE

> "Smoking, we find, produces a definite, although temporary increase in the concentration of blood sugar, and a corresponding increase in the rate of sugar combustion in the body. These effects certainly are due to the nicotine of the tobacco and they arise from the action of this alkaloid on the adrenals.
>

OLD COTTON GIN MODEL FOUND

WASHINGTON, Ga., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Nobody ever paid much attention to a decrepit piece of machinery which lay in an old Wilkes County barn for years and years.

The other day the farmer in whose barn the ancient machine lay told J. Luke Burdette about it. He said:

Burdette looked it over and found what he believes to be the original model for Eli Whitney's first power cotton gin, the machine which revolutionized the cotton industry in the South.

Burdette has devoted years of study to Whitney's work in this section. He owns the farm on which the inventor did much of his work after building his first cotton gin.

The model is said to be remarkably similar to the present day gin.
